Charlevoix Endures Year of Joys and Sorrows

The beginning of a New Year brought the official end to many events that occurred during 1974

It would be almost impossible for us to decide what the ten top stories for Charlevoix in 1974, but it is interesting to look back and see what we have been through.

Hopefully, we'll never see some of the bleaker days again.

Last Year

The beginning of this year greeted us with a mysterious disappearance of 75-year-old Del Carson of East Jordon, which caused the entire area to conduct a thorough search.

January also marked the time when Charlevoix County Commissioners were deciding on how to repair the Ironton Ferry that ran only a partial season because of water level fluxuations.

Later in January, Courier readers learned about the new proposed shopping center complex that is to be constructed on U.S. 31 North.

While several people were proposing a new shopping center outside town, members of the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission were talking about how they could improve the parking inside of town.

Improved Parking

In February, Harold Elgas of Gaylord spoke to downtown businessmen on how Charlevoix could improve its parking

Ellsworth was trying to figure out how it could fight an elusive oil slick that saturated the land leaked from a 20,000-gallon tank of fuel oil which leaked on the property of Howes and Howes Trucking Co.

Charlevoix also held its biggest winter celebration with its first Winter Mardi Gras.

With the cold March winds came Charlevoix's first savings and loan Saginaw Savings and Loan Association opened a new branch office on Bridge Street.

Beaver Island

Suns Baker, head maintenance man at Grandvue Medical Facility for the past 16 years was honored at a retirement party.

During April, Charlevoix City Council was showered with a petition signed by 106 residents asking for parking in the downtown area.

Taxpayers also took a shower when they learned that the county would cost a quarter of a million dollars more to operate than in previous years.

May Street

Construction was also moving rapidly ahead on the May-st. sewer, in spite of cold, wet weather.

Ed Rebman, Charlevoix County Extension Agent, met with members of the City Council to finalize plans for the city's Garden Plot project.

During the first week in May, county youngsters held the 4-H Style Show at Charlevoix High School.

City and State Police were also continuing their investigation into what was believed to be the biggest heist in the city's long history.

Diamond rings and watches with a retail value of between $14,000 and $15,000 were taken over the weekend from the Charlevoix Jewelry Store.

Tradition Starts

Charlevoix's Garden Club also started a new tradition with the planting of a tree at Charlevoix High School.

Northern Michigan businessmen and government officials were also out campaigning to save Northern Michigan Railroads which were under the possible threat of abandonment by the federal government

In June, Ray Wood was appointed City Councilman to replace Richard Fochtman, who resigned because of differences with the mayor

WVOY Begins

WVOY, Charlevoix's new radio station also began tests so they could go on the air.

In July, Lieutenant Commander Roger R. Roznoski officially took over the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Sundew. He relieved Lieutenant Commander Jeffrey Bull.

The State Agriculture Department also threatened to shut down the county dog facility because of unsafe conditions.

Campaigning for a new high school and rennovation of the present middle school began.

Charlevoix's bid for a new high school went down nearly two to one

Charlevoix County's senior citizens were also out in full force at Whiting's Park for an old fashion Sunday dinner sponsored by the newly organized Commission on Aging

The Charlevoix Area Hospital received a $1,000 check from its hospital guild for emergency equipment

County farmers also learned the P.B.B., a fire retardant which was mistaken for cattle feed, was killing their cattle

City Council put the question to a new city charter on the ballot for February

Construction Begins Shortly

Council Approves Housing

Charlevoix's first senior citizen housing project is expected to get underway within the next few weeks following action by Charlevoix City Council Monday.

The Council granted variances that enables developers Joe Arvilla and Glen Harris, both of Charlevoix, to begin construction of the 40-unit project to be located on May Street behind the Holiday Service Station.

Councilman Ralph McRae cast the only dissenting vote on the project because the project would eventually rent to those 55-years-old or above instead of 62 years of age.

Councilwoman Jeanine Wallace had asked that the property deed be restricted to a minimum age of 55 years, when making her motion to grant the variance.

Despite several other objections made by McRae regarding quality of construction and financing, the project received a favorable nod from several residents.

Tom LaBlance said he felt the developers would build a good structure and thought this type of low-cost housing was needed in the area.

"I think the senior citizen housing and low cost is important," he said.

Mayor Edward Hansen said the city shouldn't be as concerned with the quality of construction, as in past years, because that would now be taken care of under the new state building code adopted recently by the city.

"The question is whether or not we want low income housing in the City of Charlevoix," he said.

In other action, the council:

–Tabled a request to consider adding a reverter clause to a recently adopted resolution on changes to the tax collection of school taxes.

–Placed the question of a new city charter on the April 7 ballot with the petition to file for charter commission seats on Feb. 17.

Charlevoix County Prisioners Will Get "Catered" Meals

By FRAN MARTIN

Prisoners meals at the Charlevoix County Jail will be catered by a local restaurant effective Jan. 1 following action by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at a special meeting Monday.

According to the resolution presented by the Sheriff's committee of the board, previous arrangements with the sheriff for the feeding of prisoners at the county jail have become unsatisfactory to both the sheriff and the county.

Because of the few prisoners housed in the jail in recent weeks, it has not been feasible to hire cooks and purchase food because of the cost.

In an effort to solve the problem, the county accepted the offer of Heinz Leutheuser of Leutheuser Restaurant to cater all meals to the county jail at the rate of three meals per day for a cost of $4.00.

This rate will be negotiable 60 days in advance should materials increase or decrease substantially.

If fewer meals be necessary than it is economically feasible, a delivery charge may be negotiated between the county and the restaurant or other transportation arranged for.

In presenting the resolution for consideration, a spokesman for the committee said that it seemed more practical to have the meals catered than to hire two cooks and purchase and prepare foods in small amounts for the few prisoners that have been in the jail.

In answer to an inquiry regarding the meals, Kenneth A. Staley of the committee said that meals would follow the nutritional chart set by the state that would allow 3,000 calories per day in a balanced diet.

Last Meeting of Year

Commissioners Offset Deficits

By FRAN MARTIN

The major issue to come before the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at its special meeting Monday was supplementing of budgets to offset deficits at the end of the fiscal year.

This was done at the recommendation of State Treasury Department auditing requirements and suggestions according to Lee Moerland, chairman of the finance committee.

Largest supplements were made to District Court ($12,724), the jail account ($13,916) and Insurance and bonds ($7,567). Others ranged from $93.03 in the Veterans Affairs account to $2,893 in the Board of Commissioners budget.

It was explained that part of the defict in the jail budget would be offset by state and federal monies that would be available to underwrite certain phases of the operation but have not been directly applied to the department cost at this time.

Additional employees necessitating additional monies for their insurance and the increased costs of other insurance accounted for the major increase in the latter budget.

Monies to make appropriations to offset the deficits were derived from surpluses in 14 other budgets in the same accounts.

When these budgets were balanced, $18,869 remained.

The Board then approved an appropriation to the Ironton Ferry account in the amount of $13,249 to underwrite unanticipated expenses during the past year.

The remaining $5,619 in unanticipated revenue was placed in the Delinquent Tax Revolving refund establishing in 1974.

In other action, the Board heard a report from Joan Blanchard, Equalization Director, on the work being done on various phases of studies by her department in preparation for the Equalization report in April.

City Primary Election Will Have One Race

Charlevoix's Primary Election scheduled for Monday, Feb. 17, will find incumbent Edward P. Hansen and first ward alderman, Ralph A. McRae squaring off against each other for the Republican nomination for the office of mayor.

Hansen, who earlier had indicated he would be a candidate for re-election filed his petition last week.

The mayoralty race will be the only city-wide contest.

The second contest will appear in the general election in April when incumbent Jeanine Wallace, a Republican, will be opposed by Democrat F. Ivan Whitley, a newcomer to the political arena

Other incumbents who will be unopposed for their respective offices are: Annabelle Cunningham, treasurer; Ida A. Heise, clerk; Raymond V. Wood, first ward alderman and George Plumm, third ward alderman. All are candidates on the Republican ballot.

The city presently has 2,236 registered voters including 658 in the first ward, 831 in the second ward and 747 in the third ward.

Employment Level Should Rise

Charlevoix County may not find itself in the same unemployment economic shambles the rest of the state is now suffering through.

The Michigan Employment Security Commission predicts more than area 1,000 workers temporarily layed-off to be back on the job within the next few weeks.

In Charlevoix, the 131 workers temporarily out of work at American Mold and Freedman Arteraft are expected to be back by Jan. 13.

While Leo Kelly, who manages the MESC branch office for Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties, says the unemployment levels are probably the worst in the 14 years he has been in Northern Michigan, he predicts it is only temporary.

"I would say we have more claims than ever before," said the branch manager.

Kelly estimated his office handled more than 3,000 claims for unemployment insurance benefits last week, compared to the 2,000 normally handled.

Unemployment for October in Charlevoix County was 18.9 per cent. Although figures have not been computed for November yet, Kelly said they will be higher.

"As the snow flies, we get the lay-offs," he said.

"But, a lot of this is seasonal layoff."

Under new Michigan law, you only have to be out of work one week to qualify for unemployment insurance.

And to receive payment, you simply have to fill out a claim form supplied by either your employer or the MESC.

Once the application is filled out, a MESC worker reviews the application and schedules the applicant for an appointment two weeks from the application date.

After that time, a person becomes qualified for benefits.

But for those thinking unemployment are better than being on the job, they may be surprised.

Although the state shelled out more than a half-billion dollars in unemployment benefits, the maximum state aid a person with dependents can get is $106 a week.

And to get that much as soon as possible, Kelly suggests applicants keep their appointments.

His staff of 14 have been working weekends and nights to keep up with the heavy seasonal demand.

The MESC office for this area is located in Petoskey at 911 Spring across from Grant City.

In addition to unemployment insurance benefits, Richard Tillen of Charlevoix County Social Services says many can qualify for one of four general assistance programs.

That includes everything from short-term general assistance relief for crisis situations to food stamps.

Unemployed workers are also eligible for Medicade and A.D.C.U. for those who are unemployed and have families.

"Right now, we're swamped," Tillen said.

"This year we are doing banner business."

Last month, he said there were some 210 pending applications.

"We are hurting very badly with the shortage of staff," he continued.

As far as the county program, Tillen says he sees no immediate worries of running out of funds, but he is concerned about next year.

"I don't think we are hurting money-wise," he said.

"As far as the federal government, they will cut back in other areas.

Tillen did say that if the present trend continues, his department will probably have to ask the county for a larger appropriation next year.

Like the MESC, Tillen encourages those who think they may be eligible for an appointment to call ahead of time for an appointment.

The Charlevoix County Social Services Department is located in the Charlevoix County Building.

Deadline Nears

Snowmobile operators in Michigan are reminded by the Department of Natural Resources that a new registration cycle begins January 1 and all snowmobiles must be registered at that time.

Registration may be accomplished by either taking the prepared form mailed by the Secretary of State to a local Secretary of State's office or by taking in the old registration form and filling out a new one at the office.

Beginning January 1, registration will be for a three-year period and will cost $9.

Following registration, the official number must be placed on the forward half of the machine followed by the issued decal. The certificate of registration must also accompany the snowmobile while being operated and be available for inspection by any peace officer.

The only snowmobiles not required to be registered are those which are operated exclusively on lands owned or under the control of the snowmobile owner, snowmobiles operated exclusively in a special event conducted under permit from a governmental unit or those used entirely in a safety education and training program conducted by a certified snowmobile safety instructor.

Editorials/Opinions

Our New Year's Wish

Looking back over the year we are hard pressed to answer the question.

Our editorial wishes have ranged from adopting a new time standard to asking for a hall to railroad abandonment in Northern Michigan.

During January we were pleased to see the success of a cross-country ski clinic in Charlevoix and welcomed the added dimension to winter life in the reaches of country.

We were also glad to see that political life in our city was well and alive with several major contests for both mayor and city alderman.

Later in the winter, we found ourselves face on with some economic uphills that we still haven't climbed over yet.

We were hopeful this would alleviate some of the high cost food being endured by the Charlevoixans.

To take our minds off Watergate, winter and the economy, we joined others in celebrating Mardi Gras Holiday

Later in March, we joined the citizens lobby, Common Cause, in asking for a reform in presidential campaign finaneing.

Early spring brought its problems to Charlevoix with the malicious destruction of windows in the Charlevoix area.

Among the victims were the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and Charlevoix High School which were apparently damaged by marbles and steel balls propelled by sling-shots.

While asking for an end to the senseless damage, we encouraged the State of Michigan to promote our better side.

We had asked the state, who has often gone for deeades without an official poet laureate, to name northern Michigan's own Max Ellison, a poet of growing reknown the country over.

A federal proposal to eliminate virtually all rail servicee to northern Michigan drew sharp editorial critieism from us in May.

We also praised Charlevoix City Counell for its decision to establish a building authority.

We were hopeful that this would eventually lead to a solution to our downtown parking conjestion problems in the peak tourist seasons.

Spring met more people getting outside to enjoy our beautiful locality and at the same time it met more problems.

Our major spring time problem was the tennis court and players hitting balls over onto adjacent property.

We asked the City Council to consider coming up with some more realistic solutions than having to lock up the courts.

Charlevoix Circuit Court Judge Edward Fenlon's retirement brought a sad note to our community.

Because of bad health he was forced to retire.

Charlevoix Public Schools in June asked voters to consider improving both its high school and middle school facilities with the passage of a bond proposal.

Unfortunately, our encouragement for a positive note didn't help, but we hope the school distriet hasn't given up.

Michigan's proposed rules for the Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Act of 1972 also earned a positive nod from us.

We also appreciated the Charlevoix Booster Club's unusual presentation to Jerry Skippergosh and the following standing ovation he received at the Charlevoix Varsity Awards night for a job well done as a superb athlete.

In August, we encouraged our local residents to take a more active part in county government by attending the budget hearing.

Later in this fall, we got tangled up in several zoning issues.

We asked Hayes Township to reconsider its zoning of property near Michigan Shores that was being used for mining.

At the same time, we wondered if Planned Unit Development zoning should be allowed in Northern Michigan.

We also asked City Counell to either appoint a new city administrator or make the temporary one permanent.

More recently we asked for support of a new city charter, senior citizen housing and consideration of a merger between Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township.

For Charlevoix, it has been a busy year. We think it has also been a good year and hope it will be even better in 1975.

Letters to the editor

Same Old Story

By
George Hagedorn
Vice-President and Chief Economist
National Association of Manufacturers

THERE is a theory going around to the effect that our economy no longer works the way it used to. Only on the assumption of some fundamental change in the inner workings of our economic system, it is alleged, can we explain the present simultaneous occurrence of inflation and recession.

The conclusion drawn is that we can no longer rely wholly on the classical remedies for inflation—budget balance and restraint in the expansion of money and credit. These measures may be necessary but, it is said, they will not of themselves restore stability to our economy. And so the theory leads to advocacy of some kind of direct government action to influence private wage and price-setting practices, in the form of wage-price controls, more vigorous antitrust enforcement, etc.

This writer rejects entirely the theory that a kind of inner change has occurred in our economy, to alter fundamentally its reactions to government fiscal and monetary actions. What we are seeing is an old, old story—irresponsible government financed practices produce inflation. The cure is the same old cure—a reversion to balanced budgets and restraint in monetary expansion.

As always, we must not expect that fiscal and monetary reform will produce instantaneous and painless results. We must be prepared for an interim period of continuing inflation and rising unemployment as we climb, for past sins. And, as always, we must resist the temptation to hasten the process by government controls or similar measures, which deal with the symptoms rather than the causes of inflation, and which possibly adverse effects of their own.

In rejecting the theory of an alleged fundamental economic change, which now limits the effectiveness of fiscal-monetary reform as a cure for inflation, we are aware that we are taking on a formidable intellectual opponent Arthur Burns, an academic economist of the highest distinction, as well as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, apparently embraced that theory during the 1970 recession. Lately, however he has become somewhat equivocal in the policy recommendations he would derive from it.

Hendrik Houthakker, professin at Harvard and a former member of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, also accepts the theory we are examining. He claims that "stagflation" was first observed in Britain during the 1960s, and "first made its appearance in the U.S. in 1970-71 when we had a mild recession during which the price level continued to rise." He attributes stagflation to the "weakness of competition."

The theory we are criticizing seems wholly based on the myth that prior to the 1970s in the U.S., prices invariably ceased rising as soon as a recession began after an inflationary boom. This was not so at all if we look, for example, at the recession of 1958—the worst so far in post-World-War-II history.

During the boring period of the mid-1950s, considerable concern was felt at the inflation which seemed to be gathering strength. The consumer price index turned down in the summer of 1957 and reached bottom in the spring of the next year. For the entire duration of the recession, consumer prices continued to rise about as fast as they had during the previous boom. It might have been called stagflation, except that the word had not been invented.

The point is that we are hardly witnessing a new phenomenon when we see inflation continuing much as before while the economy is softening.

As a measure of the magnitude of the earlier recession, industrial production declined by 13 per cent between the high point in 1957 and the low point in 1958. This time so far, we have had a drop of only 2 per cent since the high of last fall. And yet, with this relatively minor drop, some people are surprised that we haven't seen a pronounced moderation of inflation.

Perhaps even more to the point, after the recession of 1958 was over, we entered a period when the economy was practically free of inflation. Between 1959 and 1964 commodity prices hardly rose at all, and wages went up approximately in proportion to productivity. During those five years, we resisted the temptation to turn to controls, and other forms of government intervention. The absence of inflation in that period is explainable wholly in terms of fiscal and monetary restraint.

The only apparent support for Dr. Houthakker's belief that there has been a widespread weakening of competition is his claim that stagflation is a new phenomenon of the 1970s. Since this premise is not true, there is no reason to accept his conclusion that competition is less effective than it used to be.

We see no reason to conclude from current trends that controls now have a necessary, or even helpful, part to play in curbing inflation. As for antitrust enforcement—every good citizen must agree that antitrust is the law of the land and should be enforced. But if enforcement is guided by the false belief that competition has deteriorated and stricter enforcement is the way to curb inflation, it could become economically pernicious rather than constructive.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

The funeral is over.

The great and the near-great in Hollywood and New York have all heaped accolades upon the grave of Jack Benny.

And there is little doubt in this corner that Mr. Benny will be sorely missed by his compatriots in show business. The glittering personalities of Tinsel Town are actually pretty human behind their false eyelashes, capped teeth and polished facades.

All of the stars interviewed on a Jack Benny special on CBS Sunday night made a point of mentioning how long they personally had known Mr. Benny and how often they had "worked" with him on stage, radio or before the TV cameras.

Yet there wasn't one word from the millions of little Joe Doakes like me who feel they have known Mr. Benny most of their lives, even though we never met him personally.

And we actually were his best friends, because without us Mr. Benny might have wound up running a haberdashery in Waukegan, Ill., his home town.

When I was a boy growing up in Detroit, Jack Benny's radio program made many a dreary Sunday worth living. As I recall, the Benny program started at 7 p.m., followed by Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy at 8, "First Nighter" at 9 and "The Hermit's Cave" at 10.

Other comedians had programs on other nights, but Jack Benny always traveled in pretty exclusive company Sunday nights on Detroit radio.

One nice thing about radio was that other activities didn't have to stop while your favorite program was on the air. You could do your homework without missing a word of Jack Benny. Or you could eat supper and still laugh your heart out. Or you could play cards, work jig-saw puzzles or do any number of things and still be counted as a member of the audience.

Looking back, Jack Benny's universal appeal is somewhat puzzling, because Benny was so predictable it hurt. We all knew he was a stingy lightwad, and even the bitliest kid knew how he would react in a given set of circumstances.

Yet we listened to him anyway, squirming with delight as he picked his way down, down, down his cellar steps to reach the subterraneau vault where he kept his money. None of us had much money in those days and Benny's elaborate precautions to protect his wealth never failed to fascinate us.

We also enjoyed conjuring up an image of Mr. Benny tooling around Beverly Hills in his ancient Maxwell. Our own Model A Ford wasn't much newer than Jack's fabled Maxwell, but he made it seem older.

Jack Benny's most memorable radio program was broadcast the last Sunday in December, 1941.

That month, as you'll recall, wasn't the nicest month in American history. The Japanese had bombed Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, and the following day we were at war with all the Axis powers.

Throughout the month there was speculation on how long the war would last. Some people said it would be over in six weeks. Others gave Nazi Germany until Spring and the Rising Sun until Labor Day.

But there also were skeptics in the land who weren't at all sure the United States could survive the armed might of Germany, Italy and Japan, since our own troops were still training with broomsticks instead of M-1's.

However, Jack Benny's New Year's program in 1941 sort of brought it all together. In his funny-serious way, Benny acknowledged there was a long struggle ahead, but he left no doubt as to who would win.

I think we all felt better knowing Mr. Benny was in our corner and that he, at least, knew how things were going to turn out.

No Escape From the Pit

By JIM FITZGERALD

Fighter dogs?

Dogs bred and trained for no other reason than to maim and kill each other while their best friends cheer and bet money on which dog will die first? Just like cock fights, another Great American Sport?

Could it be? Yes.

I guess it's not surprising. What is surprising is that I lived all these years before learning, from TV, about this incredible obscenity.

All this time I have been protesting the more subtle cruelties to animals. (A steel trap hidden in the underbrush is sobtle compared to shooting a pheasant thrown in from of your gun by the bartender-gameskeeper at the hunting club.) I was a dumbo so busy flicking at windmills I didn't notice the tornado across the street.

Rodeos, horse races and all animal acts make me twitch and cringe.

I wouldn't want some clown sitting on my back, digging spurs into my ribs and beating on my head just because a lot of greedy jerks had $2 on my nose.

I wouldn't want some musclehead cowboy jumping on my neck and wrestling me to the ground and tying my hands to my legs just so he could pound his chest and collect $100 prize money.

I wouldn't want to be fed on the sly, a hunk of fish after every trick, to fool a paying audience into believing I flopped through hoops because I was playful, not hungry.

But these would be minor irritations in the Courthouse, Annex.

to a fighter dog. His job is to enter a pit with another fighter dog and fight to stay alive. If he survives to fight another day, more money will be bet on him. If he loses, he doesn't complain about the refereeing. He's dead.

These dog fights are illegal but thousands of them are held in the United States every year. The owner-gamblers even have a national magazine. Its editor, a bearded cretin named Pete Sparks, appeared on the Mike Douglas TV show. There was also a movie showing 2 of the dogs tearing each other apart while the betters rooted.

Sparks, who said he never missed a dog fight, defended them by saying: "It's just another sport, like horse racing." (Which is something for you Sport of Kings fans to think about as you chew on your parimutuel tickets.)

The erudite Sparks also pointed out that the losing dog doesn't necessarily die. His owner can throw in the towel if the owner doesn't mind being a quitter. The dog doesn't have anything to say about it. There is no escape from the pit.

I was shook by the whole scene. How could any human being treat a dog so cruelly? I was glad when Douglas was gone and the news came on TV.

Except the news showed white people stoning black kids at a Boston school. A grown man looked into the CBS camera and shouted "Kill all the niggers."

Those children have nothing to say about what school they attend.

There is no escape from the pit.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Terry Edger

Charlevoix County's newest radio station, WVOY, has been on the air for five months.

They've added a lot to this community and today the Charlevoix Courier asks General Manager Terry Edger how the station is doing.

Edger has been in radio since junior high school.

After four years of electronic experience in the Air Force, he began working as an engineer announcer for a Muskegon radio station and later became chief engineer of a Charlotte, Michigan station.

Then it was to Gate Radio Company in Bloomington, Illinois for two years to be an automation program specialist and then back to Hastings as an announcer, until moving to Charlevoix in March.

He and his wife, Judy, who also works with the station, have two children.

COURIER: How are you finding the acceptance of WVOY in the area?

EDGER: The acceptance is living up to our expectation. I think we are finding more acceptance in a border area than we anticipated. I think any new business in this area is greeted with a certain amount of wait and see. We anticipated this. I think it will take time to overcome that normal pessimism that is sometimes reflected at a new business.

COURIER: What are you attempting to do differently than other radio stations?

EDGER: Basically, we've attempted to put the best staff together along with the best facilities that we could possibly justify in this area. And we're attempting to go after a specific audience. And that is essentially the people who are buying homes, raising families, buying cars and generally the people who are making things happen.

COURIER: Can you elaborate further on what you mean by good facilities and staff?

EDGER: We have a fairly small staff that we feel is highly experienced and probably better paid than the average for a station our size. And because we have a small staff, we have some fairly sophisticated equipment to help us compete with stations who have larger staffs. For instance, we have a news man on duty all the time, whereas most stations our size would have one announcer who is preparing news playing records and reading commercials. In other words the disc-jockey combo man. We have machines playing the music and commercials. We just feel it gives us a competitive edge.

EDGER: I guess the thing people like most is that we have done away with a lot of things that are boring, trite and time consuming. If we have something that is not interesting to a particular individual, it is not going to last too long. That's not to say we're pleasing everybody because we know that is not possible and we know if we were attempting to please everybody we would very much be diluting what we are attempting to accomplish (our target audience). A lot of people have told us this kind of approach wouldn't work in a community the size of Charlevoix, and that is possible, but we're trying to appeal to a broader area. And as I said earlier, our response has been very good over a broad area. We're receiving mail from a nine county area. We've got to believe that is a great asset to the Charlevoix community.

COURIER: Why did you pick Charlevoix for WVOY?

EDGER: There are only a limited number of areas where new radio stations can be built, which of course had to be the first criteria. But more importantly, we felt Charlevoix was the type of community that we could attract top-notched people to the kind of operation that we would like to be associated with.

COURIER: Do you plan on being on the air later at night, as will as eventually adding FM to your facility?

EDGER: It has taken us seven years to have gotten where we are now. We are working on the application for night-time AM and are relatively certain that this will become a reality, but it is too soon to say when we will have final approval from the Federal Communication Commissinn (FCC). For competitive reasons, I don't want to say a lot about FM at this point. But, I will say we have invested a lot of time and money in an effort to get Charlevoix an FM station as well.

COURIER: What do you like about Charlevoix the most?

EDGER: I guess outside of the cosmetic features of the area, which everybody likes, the thing I like the best is a very interesting crosssection of people who live in the area. I have never seen a community the size of Charlevoix with so many talented people in so many different areas.

Charlevoix County Bank Blasts Andy's Tire World

By CHUCK WRIGHT

Charlevoix County State Bank rose to the challenge as it blasted Andy's Tire World 61-33. The Bankers retained sole possession of first place with the win. An Andy's win would have left the two fine teams tied for first in the Lake Michigan division of the B league.

The key to the game was County Bank's ability to hold Kevin Jonnechek, who entered the game with a 21 point a game average, to a meager 10 points. Andy's relies heavily on his scoring and was unable to maintain a consistent offense without it.

Dennis La Croix was the hot man for the Bankers as he hit for 22 points. However, it was County Bank's defense that made the win so convincing.

After battling to a 15-13 lead at the end of the first quarter, County Bank coupletely stifled Andy's attack. Jonnecheck, who had 9 of his 10 points in the first quarter, did not score in the second. Meanwhile, the Bankers got scoring from seven different players. They pulled away to a 30-17 halftime lead. Andy's only scored four points the entire quarter.

County Bank added to its lead in the second half to win easily. Steve Jonnecheck added 11 points for Andy's.

Russell's Shell clunbed into a second place tie with Andy's with a narrow 54-47 win over Alray Cottages. Leading by a comfortable 14 point margin at halftime, Russell's had to struggle to hold off Alray. Russell's scored only 18 second half points.

Mike Crain and Jim Potter led all scorers with 16 points. Larry Brock of Russell's added 14. For Alray, Carl Swanson had 12, points and Scott Blanchard added 10.

Steve McClellan and Vinec Lefi contributed 14 apiece to the Jim's attack. Charley Borths paced Medusa's scoring with 17. Chuck Bascon had 14 and John Borths 11.

Village Milkhouse came up with its second consecutive impressive win as it beat Muma's 83-58. The Milkhouse is now in second place with a 4-2 record in the Lake Charlevoix Division of the B League.

Dale Boss scored a season's high 36 points, in leading the Milk House to victory. The Milk House led 36-32 nt halftime. It was a different story in the second half, however. Gary Novotny chipped in 17 points, Jerry Sanfalil, 12 and Bob Castleline 10. For Muma's, Bill Gengle scored 22 while Roger Putman added 15.

Kenney's Excavating remained undefeated as it beat Wojan Aluminum 54-49. As usual, team balance was the key to Kenney's win. Dale Shooks led the way with 13 and Jack Dunbgrt had 10. Wojan's, playing without two starters, got a fine 20 point performance from Dean Mikulski.

First State Bank won the second battle of the teachers against John Deere 45-41. Their personal series is now one game apiece. Larry Roth scored 11 and Pete Spieles 10 for the Bankers. Their efforts offset Dave Meyer's 18 points.

In the A league, Roger Crain scored 23 points as Freedman's nipped Bob's Sunoco 63-60. The contest was basically a match-up of Freedman's speed versus Bob's physienl strength.

Ike Boss scored 8 of his 16 points in the first quarter as Ike's jumped off to a quick 17-12 lead.

But Crain and Rick Donaldson scored 6 points apiece in the second quarter to lead the Freedman comeback. At the half, the score was tied at 30 all. The rest of the game was nip-and-tuck.

Swanson's K & D swamped the Coast Guard 74-20. The consistency of Bruce Meggison led the way with 22. Dave Swanson had 18, Doug Winnel and Randy DeYoung each contributed 10. Marty Richardson had 11 for the Coast Guard.

Town House mauled Haggard's 93-34. Danny McKenzie sparked the Town House attacked with 20 points. Dave "Doc" Strawbridge added 16, Spook Coleman 14, and Stan Martin 10. Dean Ginther had 11 for Haggards.

Sundew Prepares for Winter

By Fran Martin

After a busy month during which the U.S.C.G. Cutter Sundew completed its fall buoy season and completed various other assigned tasks, the ship returned to port Dec. 20.

At the present time, its schedule calls for a logistics run to Lansing Shoals light station at the west end of the Straits of Mackinac on Monday.

The light station will remain in operation until the close of the navigation season which is extended past the normal December closing date to allow freighters to haul ure, mostly from Lake Superior ports, to steel mills located on Southern Lake Michigan.

The Sundew is charged with rotating the crewmen on the light station at two-week intervals and on Monday will make such a run, transporting men and supplies to the station, Lt. Cmdr. Roger R. Roznoski, skipper of the ship, said. The ship will then return here to await ice-breaking assignments in the area along with 'log' runs to the light station.

Approximately 30 carriers operated by several shipping companies will continue to transport ore until forced to discontinue operations because of ice conditions, Cmdr. Roznoski said.

As the ice builds up in the Straits, in the St. Mary's river leading to the Soo Locks and in ports along northern Lake Michigan and Lake Superior, the Sundew will join the icebreaker Mackinaw and other assigned ships in ice breaking operations which includes escorting the carriers through ice fields in the Straits and elsewhere.

Prior to closing out its buoy season, the Sundew was directed to participate in an search and rescue (SAR) exercise in northern Lake Huron as a part of the Coast Guard Great Lakes Demonstration Program.

The purpose of the exercise was to demonstrate the use and reliability of certain equipment in a survival situation.

The exercise began at 6:30 a.m. Dec. 18 when the motor ship, Joseph H. Thompson, launched the 25-man circular raft into Lake Huron 15 miles southeast of Detour Light Station.

At the time the weather was mild, waves were three to four feet, wind at 18 to 24 knots, skies overcast and visibility at six miles.

Aboard the raft were four crewmen, Cmdr. John Deck III and Lt. (j.g.) Joseph Vaurek, both of the Merchant Marine Technology (MMT) Office and POC Fred Doster, Public Relations Office, all of the Ninth Coast Guard District office at Cleveland and Lt. Cmdr. George J. Bubbleben, MMT office, Coast Guard Headquarters, Washington, D.C.

Equipment tested in the exercise included the davit-launched inflatable liferaft, a radar transponder, hand-held receivers and signal lights.

The radio transponder emitted a frequency wave disturbance allowing the raft to be more easily detected on rescue-craft radar; the transreceivers demonstrated the use of 'EPIRB' (emergency position indicating radio beacon) on Channel 16 F.M. and lights including chemical-type, battery-powered and strobe lights mounted on the raft in order to determine their range of visibility.

When the raft was launched, rescue forces including a fixed-wing aircraft (HU-163), and a helicopter (HH-52A), both from the Traverse City Air Station and the Sundew were alerted. The plane sighted the raft at 9:10 a.m. and relayed its position to the Sundew, already enroute to the launching point. The helicopter arrived on scene at 10:15 a.m. and evacuated one man, Lt. (j.g.) Vaurek, and took him to Traverse City. The Sundew arrived at 12 M.noon, brought the raft alongside and hoisted it and its occupants aboard.

When found, the raft had drifted approximately 17 miles in an east-southeasterly direction before being picked up by the ship. The Sundew then proceeded to Sault Ste. Marie with the raft and three remaining crewmembers.

Although the raft's drift rate had been slowed down considerably by a sea-drogue over the side, wind and sea action still caused the drift of the raft.

Immediately prior to participating in the exercise, the Sundew had put down lighted ice buoys in St. Mary's river, closed Grays Reef and White Shoal light stations and taken aboard the crews of the station for transportation to St. Ignace and logged the Lansing Shoals light station for the last time before the holidays.

Monday will mark the station's first visit from the Sundew since that date.

Charlevoix Now Eligible For Flood Insurance

The National Flood Insurers Association (NFIA) has announced that flood insurance has become available for Charlevoix residential and non-residential properties. Damage from flooding is not covered in standard property insurance policies.

Private insurance agents and brokers are authorized to offer flood insurance to interested owners of residential and non-residential properties. Coverage on contents also will be sold to owners and occupants of such buildings.

The insurance industry is participating in this program through the National Flood Insurers Association, an organization representing about 125 insurance companies. These participating companies act as the servicing organization on behalf of the Association for the benefit of all agents, brokers and other companies.

The new flood coverage is being offered in accordance with requirements established by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) under the terms of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973. The government also participates in the flood program through premium equalization payments, so that subsidized cost will be in the range of the average insured's pocketbook.

The federal act requires that communities interested in becoming eligible for flood insurance must take action to restrict unwise land use in flood-prone areas. They must ask HUD to arrange for detailed studies of the flood hazard in the community so actuarial rates can be established.

The amount of flood insurance available at subsidized rates under the government's emergency program is limited to $35,000 for single-family residences, with maximum of $100,000 on all other types of residential and non-residential properties. Low-cost flood insurance for contents is limited to $10,000 for all residential property and $100,000 on non-residential properties. Tenants may insure contents separately.

The NFIA advises that anyone who is interested in buying flood coverage should contact his regular agent or broker for further assistance and information rates, policy limits and conditions and other important details.

Christmas Sales About Same

Charlevoix Merchants Seem to Hold On

Christmas business in Charlevoix may be down a little from last year, but all in all merchants seem to be holding their own, according to those interviewed by the Courier.

Bertha Sternamun of Oleson's Variety Store says they thought their business was going to be down but it picked up two weeks ago.

"People are waiting but they seem to be buying," she said, adding, sales figures are about the same as last year."

At the Shop of the Gulls Jeanine Wallace reports that her business is down a little. She says that it is not consistent, that she will have a couple of good days then a couple of poor ones.

Last summer was her best season in 12 years, according to Mrs. Wallace, she bought for an anticipated good fall and winter. However, she says she is "not concerned."

Dick Oestrike of Portside Sports reports that traffic in his store is down and that people are not buying as much. "Unit purchases are down about 30 percent," he says. "We also have fewer requests for charge accounts."

Oestrike believes that the decreased buying is due to higher food prices and prices of other necessities. "People have only so much to spend," is his reasoning.

Haggard's Bath & Bed, Inc. is doing a "pretty fair" business, according to Phyllis Haggard. "People shopped early. We had a good November, especially Thanksgiving weekend," she said.

Although some days and evenings are slow, Mrs. Haggard reports good business on Ladies' Night.

Robert Iless of Hess Furniture Company says that overall business is below last yenr but that furniture sales are pretty good. "We just haven't had as much traffic," he reports.

Reusch Jewelers is doing a fairly good business, according to Debbie LaWny. "Some evenings are kind of dead," she says, "but the special nights were good. Business is also usually good between four and six o'clock.

Vince Olach, manager of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, says that most merchants he has talked to say business is "a hair above last yenr" and others say they are not doing as well.

However, Olach thinks the average is about the same as last year. He believes that the Chamber's Christmas promotion helped merchants "keep their heads above water."

Police Starts Auxiliary

Charlevoix's police force will be getting a new muscle next spring.

The added strength will be coming in the form of an eight-man police auxiliary.

It's a first for Charlevoix, says Police Chief Jack Mol who will begin training his hand picked volunteers this week.

A police auxiliary, Mol says, simply adds strength to the existing force by riding as an extra person on patrol duty as well as helping with crowd control during athletic events and during one of Charlevoix's many summer activities.

Those who have volunteered to serve on the force will go through an intensive program covering everything from police patrol work to surveillance.

They'll also be studying how to conduct traffic stops and their roles when a patrol car must answer a complaint.

"We'll also discuss the criminal justice system as a whole."

The Charlevoix police chief said he wants to familiarize the volunteer force with the system so they understand what has to be done to accomplish the end.

"We will go over criminal or constitutional law," he added.

Mol says the force won't be allowed to carry weapons, but they will receive instruction in weaponry to become familiar with the department equipment.

They will also be uniformed.

Mol said he looks at the force as an aid and not a substitute for inanpower presently on the Charlevoix force.

Last year, for example, the chief said he had to ask the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department to help assist with crowds during the Venetian Festival because area law enforcement agencies were tied up on other assignments.

"And there are people in the community who are willing to do it."

Mol says Charlevoix will have better protection and that it will almost double the manpower.

He expects the force to be trained by May.

Charlevoix joins East Jordan, who has had a volunteer force for several years.

Library notes

Probably no book in recent months has created as much interest as "The Bermuda Triangle".

There are, as a matter of fact, three hot-selling books, all dealing with the Bermuda Triangle, a mysterious patch of the Atlantic Ocean stretching south from Bermuda to the Florida Coast and Puerto Rico.

During the past 30 years, it has claimed the lives of some 1,000 seamen and pilots. Each separate tragedy has been investigated, but no clues have ever been found. No floating salvage, no oil slick.

The ships and planes simply disappeared. In 1945, for example, five Navy torpedo bombers took off in perfect flying weather from Ft. Lauderdale. Two hours later the flight commander radioed that he was completely lost. Then there was silence. A rescue plane was dispatched, and it too disappeared. In all, six planes and 27 men vanished without a trace.

The author examines some of the theories which have been presented to explain this weird phenomena.

Are UFO's hijacking our aircraft and taking samples of our civilization to other planets? Are the disasters somehow tied in the the lost continent of Atlantis?

Expanding on this theory, Berlitz disecusses the possibility that a giant solar eyrstal lies on the ocean floor. Periodically, it is possible that passing ships and planes trigger the crystal, which jams their instruments and sucks them into the impassable deep. Whatever the truth, it is an absorb subject and this book is well worth your reading time.

"A Chance to Sit Down" by Meredith Daneman, is alight, pleasant novel, and this is just what many of our patrons ask

New County Survey

Our Soils Are Like People?

By BILL GRIMM
District Conservationist

The soil you are standing on — ever wonder much about it? How did it get here?

The published Soil Survey Report of Charlevoix County answers these questions and more too.

The report has a complete, acre by acre, soil map of the county. Along with the map are all kinds of interesting and useful information. How the different kinds of soil got there is a fascinating story.

It all started with the glaciers that once covered the state. The glacial ice melted from Charlevoix county some 8 to 12 thousand years ago. As a roadside snowbank melts in the spring, it leaves a thin cover of material collected over the winter. As the glacial ice melted it too left a covering of raw soil material over the surface of the land. The depth of this deposit ranges from aboot 75 to over 400 feet thick within the county.

Glacier Mover

The glacier was a good mover and mixer. Charlevoix County now has many different kinds of soil. Nearly all are "imported." As the ice melted, lake levels raised. New lakes and rivers were born only to die with the melting ice. Water, wind and other factors acted on the raw glacial debris to form the present dry soils.

In the stream bottoms, and depressions are dark colored mucks, sands and fine textured soils. All but the organic soils were brought and sorted by glacial meltwaters. The very coarse materials, such as boulders, stones and gravel were dropped by the fast moving water up stream.

Sand deposits were dropped by slower moving waters. Nearly all the streams of the county have deposits of sand along their courses. Some occur as terraces. They are much higher than present river levels.

The fine textured materials were dropped out in quiet water as in a lake or pond. Some of these productive "materiaid"; soils occur in odd places.

Plant Remains

Organic material is made up of deposits of plant remains.

After the glaciers withdrew from the area, water was left standing in depressions in outwash, lake and till plains. Grasses and wedges growing around the edges of these lakes died, and their remains fell to the bottom. Because of wetness, the plant remains did not decompose, but remained around the edge of the lake. Later, white cedar and other water-tolerant trees grew on the areas. As these trees died, their residue became part of the organic accumulation.

The lakes were eventually filled with organic material, and they developed into areas of muck and peat. In some of these areas, the plant remains subsequently decomposed.

In other areas, the materials had changed little since deposition. Soils of the Carbondale and Tawas series are an example of soils that formed in organic material.

Scenic Dunes

The scenic dunes along Lake Michigan probably came after the water levels receeded and exposed large sandy areas. The sand grains are frosted, rounded, and reduced in size by the constant friction as the grains were rolled, tumbled, and lifted to their present position.

The upland "glacial till" soils of the county occur mainly as the more hill portions of the county. These gently sloping to lilly landscapes are the general farming and tree fruit areas of the county. Soil texture range from sand to rich clay loams, often within a few feet. Whatever the giant glacial "untker" dlanped as it melted served as the "parents" of the soils we use today.

Soils are like people up a way. We get somethings from our parents, like the color of our eyes. Soils developed in ground of quartz are sandy. Our surroundings help shape our lives. A soil developed from sand in a low cold wet area will grow to be much different from the same sand that occurs on a warm dry hillside.

The Soil Report shows where the "different soils" occur. Besides the detailed soil map, there is a General Soil Map. It breaks the county into 10 broad soil areas. Each has its own history, pattern of soils, and shape of the landscape. Yet all were spawned by the glaciers.

The general soil map will be useful to those who want a general idea of Charlevoix County soils, where they occur, or want to deal with them in a general way.

Besides telling about the different soils and their history, there is information on their capabilities and limitations for different uses. You will want to know more about the soil that "supports" us. Become familiar with and use the Charlevoix County Soil Survey.

Motor Boat Beaver Islander Ends Another Successful Season

The Beaver Islander, which operates between St. James harbor on Beaver Island and the mainland at Charlevoix, closed out its 1974 navigation season Friday, according to Lawrence McDonough, business manager for the company.

The 96-foot ship made a round trip between the island and Charlevoix and then returned to its winter berth here later in the day.

In recent weeks, island businesses as well us island residents have been stockpiling supplies of every description in anticipation of its comparative isolation once winter sets in.

From now until navigation opens in mid-April, all fresh fruits and vegetables, dairy supplies including milk plus emergency items will be flown in.

From now until navigation opens in April, the only contacts with Beaver Island located northwest of here in northern Lake Michigan, will be by plane.

Joseph McPhillips, who operates McPhillips Flying Service out of the Charlevoix airport, has the mail contract and also will fly supplies and passengers between here and the island.

Staples of every description, canned goods, liquor, beer, wine, soft drinks plus small household items such as kitchen utensils are stockpiled, making it necessary for grocery store, restaurants, and taverns to keep a four months inventory on hand. Builders also are forced to keep materials in stock.

In announcing the closing for the season, McDonough said that effective in the spring, builders on the island

Merry Christmas

Christmas Day for patients in the Charlevoix Area Hospital didn't go unnoticed this year thanks to concerned citizens.

The hospital invited two family members or friends of each patient in the hospital that day to have a complimentary dinner with the patient.

The Christmas dinner included everything from the traditional turkey right down to pumpkin pie and whipped cream for dessert.

He said that the Beaver Island Boat Co. which operates the motorships Beaver Islander and the South Shore between here and the island had had 'quite a successful season' despite the economy and the high cost of gasoline.

The motorship South Shore ceased operating in October.

THANKS TO both the Charlevoix Lion's Club and Lake Charlevoix Cable T.V., Christmas was bright for area families. Charlevoix Lion's Club members provided 25 families with food for Christmas from the can goods they collected at the Market, Oleson's and Edwards. Athletic Association.

Faust, now planning a career as a physical education instructor, cited Charlevoix High School's athletic director, Dale Burge, as a primary influence in his academic direction. He described Burge as an educator "really interested in a student's future. He knew I wanted to study physical education and play football at college," Faust stated, "and he helped ferret out the school that would provide me with the best opportunity to pursue both interests."

Faust, the son of Rev. and Mrs. Elmer Faust of 106 State St., is a member of the United Methodist Church, Charlevoix, where his father is the pastor. Last summer Faust was employed by the City of Charlevoix's recreation department for Barbara is a ballet dancer and against the faseinating background of her public life is the human story of a young woman torn between the demands of her career, a love affair, and her yearning for personal freedom. This a first novel, told with humor and remarkable insight into a woman's feelings about love, marriage, mutherhood and career.

"The Race", by Eunice Walkup and Oscar Otis is difficult to review, because so much happened in this exciting novel about the racetrack.

He faces the blizzard of problems, how many horses, what kind of weather, how many visitors?

But this year there are new problems: a threatened labor strike that could prevent the running of the Race, the possibility of arson which threatens the safety of the world's most valuable thoroughbreds, and a murder and kidnapping that are mysteriously connected with the Derby.

It's an exciting, absorbing story written by a sports writer and columnist who know all about horse racing.

CHARLEVOIX CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

Rev. Alan Mettler, minister
(Mrs.) Jane Fiedler, secretary.

Followers of Jesus, the Nazarene chose the name "Church of the Nazarene" to identify their fellowship, when they organized in 1908. They are evangelistic and missionary in spirit and program. It has become an international church, preaching, teaching, healing, singing, through worship services, revivals, and many types of missionary endeavor. It believes the cardinal doctrines of Evangelical churches, with a sense of mission to present and conserve the Wesleyan doctrine of heart holiness as an experience of sanctification as a second work of grace, to be followed by a victorious Christian life.

The church in Charlevoix was organized in 1967. The Easter Sunrise service in 1969 was the first one to be held in their new building, which was built by a third generation Nazarene. It is supported by tithes and offerings.

The Sunday School is held at 10 a.m. each Sunday, with classes for all ages. During the year, attention is given to Vacation Bible School, Caravans, camps for boys and girls, youth institutes, and Christian Service Training classes.

The Nazarene Young Peoples Society ministers to juniors, teens, senior highs, and young adults at 6:00 Sunday evenings. Between Sundays, a variety of activities, devotional, social, educational, and recreational are enjoyed.

The Nazarene World Missionary Society meets once a month, to cultivate interest in missions, through reading, prayers, giving of offerings, and it(mis-Men and women and children participate. Bandages and articles are made and mailed with supplies to hospitals and schools in foreign countries.

A Bible study class for women is held weekly in a home, with time for fellowship and prayer.

The Church of the Nazarene supports several colleges, a top-ranking Publishing House, the largest denominational Publishing company of gospel music, a world wide radio program in English, Spanish, and Portugese, and missionary enterprises in over fifty countries.

This church is not a separist group, but cooperates with other churches in the promotion of civic righteousness through united efforts and projects.

MOUFLON

Mouflons are the wild sheep of Europe. They were nearly extinct but are now protected on several mountain ranges in Europe and two Mediterranean islands. Mouflons are small but closely resemble the American Bighorn Sheep. The large horns curve back over the head. Mouflons are very sure-footed while travelling the rocky ledges.

The Commonwealth of Australia is the only continent entirely in the southern hemisphere. It is about the size of the United States without Hawaii and Alaska and has about the same climate. The capital is Canberra but the largest city is the port of Sydney. Australia recognizes the Queen of England. Australia provides administration for many island groups in the South Pacific as well as for Papua on the island of New Guinea. English is the main language of Australia and the major religions are Roman Catholicism and Protestantism.

Dahomey is a small country in western Africa that is about the size of Tennessee. Formerly part of French West Africa, Dahomey borders 4 countries and has a coastline on the Gulf of Guinea. The capital is Porto-Novo but the largest city is Cotonou. The major languages and religions are tribal, but French and Roman Catholicism are common.

'Taxless' Food Hits Area

Dick Edwards just scratched his head.

Gwen Arnold rolled her eyes.

And LeRoy Buchanan said it was too early to tell.

They were all reacting to Michigan's first day without a sales tax on food and drugs.

"Today's the first day of the tax," Edwards said grimly.

Push Button

Edwards pushed a button and the machine went: Beep....Beep....Click....Click and then a white sales slip came flying out.

Like a new digital clock, green lights flashed on the front of the metal box to show how much change the customer had coming.

"See, it's real simple," said the salesman.

The cashier could only roll her eyes like she was wondering what kind of nut the salesman was.

"All I want to do is make sure I have your telephone number."

Edwards just shrugged his shoulders and replied: "I guess so."

Tax Proposal

"This is a result of everyone voting yes on the sales tax proposals," he continued to mutter under his breath.

Eliminating the tax on food and drugs meant Edwards had to spend at least $17,000 for a new cash register that could help a cashier sort the taxable and none taxable items.

Michigan voters indicated they wanted to see an end to tax by voting for approval of Proposal C during the last November election.

Area drugstores don't seem too hard pressed about the move because most of them didn't actually make additional tax charges on items in the store.

For some grocery stores, the change has almost been a nightmare though.

Buy Registers

They've either had to buy new cash registers or hold up grocery lines by separating taxable and non-taxable items before ringing them up.

"I think it's very-nerve racking," says Gwen Arnold.

"Once we catch on it won't be so bad."

Edwards says one of his biggest headaches is going to be handling his charge customers because the charge ledger cards won't fit the new machines.

"I don't know exactly how I'm going to do it yet," he said.

While Edwards was struggling through his first doy with both new cash registers and the "taxless sales", LeRoy Buchanan, manager of Oleson's Food Store in Charlevoix said things seemed normal.

New Equipment

He said fortunately his store employees had a week to try out their new equipment before the "taxless groceries" went into effect.

"I'm kinda waiting for people to see this tax deal," he said.

To help confused customers, Buchanan posted signs furnished from his Spartan Store headquarters that explains what items are now excluded from taxation.

"You can use it on what you buy with food stamps," he said as a simple rule of thumb to figure out what gets taxed or not.

If you can buy an item with food stamps, it probably is a non-taxable food.

For example, alcohol and paper products cannot be purchased with food stamps and are to be taxed.

Same Complications

He said there will be some complications with the repeal of food taxes.

For example, If you purchase chicken at the meat counter you don't have to pay tax on it, but If you buy it ready to eat at the delicatessen counter, you must pay a tox.

See Food page 8

DICK EDWARDS of Edwards IGA looks at his new cash register with amazement. His customers did to. It's all because Michigan residents recently appealed Michigan's food and drug tax.

No One -- That's the Problem

Guess Who's Coming to Dinner?

A decision by the Charlevoix County Commission to provide its prisoners with catered meals drew sharp criticism from local restaurants this week.

Because there were so few prisoners being lodged in the county jail, the commission decided to abandon hiring a cook and instead have it catered.

So, the commission accepted the offer of Heinz Leutheuser of Leutheuser Restaurant to cater all meals to the county jail at the rate of three meals per day for $4.

However, several restaurant owners are upset because the meals weren't let out on bid.

"The county doesn't have to bid anything," said County Commissioner Ralph Richardson.

"It is not a requirement that the county has to put anything up to bids."

Richardson said that while the road commission is required by law to bid anything over $5,000, the state auditors told him that this is not true for the county.

However, the county commissioner soid it was a general practice that they did.

In this particular case, Richardson said the county found it necessary late last month to make a change because the county has so few prisoners.

So Richardson said the Sheriff's Committee of the County Commission asked County Sheriff Phil Sumner to explore possibilities of catering.

Since the middle of October until December 21, Richardson said the county paid approximately $1,300 to serve 400 meals because they had to hire cooks and buy food.

Because it was the county commission's desire to have a firm commitment by Jan. 1, Richardson the commission said they were interested in Leutheusers.

"At the end of 60 days if he wants to renegotiate we can do it."

Bill Cooper of King's Restaurant said he was not upset with Leutheusers doing it, he was concerned how it was handled.

"I contacted all the other restaurants in town and no one knew anything about it," Cooper said about the bidding.

"No one knew about it until they read it in the paper and I heard it on the radio."

Cooper said he contacted the county clerk, who told him his office had nothing to do with it.

Cooper said he was vice president of the Charlevoix County Republicans and planned on taking the matter up at their meeting on Jan. 8.

"It's going to be an official investigation through the Republican Party," he said.

"It was handled in an illegal manner.

Cooper said he was going to insist that all information regarding the situation be made public, as well as call Congressman Philip Ruppe, State Senator Robert Davis and Representative Ralph Outling.

"I want this sort of thing stopped," he said.

"We've had too much of this damn thing in Watergate and I'm not going to let it happen at o local level."

Cooper said there has to be more communication between the public and the commission.

Admitting that he would not have been able to handle the meals for $4 a day, Dave Julieret did say he was upset it wasn't let out on bid.

"When any organization is going to do it at the people's expense, f feel everyone should have an opportunity to bid on it."

Julieret said he called a county commissioner, who claimed it had to be done on short notice.

"This to me is no excuse," he said.

"I feel everyone should have an opportunity to bid on it."

Julieret said he would have at least like have seen the specifications for bidding on it.

Charlevoix County Commission Makes New Committee Selection

By FRAN MARTIN

County government entered its 107th year Thursday when the Charlevoix county board of commissioners met for its organizational meeting.

Six new members, all elected on the Democratic ballot in November, took their seats on the 15 man board at that time.

Harry E. Griffin of Walloon Lake was elected chairman of the board by an 8-7 margin over a second candidate for the post, Clyde Cunningham. Donald B. Meggison, who has completed his first year on the board, received unanimous approval as vice chairman. Griffin, who had served as vice chairman for two years, was supported by Clayton Smith and the six new members of the board.

Immediately following the election, the meeting was recessed to allow the chairman to appoint the committees for the year.

In the past the board had eight committees with members serving as members of several committees. Griffin, in naming the new committees, has reduced the number to four with each member serving as chairman of a given committee within the major committee.

He said the purpose was to allow various committees to do their work at the same time rather than waiting for a member to be free from another committee.

"f feel that this should facilitate the action of the various committees" Griffin said in announcing the appointments.

The committee appointments which were approved by a vote of 14-0 with one member, Ralph Richardson, abstaining, are as follows: Ways and Means: I. Lee Moerland; Finance; fra f.. Davis. Appropriations and Settlement with County Treasurer, and Clyde Cunningham, Salaries, Personnel, Judicial and Legislative.

Public Safety and Property: Donald B. Meggison, Building and Grounds and Resolutions; Ralph Richardson, Sheriff, Civil Defense and Claims; Ralph Harmon, County Roads, Ironton Ferry and Airports; Barney Milstein, Insurance, Advertising and Printing.

Health, Welfare and Planning: Martin Paul, District Health; Melvin Niswander, Welfare, Child Guidance, Veterans Affairs and Commission on Aging; Oscar Ward, County Planning, Parks and Building Codes; Rudolph Florenski, Agriculture, Conservation and Forestry.

Equalization: Delbert Ingalls, Equalization; Michael Fulkerson, Apportionment; Clayton Smith, Township and City Clerks Report and Rejected Back Taxes.

Statutory Finance (Auditing) committee: Moerland, Cunningham and Griffin.

Planner Says Still Hope

EDA Downs Ironton Bridge Study

By DAVE PITT

The Economic Development Administration (EDA) has washed any chances of a bridge feasibility study at fronton.

The EDA unofficially told Charlevoix County they're not interested in giving a grant to determine the feasibility of constructing a bridge across the fronton narrows.

James Collison of the EDA, told Charlevoix County Planner William Mercer that no money is available for the study.

"Funding for this type of project is difficult to obtain because this type of technical grant is very rare," Mercer said.

The Charlevoix planner said the feasibility study isn't necessarily dead however.

"We'll sit on the project and wait for something to break when we might get some grant dollars," he said.

"There is always the long shot possibility that the development of an expressway into this area of the county would include the construction of a bridge in the fronton Narrows," Mercer said. "A bridge could tie together the east and west portions of the county into the expressway."

Mercer emphasized the county is not seeking agrant to build a bridge, but is seeking a grant for a feasibility study. The county is attempting to determine whether or not a bridge can physically be built in the fronton area and whether or not its construction would derive enough benefit to the county to merit its expense.

At the present time, as in the past, the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix tends to break the county up into fragments. The only link remotely tieing the county together is the Ironton Ferry.

The ferry, however, only operates approximately nine months of the year and is capable of transporting merely four cars per trip across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

It was Mercer's contention in the application of a bridge across the Narrows it would undy the county, increase job opportunities, expand the commercial market, decrease travel time for police and ambulance runs and generally make transportation more convenient.

"Due to the shape of Lake Charlevoix, and the smaller South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, a peninsula exists in central Charlevoix County. This peninsula is isolated from the Charlevoix market area, the county seat, and medical and public safety facilities located in the city of Charlevoix. Similarily, lands

The appointments of Martin Paul and Melvin Niswander to the Charlevoix county Commission on Aging were approved with the recommendation that they contact Mrs. Thora Kotowich and Harry Tompkins, former commissioners who worked with this Commission.

Ira L. (Bob). Davis was named to represent the board of commissioners on the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission. He succeeds John Kujawski on this board.

Approved the appointment of Oscar Ward to a three-year term on the Recreation and Parks Commission. He succeeds Barney Milstein whose term expired. The commission is a f0-member board.

Named the Public Safety and Ways and Means Committees to represent the county at the negotiations meetings scheduled for f0 a.m. Jan. 9 and 10 between Local 2f4, International Brotherhood and the Sheriff's Department.

CHARLEVOIX'S NEW Housing Commission met informally last Friday to draw its strategy to construct a senior citizen housing facility for Charlevoix. Their first few months will be spent exploring other projects and ways to finance the project. Members present were Mrs. Darell Dinwiddie (left to right), Stan Hammond, Ralph Hamilton and Ralph Shapton. Robert Cook, absent, was elected president of the commission.

Canisters in Stores

March of Dimes Plans Drive

Beginning January 20, they'll be out knocking on doors in the county for contributions.

Canisters are already in many local businesses for those who wish to donate to the fight against birth defects.

"Birth defects affect over 200,000 children a year," says Janet Ready, March of Dimes campaign director for Charlevoix County.

"And many of those cases would be prevented with proper care before as well as after birth."

Mrs. Ready, a local nurse who earlier taught pre-natal classes at Charlevoix Area Hospital, says that the pregnant mother has a big responsibility.

Mrs. Ready said she has to make sure she is eating the right foods, avoiding harmful drugs, getting enough exercise and seeing her doctor regularly.

"And as soon as her baby is born, of course, she must provide proper care and attention to give the infant a healthy start in life," she said.

Mrs. Ready said the March of Dimes is helping this process is two ways.

Through its medical programs, the March of Dimes is trying to seek out and provide help for "high-risk" mothers, as well as make available the most up-to-date medical services for babies in immediate danger right after delivery.

Mrs. Ready said that contributions to the March of Dimes will help set up pre- and postnatal care facilities, support current medical service programs and finance research into the underlying causes of birth defects.

Although in small number, Mrs. Ready said the March of Dimes continues to help old polio victims.

Dave Jailleret of Jilleret's Restaurant is offering free coffee and coffee cake to patrons on Coffee Day Jan. 21 and he will be donating the proceeds to the March of Dimes.

Anyone having questions or wish to donate their time should contact Mrs. Janet Ready at 547-9724.

Where Will the Highway Hit?

Planners Select Route Options

Charlevoix County hopes the state will be looking at two alternatives when it examines possible highway corridors through the northwestern lower peninsula during the next few months.

The Charlevoix County Planning Commission indicated they were interested in a proposed corridor that joins U.S. 31 and I31 at Mesick, just north of Cadillac and extends through to Vanderbilt.

This alternative cuts through the southeastern portion of the county.

The commission also recommended the state investigate a second alternative that joins U.S. 31 and 131 just south of Williamsburg and continues Northward through Bellaire between East Jordan and Boyne City and up to Petoskey before heading towards Indian River.

Both alternatives join I-75.

County Planning Commissioners made the decision at the request of the Michigan Department of State Highways who has been attempting to put together highway transportation alternatives for a freeway in the northwest region.

Portions of U.S. 31 and 131 were proposed for improvement in 1972 under Public Act 327.

John Ouderkirk, team location leader for State Highway Department, told the planning commission they would base their selection of highway alternatives on information obtained from meetings, questionnaires and other correspondence.

From this information, the state was able to determine 16 areas of interest ranging from protection of the environment to no growth in agriculture.

With this information, as well as consideration of rail, air and water traffic, the highway department was able to develop 41 alternatives.

Ouderkirk said he was interested in the commission selecting several of the alternatives for closer evaluation.

Charlevoix Planning Commissioners have been pouring over proposed alternatives for several months.

During their December meeting, they indicated by resolution that there was interest in a limited access freeway extending north to Mackinaw City with U.S. 31 and 131 joining south of Charlevoix.

They also said they were interested in routes that had the least possible damage to the environment and with the greatest economic benefit to the area.

Commissioner Don Berlage emphasized early in the meeting that it has to be assumed a highway will be coming through the North.

"Then we will have to decide whether or not we want it physically in the county," he continued.

"If it does, we should have an active role in its planning."

Commissioner Tom Wieland said of all the possible alternatives, an expressway is going to help.

"Having a highway ending at Grayling is not going to help heavy industry, but it will help the tourist industry," added Commissioner Dennis Jason.

Speaking for area farmers, Wieland said many have problems getting fertilizer deliveries in the winter.

"They just don't like to come in this area because there aren't any decent roads," he said, adding that often a farmer is forced to drive to Gaylord to pick up his delivery.

Commissioner Ed Wojan said it seemed apparent that the county, if it was going to have a freeway, should decide whether it wants it to cut the county in two parts or only go through a portion.

The commission decided it wanted the state to look at both alternatives.

Ouderkirk said the county's recommendation will now go to the regional transportation advisory committee, who will in turn evaluate it with other recommendations from other counties.

That recommendation will then go to the full Northwest Regional Planning and Economic Development Commission and pass it on to the state.

Ouderkirk said the state will also add input from what downstate areas of the alternatives and prepare it for public hearing.

"I'm quite optimistic that we will arrive at a good set of alternatives," he said.

The state highway official said that while they have received some responses that nothing should be done, it has been only a few.

"There are some that would just as soon build a brick-wall and keep everyone out," he said.

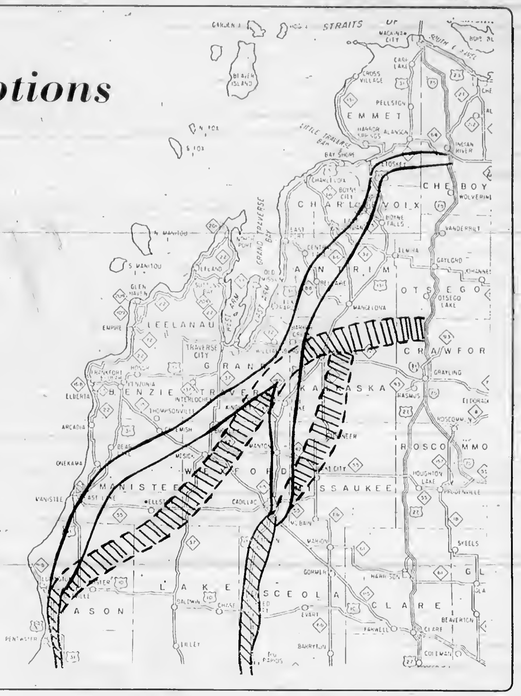
He gave no indication that the project would be scraped because of the nation's present fuel crisis and possible shortage of highway revenue generated from the state gasoline tax.

Emmet County Planning Commissioners haven't reached a decision as to what alternatives they are interested in and will be meeting with Ouderkirk on Jan. 6.

Antrim County has favored a route that has U.S. 31 sweeping by Frankfort and joining with U.S. 131 west of Kalkaska and linking up with I-75 just north of Grayling.

Receiving equal consideration was a route that improves the present U.S. 31 and 131 routes.

The City of Charlevoix has said they would like to see no improvement with the money being allocated for the project going towards the improvement of Northern Michigan rail service.



Blood Drive Starts Today

The first Bloodmobile of 1975 is scheduled to visit Charlevoix on Tuesday, Jan. 7, according to Mrs. Jerry Drost, publicity chairman.

The city's quota for the Bloodmobile at this time has been set at 125 units, Mrs. Drost said.

In making the announcement, Mrs. Drost said that Charlevoix county Bloodmobile chairmen have been informed that the county's quota for the year has been increased from 725 to 845 units.

The Community Church of God Fellowship hall on West Hurlbut Ave. has been designated as the site of the Bloodmobile this time. The hours will be from 2 p.m. until 8 p.m. on Tuesday.

Mrs. Robert Tollas is general chairman and Mrs. David Fowler is appointment chairman. Anyone who has not been contacted may call Mrs. Fowler at 547-9314 for an appointment.

Young people in the community are reminded that 17 year olds may now donate blood with parental consent.

Mrs. Drost said that while appointments are desirable, walk-ins are invited to come in at their convenience.

The Bloodmobile will be in East Jordan the following day, Jan. 8. Mrs. Sam Carlyle who can be reached at 1.2-5-7648 is general chairman of the event to be held at St. Joseph parish hall. The hours will be the same, from 2 to 8 p.m.

New Soil Survey To be Presented

The Charlevoix County Soil Survey Report will be presented to the public on Tuesday, January 14 at 8 p.m. in the fellowship hall of the Christ Lutheran Church in Boyne City.

Everyone is welcome to attend and receive a complimentary copy of this soil survey report.

Clayton Healey, chairman of the Charlevoix Soil & Water Conservation District will be in charge of the program. Ed Rebman, County Extension Director and Secretary of the District will introduce the guests.

The principal address will be presented by Arthur Cratty, State Conservationist of the U.S. Soil Conservation Service from Lansing, Michigan. Dr. Dale E. Harpstead Chairman of the Crop & Soil Science Department at Michigan State University will describe the use of the soil report in agriculture.

Dick Larson, Soil Scientist of the U.S. Soil Conservation service at Traverse City will explain how to use the soil report. Bill Grimm, District Conservationist of the U.S. Soil Conservation service will tell about the history of the Soil report.

Ed Rebman said that this Soil Report is an inventory of the soil and water resources of Charlevoix County.

It will assist all landowners and users of the County's natural resources to use the land within its capability, treat it according to it's needs and to evaluate the potential and limitations of all lands.

New Permit

Over 500,000 Annual Motor Vehicle Permits for 1975 have been distributed to state parks throughout Michigan, reports the Department of Naturnl Resources.

The $5 permit entitles the owner entry into all state parks for the entire year. Also available is a special $1 annual permit for senior citizens.

All funds derived from the annual permit system are used for further park land acquisition and capital development projects.

County Residents Should Reconsider Highways

Planning commissions in northern Michigan are in the middle of selecting highway corridor alternatives to improve road transportation through the northwest portion of the lower peninsula.

Last week, the Charlevoix County Planning Commission indicated to the State Highway Department they were interested in studying two alternatives in further detail.

While it can be argued that our present road situation should be improved to promote our economy, we seriously question the need of an interstate corridor linking U.S. 31 and 131 to I-75.

Do we really want any more super systems going through our environment?

We would first ask the state highway department to consider the environmental affects another highway will have in our area.

Our tendency would be to favor the improvement of an existing highway network and to work on improving other modes of transportation to the area.

The state has already demonstrated its ability to expand other transportation modes with the initiation of a new commuter flight service between previously unserved areas such as from Detroit to Gaylord.

With the rising cost of gasoline and a projected energy crisis, we are still urging the state to consider improving our railroad network.

Railroads can still be an efficient form of transportation to this area if it is handled properly.

Charlevoix City Council recently demonstrated how important they feel the railroads are by adopting a resolution asking the state highway department to use monies intended for highway improvement for railroads instead.

We urge other units of government to follow suit.

It is still not too late to insist on what can be done with Michigan highways.

Charlevoix County's recommendation now goes on to the regional transportation advisory commission and then the Northwest Regional Economic and Development Commission.

Then it will go to the state highway department before coming back in public hearing.

If you are not aware of our present proposed highway situation we suggest you check this issue of the Charlevoix Courier and contact either the Charlevoix County Planning Department or Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation in Lansing.

Housing Group Needs Support to be Successful

Charlevoix's new Housing Commission is off and running.

Last week, they held their first organizational meeting and began to chart the direction they wanted to take.

Their first objective will be to develop a senior citizen housing project for the area.

Charlevoix needs this type of housing for the city's senior citizens and we encourage the commission to move as fast as possible.

We think the city has made some good appointments for housing commissioners and ask everyone to lend their full support.

The commission's first step will be to form their own by-laws and investigate other area institutions.

At the same, they will be exploring financing for the project.

We support their efforts and wish them well, we are sure the senior citizens of the community will appreciate their efforts.

Society Organizes

The first meeting of the Charlevoix County Humane Society will be held on January 22 in the Community Room at Charlevoix City Hall at 7:30 p.m.

This will be their first annual meeting as a legally organized society.

The Courier has encouraged this group to form so that they may take on the job of, organizing a dog shelter with the county.

Charlevoix County has been in need of a Humane Society for many years and we are pleased to see that it is at last going to have one.

We hope this will not be a typical social-gathering for animal enthusiasts, but rather group that is willing to work hard and take a job that has to be done.

Letters to the editor

Resident Distrusts Kissinger

Dear Editor;

President Ford in his first address to Congress, said "A strong defense is the surest way to peace." In view of the President's pledge to the American people to maintain the strongest possible deafness, his acceptance of the strategic arms agreement negotiated by Dr. Kissinger is terribly shocking. A realistic observing of the Vladivostok pact shows that the Soviet Union is allowed a new measure of military superiority over the United States.

Like former President Nixon, Mr. Ford has yielded or supports the "peace in our time" rhetoric of Secretary of State (Heinrich) Henry Kissinger, who in my opinion has questionable loyalties, and who sacrifices American security in order to obtain Soviet smiles.

Congress, which has the duty to maintain our defense forces, should reject the enormously damaging agreement subscribed to by Dr. Kissinger. The reason for this has been excellently speeled out in an editorial in "The Wall Street Journal." The Journal reveals that the Vladivostok pact "allows the Soviet Union a missile force three times as large as the American one when measured by the most relevant criterion." The Journal goes on to say that "In terms of American security interests the agreement must be seen as another step along the path to eventual Soviet strategic superiority."

Senator James Buckley (R-N.Y.) charged the Soviets with cheating on the Salt I agreement, even before President Ford announced the Vladivostok pact. In a speech October 31, Senator Buckley reported Soviet construction of additional missile silos under the guise of command and control facilities. He further noted the development of a land-mobile missile which the U.S. specifically declared would be inconsistent with Salt I. Sen. Buckley rightly charged that U.S. citizens are not being fully informed of the Soviet violations.

What is Henry Kissinger up to? "The Wall Street Journal" reports that "Neither the Presidential offer nor the Soviet counter-offer was known to the Joint Chiefs of Staff prior to the agreement. The Secretary of Defense was apparently cut in at the last moment while the Presidential party was in Vladivostok, and he was in Washington. The party in Vladivostok, some 140 persons, included no military representatives." My question again is: What is Kissinger doing that even our highest military personnel are not permitted to know?

I think the American people realize, that a far greater seandal is involved here than anything involved in Watergate. I say it is scandalous beyond words that the security of the American people should be compromised by Dr. Kissinger's secret negotiations and that the Secretary of Defense, James Schlesinger, should not have a leading role in every phase of arms negotiations according to law, the Secretary of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff are the principle defense advisors to the President.

Dr. Kissinger has yielded vital strategic advantages for promises–that have always been disregarded and broken–from the Soviet Union. You remember, the U.S. entered the Salt II talks insisting on equality of throw-weight in the giant missiles with multiple warheads. Again the U.S. totally abandoned that position. Dr. Kissinger – Russia's man?–agreed to a throw-weight and warhead numbers. He equated our small missiles with the U.S.S.R.'s giant missiles.

Does the Congress and do the American people think that it doesn't make any difference if Russia enjoys crushing superiority in nuclear, as well as, other armaments? If so, they will approve the Kissinger-negotiated pact. But, if Congress and the American people believe that the survival of our United States and our liberties as Americans would be directly threatened by an all-powerful Soviet Union, then the Vladivostok agreement must be rejected, and NOW!

Have we forgotten the Soviet invasion of Hungary in the 1950's and of Czechoslovakia in 1968? Do we Americans believe the Soviets are building the most powerful weapons in history for no reason?

Why hasn't our Congressman spoken up on this issue? Where are you Mr. Ruppe? If Americans have any instinct for survival, they should raise a mighty cry to Congress as a whole and their Congressman in particular to reject what Henry Kissinger has wrought.

But I can almost hear someone say: I better not become involved, because of what others may say, after all, who am I to question people like Ford or Kissinger? Let me close this letter with a quote from Aleksander I. Solzhenitsyn's book, "The Gulag Archipelago," on page 178 where he says: "In keeping silent about evil, in burying it so deep within us that no sign of it appears on the surface, we are implanting it, and it will rise up a thousandfold in the future." Let this be a warning to us all. You better grab a pen and write your Congressman, after all, this is what he was elected for, to protect our National Security.

Sincerely yours,
Richard Friske

Former Queen Upset

Dear Editor:

In 1971, I was a contestant in the annual Miss Charlevoix pageant.

It was made clear to the contestants and to the public that the new Miss Charlevoix would be given the gate receipts from the pageant night.

However when the time came for the money to be given to me, the manager of the Chamber of Commerce, at that time, informed me that the gate receipts, promised me, were to be submitted into the funds of the Chamber of Commerce.

The governor himself is burned because his Democratic opponent Sander Levin backed tax repeal to the point where it became the hottest campaign issue last November in Michigan.

Levin insisted on new revenues would be needed if the two taxes were repealed. He even called in expert witnesses who said it could be done if Michigan's bureaucrats were willing to pull in their belts.

Although Milliken won re-election as governor, he lost the referendum on food and drugs. And, good sport that he is, he is going to see to it that we get socked again—good and hard—just so we know who is boss.

Can Michigan live on its reduced income?

Of course it can. You're living on your reduced income, aren't you?

In fact, the quality of state government should improve substantially when state employes realize they must actually compete with each other for the fewer dollars remaining.

There are so many ways for Michigan to save money they boggle the mind.

Our amply-paid legislators, for starters, could turn down the $2,000 annual salary increase recently approved by the legislative Compensation Commission. That's a big bundle by itself. Besides, who among your friends and acquaintances is receiving a $2,000 pay increase this year. Let's have a show of hands.

But the salaries of elected lawmakers are a drop in the water cooler compared to the bloated salaries of thousands upon thousands of appointed government functionaries who would be well paid—nay! high paid—at one half or one quarter of what they are now drawing from the public trough.

I wouldn't be surprised if the entire deficit couldn't be made up from the executive payroll—without a man, woman or child going hungry.

Furthermore there must be literally dozens upon dozens of mariginal state programs that either could be cut to the bone—or eliminated entirely—and you and I would never know the difference.

Should you write your senator and representative to tell him to turn thumbs down on new taxes?

You probably would be wiser to save your ink to sign your unemployment checks. The governor and legislature are committed to new taxes and that, my friends, is that.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

You can't pick up a newspaper nowadays without seeing a story about how Gov. Milliken and his gang down in Lansing are planning to slop new taxes on us to replace the levies on food and prescription drugs which died Jan. 1.

I haven't read a word in months about anyone who believes the state should cut its own spending in order to live within its reduced income.

Nosiree! The fellows we send to Lansing seem to agree that the rotten populace who voted down the taxes on food and drugs must be punished with new taxes. In both the House and Senate, new taxes are as inevitable as tomorrow's layoffs.

Good Lord! Isn't there anyone in Ingham County capable of reading between the lines on the food and drug tax referendum?

Is there no one in official Lansing smart enough to interpret the "no" vote as a cry for help from the people of Michigan?

Do our lawmakers live in a world so different from our own that they fail to realize that rejection of the tax on food and drugs was our way of serving notice that our backs are up against the wall in these times of economic distress?

We couldn't have made it plainer if we had marched to Lansing and heaped our empty wallets on the capitol steps.

Yet no one seems to have gotten the message.

Pliers are Explained

By Jim Fitzgerald

The question most frequently asked me by my adoring public is how do I think of things to write about.

"It is easy," I always answer. "I just have to look at the world around me. For example, I just have to look at my right hand to see that monkey wrench there and I know readers would want me to explain how come I am carrying a monkey wrench."

Which serves me right for marrying my adoring public. But she kept hanging around, stewing my path with rose petals, and I was flattered. I'd never had my own personal strewer before. In only a few months she was promising to love, honor and strew forever and I agreed. I didn't have sense enough to ask a rose petal what it meant to be really strewed.

So they are pliers. Big deal. It's not important what they are. The important thing is why I am carrying them. You may ask if I have suddenly become handy around the house. And I would have to request that you define your terms.

I always thought I was handy around the house. Just last month I put up the storm windows, took down the summer porch, and softened the water. Yes, I still fill the bathtub and soften the water with a hammer). That took care of 3 Saturdays and on the 4th Saturday I rested and my adoring public looked out the window at neighbor Bill who is constructing a 5-story patio in his backyard. "I certainly like a man who takes an interest in his home," she said.

Being handy around the house is not enough for her. I should "take an interest" in things. Last summer she said, "I certainly like a man who takes an interest in his bushes." I immediately went outside and asked a bush how his kids were, how things were going on the job, and if he had ever harbored 2 birds that weren't as good as 1 bird in a hand? That stupid bush never even answered me.

You'd better take more interest in things around here," I told the bush, "or my wife will mow you and strew you."

Lately I've been taking a lot of interest in a local appliance store and our TV set. Which explains the pliers.

Pay attention. The channel turner busted 3 months ago. The loss was immediately reported to Mr. GE. He didn't have any turners in stock because they cost only $2. Appliance stores never stock anything that costs less than $100 for fear somcone might see it and want to buy it.

But Mr. GE said he would send away for a turner. In the meantime, everytime I wanted to change the channels I could change my mind instead. Or I could use a nutcracker, he said. This was confusing, almost tragic, because I crack nuts with a hammer so the shells will be well-crumbled, the better to strew. But my mechanical aptitude came to the rescue. Through trial and cursing I discovered the channel stem can be turned with a monkey wrench which is sometimes called a pair of pliers.

A month later I checked back with Mr. GE. Still no turner. He hadn't ordered it yet. He can't simply order 1 measly $2 turner. The order must be worth at least $50. I guess I must wait until 24 other people bust their turners. I am having a holster made for my pliers.

So now my adoring public knows how I think of things to write about. It is as easy as explaining the pliers in my hand, or the banana in my ear.

Onward and Upward, and Happy Strew-Year.

Meet Charlevoix ....Richard Krueger

A lot has been happening ot the Charlevoix Area Hospital In the last few months in the way of plant improvements and staff additions.

Today, the Charlevoix Courier asks hospitel administrotor Richard Krueger to brief us on what these changes are.

Krueger has had over 20 years of hospital experience and has been the Charlevoix Area Hospital administrator for 3½-years.

Prior to coming to Charlevoix, he was an assistant administrator at Ishpeming and in Stanley, Wisconsin.

He holds a bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

He and his wife, Kathleen, have three children.

KRUEGER: I think of Charlevoix Hospital as being a primary care facility, as opposed to what is commonly referred to as a secondary facility. Primary Care means being able to care for the major of the health care needs of the people in the area. There are certain types of care that we don't attempt to handle because number one this would be a duplication of usually a very expensive type of core when used seldomly. This includes such things as heart surgery or organ transplants. It is expensive because of the highly trained people and equipment involved. This is a very small percentage of the health care that is done. We are concerned with the majority of medical and surgical problems that don't fit into these categories of being highly-unusual. We now have the medical staff and facilities, we believe to provide for the majority of the health care needs.

COURIER: How does your hospital operate?

KRUEGER: The Charlevoix Area Hospital operates or functions under the direction of a board of trustees who are volunteers and elected by the hospital association members. They represent the communities the hospitals serve and they provide broad guidelines to the administration of the hospital. And in providing these guidelines, the board is attempting to see that the hospital provides the types of services the people of the area feel they need.

KRUEGER: A private hospital usually owned by a number of people who have a financial interest and their concern is making a profit. Where our hospital is a non-profit hospital that is owned by and a part of the community. A private hospital at times will attempt to provide those services that will induce a profit and eliminate those services that tend to be non-profitable. Our attempt is to provide all the services that are needed and that we are financially able to provide. No one participates in the profit or income from the hospital, it all goes back into the purchase of new equipment and improvements of personnel.

COURIER: What is happening to your push for a larger staff?

KRUEGER: Some significant changes are taking place. We feel our recruitment program has been successful. Within the past year and a half our staff has been expanded by five physicians. And there are two more coming in July. The additions to staff are in specialities of radiology, general surgery, orthopedic surgery and gynegology and obstetrics and family practice. The two physicians due to come in July are internists. The medical staff is now made of two board certified surgeons, one board certified OB-GYN, and one radiologist. Also on the staff, we have on orthopedic surgeon, one family practice physician and six general practitioners. On the consulting staff we have a cardiologist and three pathologists.

KRUEGER: At the present time, we are in a process of remodeling and improving the air conditioning and ventillation system of the entire hospital. This is a $346,000 project that's about half completed. Recently completed has been the construction of a coronary care unit and a remodeling of a surgical recovery room and a doctor and nurse change facility for the operating and delivery rooms. That was a $200,000 project." All this work would not have been possible without the treineudous financial support of the people in this area. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars of this money was raised during a fund raising campaign in 1972. Others monies were received from bequests of the John Stuart family. In future years, more remodeling and improvement of the hospital plant will be necessary. We are also working right now towards the construction of additional physician office facilities for the anticipation of the two new internists.

Farmers Study Waste

Charlevoix County dairy and beef producers are urged to attend a special animal waste management seminar at the Chalet Restaurant in Gaylord on Wednesday, January 15, Ed Rebman, County Extension Director announced today. The session will start at 10:00 a.m. and conclude at 2:30 p.m.

"Not all Michigan farmers are aware of the aninal waste regulations passed by state and federal governments. These acts may have great affect on many farm operations," says Dr. Larry Prewitt, Michigan State University dairy specialist.

Those attending the session will hear about alternative methods to good handling of animal manure and what may be the economic impact upon the individual farmer.

One important factor to be stressed will be the use of animal manure to augment or curtail commercial fertilizer application in crop production.

The meeting will be staffed by MSU personnel, representatives from the Soil Conservation service and Department of Natural Resources. In many cases, local producers will be working closely with these agencies when new waste handling systems are implemented.

The program will include environmental regulations, the economic impact of the regulations, management of waste handling systems, utilizing manure in the cropping program, nutrient value of manure, and long term effects of manure on crops and soils.

Democrats Plan County Meeting

Charlevoix County Democrats will hold their annual convention on Friday, January 10, at 7:30 p.m. at the First State Bank in Charlevoix.

At that time, local Democrats will elect delegates for the district convention, which will be held in Manistique on Jan. 12.

Last month, executive committee members elected Martin Paul, as chairperson; Janis Dietrick, as vice chairperson; Elaine Whitley, recording secretary; Rose Marie Seaton, correspondence secretary and Jearl Rosewig, treasurer.

Paul Dietrick and Rosewig were re-elected to their positions.

Erber Sells Garage

The Beaver Island Boat Co., which operates two motorships between here and Beaver Island, has announced the purchase of the former Erber Auto Co., property on Clinton st. in Charlevoix.

In announcing the acquisition of the propcrty, Lawrence McDonough, business manager for the company, said that the purchase was made primarily to relieve the parking problem that exists in the area of the municipal dock.

He explained that the majority of tourists visiting the island, whose harbor lies 32 miles northwest of here in Lake Michigan, park their vehicles in the area of the dock in their absence, resulting in a congested situation which the company and the city have been trying to solve for a number of years.

The property on Clinton st., which is approximately two blocks from the dock, will be utilized for parking and for storage in order to relieve the situation.

Barry then moved to Charlevoix where he has taught in the high school for seven years.

CHERIE MEIER

Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Meier have announced the engagement of their daughter, Cherie Ann, of Mt. Pleasant to Robert Lynn Oakes, also of Mt. Pleasant.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Oakes of Maroa, Ill.

The bride-elect is a 1974 graduate of Central Michigan University with a B.S. degree in Art Education. Mr. Oakes, a graduate of the University of Illinois, has a B.S. degree in Secondary Education and taught in the Kalamazoo area before becoming associated with the Dow Chemical Co. in Midland as a chemist.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cole

Karen Lewis and Ed Cole Married

Karen Lewis and Edward T. Cole of Alanson exchanged their wedding vows recently in a candlelight ceremony solomnized at the First Congregational church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Russell E. Lewis of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Victor J. Cole of Elk Rapids.

An arrangement of white mums and evergreens and candelabra graced the altar and lighted Christmas trees decorated with white doves were used in the sanctuary and globe candles in the windows for the wedding on Dec. 28. The Rev. Raymond H. Giffin officiated at the double ring service in the presence of 150 guests seated in pews marked by white satin bows and evergreen bows.

Mrs. Charles Bellinger, at the organ, played Purcell's "Trumpet Tune" as the procession and "Fanfare" as the recessional and accompanied Vincent Chew who sang "Sunrise, Sunset" and "The Lord's Prayer".

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride chose a gown of candlelight Bel jou satin for her wedding. Her gown fashioned and hand-sewed by the bride's mother, featured a raised waist, fitted, bibbed bodice with lace inserts, mandarin collar, full sleeves with elbow length cuffs and a full skirt that terminated in a chapel length train all edged in French lace. Her elbow length veil over a full length veil of candlelight illusion was secured by a French cap and edged with the same French lace. Her colonial bouquet was of Phalaemopsis orchid, yellow miniature roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and holly.

Cheryl Eggers of Petoskey served as her maid of honor and her sister, Nora Lewis, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Dom Hubbell of East Lansing were bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns of gold velvet fashioned much like the bride's and trimmed with the same French lace. Their headbands were of gold velvet ribbon, gold straw flowers and statice. They carried candles in hurricane globes trimmed with straw flowers and statice.

Donn Hubbell of East Lansing assisted the bridegroom as best man. Les Hubbell and Victor Cole, Jr., brother of the bridegroom, both of Elk Rapids, were groomsmen. Michael Warner of Elk Rapids and Floyd Hassett of Kalamazoo seated the guests.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by Mrs. Clarence Knapp of Elk Rapids, aunt of the bridegroom, at the Cherry Bucket Restaurant in Elk Rapids on the eve of the wedding.

west of the narrows are isolated from the Boyne City market and recreation centers in the Boyne City area," Mercer stated in the grant application.

"Because of the lack of an adequate means of crossing the narrows, these facilities are from eight to 18 miles further distance during the winter ferry shut-down, than if there was a bridge at the narrows," Mercer said in the application. "Not only do the residents of this impacted area have the problem of increased travel time and distance to reach important county services, but they are limited or prevented from the opportunity to shop, recreate and most especially to work in the Charlevoix area."

The county has not received official written notice of its being turned down for the grant, Mercer said, but he expected it to be forthcoming. The county planner said Collison gave no suggestions to where Charlevoix County could seek such a grant from other agencies.

Buchanan said that the new equipment his employees are using had been planned for several years and really wasn't an added cost.

The sales tax repeal has been good news for cash register dealers-business is booming.

Gil Gilardy of CRE North of Gaylord says business couldn't be better.

"Up until now, we have been just barely keeping up," he said.

"But, we're starting to get behind now."

While the equipment being sold to handle taxable and non-taxable transactions in Michigan stores is new locally, Gilardy said his company, a R.C. Allen distributor, has been selling them in other states for some time.

He said his electronic cash register sells for less than $20,000.

"People are of mixed emotions about them," he said.

"They're grateful there is the equipment, but..."

Charlevoix's New Soil Survey

County Soil Study Will Help More Than Farmers

By BILL GRIMM
DISTRICT
CONSERVATIONIST

Some people may think that the Charlevoix County Soil Survey Report is intended only for the farmer and has little to do with people living in cities or villages. The survey was designed to help the farmer, but was also designed to help those living off the farm as well.

The purpose of the soil survey is to inventory the "job skills" of the different soils so that all people, urban and country, can "employ" the different soils in the right "jobs."

The survey is a way of classifying soils by their physical and chemical properties and each soil is given a name to separate it from another. The different soils are then mapped on aerial photographs to show how and where they occur on the landscape.

What are some of the properties of soil important to agriculture? Soil Conservation District aides say that first and perhaps most important, is "soil texture". It influences fertility, the amount of water available to plants and water movement through the soil.

The kind of minerals in the soil is also important to fertility. "Soil structure" or how the soil particles are arranged in the soil, affects water, air and root movement in the soil.

"Soil drainage" and depth of water table has an obvious effect on plant growth and uses of the soil. "Organic matter" affects moisture holding ability, tilth and fertility. The "PH" or acidity of the soil affects plant growth. These are only some of the properties of soils important to agriculture.

These same soil properties are important to nonfarmers, too. For example, by knowing the soil texture, "PH" and drainage, predictions can be made as to how fast metal pipe corrodes in the soil. Soil drainage texture, kind of clay and organic matter affects road subgrades, building foundations and soil stability. "How fast water moves through the soil is important irrigation for the fruit grower.

It also is important to the golf course or lawn grower. Water movement in the soil along with depth on the water table, are soil properties important to farm drainage systems.

The Charlevoix Soil Survey Report tells where to look for fill material, such as gravel, sand or clay used to seal water storage areas. Knowing about the soil before building may help prevent cracked foundations, ceilings and wet basements.

Interpretations can be made for growing lawns as well as alfalfa brome meadows: for shade trees and lawn shrubs and farm woodlot.

These are only some of the items of interest to nonfarmers that are discussed in the report. An entire section of the Soil Survey deals with "Engineering and Other Non-Farm Uses of the Soil".

Today, some 70 percent of the populace lives on about one percent of the land. The population is exploding.

Yet, they are eating from about the same cropland acreage as they did 30 years ago, probably even less.

Many pressures are being applied to the land. New neighborhoods, highways, homes, subdivisions, industry, and recreation all require more land. Much of that land now grows crops.

"Which land to which use" is a question each one of us must consider carefully. The Soil Survey Report of Charlevoix County was designed to help each one of us make the right decision. The Charlevoix County Soil Conservation District urged you to use this report.

Famous People in History

WILLIAM YEATS

William Butler Yeats was an Irish poet and dramatist. He was born in 1865 near Dublin. He began his writing career by translating Gaelic folk tales and compiling Irish folklore. Yeats wrote many poems and poetic plays and established the Abbey Theatre. He also produced plays and wrote verse and prose plays. He lead the Irish literary revival at the turn of the century. He served as one of the first senators of the Irish Free State in 1922 and was awarded the Nobel prize for literature in 1923. He continued writing until his death in 1939.

COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD

THE PHILIPPINES

The Philippines is a large group of islands between the Pacific Ocean and the South China Sea. There are over 7,000 islands in the group but less than one third have names. The two main islands are Luzon and Mindanao. The total land area of all the Philippine Islands is only a little more than the state of Arizona. The capital is Quezon City, but the largest city is Manila. Both cities are on Luzon. Citizens of the Philippines may speak Philipino, English, Spanish or one of several native languages.

GAMBIA

Gambia is a very small country on the extreme west coast of Africa. It is smaller than Connecticut and the smallest country in Africa. Except for its coastline on the Atlantic Ocean, Gambia is completely surrounded by Senegal. The capital and largest city is Bathurst. Because Gambia was a British Colony, English is a major language and Christianity is a major religion.

CHARLEVOIX RESIDENTS interested in getting a free eye examination to see if they have any problems will be able to take advantage of the free visual sight screening program being conducted by Charlevoix Lions Club. The trailer, which services the entire Northern Michigan area, will be located at the corner of Clinton and Bridge on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 2 to 7 p.m. Dr. R.W. Anderson (left to right) Vince Olach and Gordon Wellman discuss final details.

Community Church of God Plans Sunday Building Dedication

Sunday will be a proud day for some of Charlevoix's churchgoers.

For the 160 people, who attend the Community Church of God, it will be a day long to be remembered.

The church will be holding its dedication for the newly expanded facilities that have been under construction since early spring.

Dr. R. Eugene Sterner, international radio speaker from Christian Brotherhood Hour, sponsored by Community Church of God of Charlevoix and heard each Sunday on local radio, will be the keynote speaker for the dedication service to be held at 3 p.m. on Sunday at the church located at 204 W. Hurlbut.

Dr. Sterner has authored several books and numerous periodicals and has spoken in many countries.

He will also speak at a series of meetings that begin today on "Our Life Together in Christ–What Does It Mean?"

The first meeting begins tonight (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. and continues Thursday and Friday evenings with a final session on Saturday from 2 to 4 p.m.

Rev. William P. Selbert said the church decided to expand its facility beeause it could only seat 100 people.

"We were running between 140 and 150 people," he said.

"To accommodate more people, we had to expand the walls."

In addition to enlarging the santuary, the congregation has also added new offices, remodeled the fellowship hall and recarpeted several classrooms.

The original building was constructed in 1917.

Rev. Selbert said the Community Church of God in Charlevoix, with general offices in Anderson, Indiana, think of themselves as a movement within Christiandom for the restoration of the New Testament Church of God.

"In our infancy, back in 1880, our basic theme, 'Unity among God's people,' was not a popular theme," he said.

"The years, however, have brought vast changes in public opinion, so that today there is searcely a Christian who would argue against the unity of Christians."

He said membership in the Church of God is by virtue of a spiritual birth.

"Everyone who has been truly converted from sin has experienced the forgiving and regenerating love of God in Christ is viewed as a member of God' family, the Church of God," he said.

"Jesus Christ is seen as the only door by which men may enter God's great family.

"Scripturally, there exists no other loyalty or allegiance."

Tax Help

Senior citizens and veterans may receive help in filling out Homestead Tax Exemption forms at Charlevoix City Hall every Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 2 to 4 p.m. Forms are also available at City Hall.

Charlevoix Could Lose Railroad Connections

LANSING–Charlevoix rail service could be heading into serious trouble If a preliminary state railroad needs study bears itself out.

The Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation is about to release a planning report that excludes Charlevoix's C & O trackage from a proposed state rail network.

In the state's line by line analysis of Michigan, the entire C & O trackage from Manistee north would be abandoned with portions of the lines kept only for local service.

Although the document, prepared by the state's Railroad Task Force, is considered only a preliminary appraisal of Michigan's railroad needs, many state officials say it will play a major role in determining state policy.

Preliminary drafts of the 100-page "for discussion only" document were presented in a closed door session in Lansing last Thursday to state regional planning directors who are expected to report back to the state with their evaluations by early this week.

The final study is expected to be presented in five public hearings to be held throughout the state in late February.

A copy of the preliminary report is now also resting on the governor's desk for his approval.

The state plan comes on the heels of a federal preliminary rail system plan to be issued next month by the U.S. Railway Association, a nonprofit corporation created under the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973.

As much as half of the track in Michigan's lower peninsula is designated as "potentially excess," according to a study by the U.S. Department of Transportation and would be open for abandonment.

In presenting the preliminary plan Thursday, Edberton W. Bailey, manager of the state railroad planning section, told regional planners that the six-month study is intended to provide a basis for developing a rail system plan, legislation and policy.

"It should establish Michigan's basic policy," he said.

Bailey added that if Michigan were to lose its rail system today, it would amount only to a .03 percent increase in consumption of fuel if a switch had to be made to trucks.

"The localized impact would be substantial and severe, but at the state level it is only insignificant."

In his report, Bailey is recommending the state adopt some 18 positions ranging from full use of federal-aid fund from railroad programs to expanding Michigan intercity and commuter rail service for passengers.

He also emphasizes the importance of continuing carferry operation at the Straits of Mackinac and across Lake Michigan.

Michigan Public Service Commissioner William R. Ralls also last week proposed a four point plan to improve Michigan's deteriorating rail service and elliminate dangerous highway grade crossings.

Two Lawyers File for Judgeship

Two Charlevoix County attorneys have announced their interests in being appointed by Governor William Milliken as a permanent successor to Arthur Reibel, who resigned last week from the bench.

David Fershee

Miss Madeline Dinu of East Jordan and David Fershee of Charlevoix said they have agreed to become candidates after former Judge Reibel resigned in the wake of a complaint filed by the Michigan Judicial Tenure Commission to the Michigan Supreme Court listing 13 charges of misconduct.

Probate Judge John T. Murphy is serving as acting judge until the governor names a permanent successor within the next four to eight weeks.

Miss Dinu, East Jordan City Attorney, has practiced in the area for the last 5½-years after practicing in Detroit for many years.

Fershee, a 1973 graduate of the Detroit College of Law, worked in the State Legislative Service Bureau for six months before moving to Boyne City and then last March to Charlevoix for private practice.

The governor's appointment would be until the next general election is held in 1976.

April 7 Set for School Election

April 7 was set as the date for a special school election at the regular meeting of the Charlevoix board of education held Monday night.

The amount of millage to be requested at that time will be announced following an in-depth study of the 1975-76 needs.

At the same time, the board announced budget adjustments for this year in an efforts to meet the required budget adjustments by the State Legislature in the amount of $11,300. Among the items to be taken from this year's budget will be passenger buses to athletic events; the springs tennis program which will allow a training program if it can be arranged but no competitive meets; capital outlay for vocational education in proportion to reduced state aid; printing and publishing expenditures and reduction of non-scheduled professional conferences.

It was explained that the school district was to receive approximately $27,000 in 'added cost money' for vocational education. However, an anticipated 10 per cent cut in the total of $2,700 is anticipated.

The above listed items to be deleted from this year's budget will save approximately $5,000. The board willl continue to work toward other general areas in an effort to compensate for the loss in a budget already cut.

A report on the hot lunch program in all three schools showed 40,910 meals served through Jan. 10 including 7,968 free meals; 2,469 reduced cost meals and 30,473 regular meals. Robert Bogart, business manager, said that the estimated number of meals by the end of the school year will reach 82,800 including 16,200 free meals; 5,040 reduced cost meals and 61,560 regular meals.

Supt. James A. McKimmy said that the Michigan Assessment scores, which are designed as a teaching tool, were being analyzed in an effort to make a determination of results.

Supt. McKimmy also reported that the city of Charlevoix and Norwood township had given their approved of summer collection of school taxes; Hayes and Eveline townships had tabled the issue for the present and Charlevoix township's decision is contingent on collection all taxes at this time.

In other action approval was given to policies reviewed earlier relating to School Records and Challenges of Curriculum Material.

Gave permission to the Easter Seal Society of Charlevoix county to use a school bus to transport Special Education students on a field trip. The Easter Seal Society will pay for gasoline and the bus driver's salary.

Recommended that bids for the sale of the Building Trades house be solicited from area realtor as in the past.

Voted to adjust custodial charges for use of school facilities commensurate to the actual cost to the board of education.

Heard Kim Carter present a report on the student hand book compiled by the Student Council.

Heard that "The Fantastics", a floor show type program presented by Northern Michigan University will appear here Jan. 23 under the sponsorship of the Band Boosters and the Big Brothers. The group has been invited to join a USO Tour to either Europe or the Caribbean. Kit Lieberman, a music major at Northern, is a member of the cast.

Heard Jan. 27 set as the date of the next meeting.

Lessons Anyone?

Charlevoix residents interested in taking beginning ski lessons at Mt. McSauba can sign up at the ski lodge for a charge of $1 a lesson. Lessons will begin on January 18 at 1 p.m. Those having any questions are asked to contact Chuck Meier at either 547-4128 or 547-4920.

New Airline May Begin Soon

The first scheduled air service between Beaver Island and Charlevoix may be getting off the ground shortly.

City Council heard a request to lease offices for the new venture, at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport from Paul Welke of Beaver Island Monday night.

He told council, his corporation, Welke Aviation Service, is in the preliminary stages of hauling both freight and passengers between the two locations.

The island is presently served on a charter basis by McPhillips Flying Service, Inc. of Charlevoix.

Welke said his company presently owns a private airport on the island and wanted to open an office in Charlevoix for convenience.

Welke said he plans to use a twin-engine plane.

Council referred the matter to committee.

In other action, Council:

–Referred consideration of organizing a program to replace shade trees to committee.

–Agreed to send Curtis Kipke, recreation director, to a parks and recreation seminar in Lansing.

–Indicated they would be paying only expenses and not salaries to those serving on the City Charter Commission.

BARBARA MARTIN of Charlevoix is the lucky mother of Charlevoix Area Hospital's first baby of the year. She gave birth to a 6 lb. 7 oz. girl, Jamie Lee, on January 7. She will also receive a variety of prizes from local merchants.

Early Snow Helps

Ski Business Up

By PEG OHLE

Despite rising inflation and unemployment, the skiing industry in Northwestern Michigan is holding up well.

Area ski resorts contacted last week are pleased with their holiday business and look forward to a good year if the weather cooperates.

Boyne Country, largest ski operation in the midwest, reports that their business is up 20 percent over the last two years. Spokesman Zig Bulanda says that they need some good natural snow but they do have plenty of artificial snow which they have been making since the skiing season opened Thanksgiving weekend.

"Unemployment is not a factor this year," Bulanda said, "but maybe it will be next year. It's too early to tell."

Bulanda also said that Boyne Country is getting more skiers from Illinois, Indiana and Ohio this year, which may be attributed to higher plane fares to ski resorts in the west and to Europe.

The Boyne Country complex consists of four ski resorts, Boyne Mountain, Boyne Highlands, Thunder Mountain and Walloon Hills. Boyne Mountain has 18 slopes, Boyne Highlands 16 slopes, Thunder Mountain 13 slopes, and Walloon Hills nine slopes.

Doris Sarns of Nub's Nob reports their holiday season better than last year's, mostly because of better weather. "People are coming in the middle of the week and we are having nice crowds every day," she added.

Nub's Nob also reports more skiers from Indiana, Illinois and Ohio, along with the usual groups from Detroit, Grand Rapids and other downstate areas. They have 14 ski slopes.

Schuss Mountain, which opened Thanksgiving weekend, had an "extremely good" holiday season, according to Publicity Director Chris Dentderder. "We are getting much the same crowd that we always have," she continued. "People planned for ski vacations and they are taking them. Our cancellation rate is lower than last year.

Schuss Mountain has 12 slopes.

The story is much the same at Shanty Creek. John Meeske, general manager, says their holiday season was "just great" and that their overall business is up about 18 percent from last year.

"People are watching their dollars closer but business is good," he added. Meeske believes that higher plane fares are keeping skiers close to home.

There are 15 ski slopes at Shanty Creek.

Three large motels in the area also report good holiday business.

The Weathervane Inn had a good holiday season and has considerable group business lined up for the rest of the year. They have had more skiers from the Chicago area than in the past, and believe that increased air fares and higher gasoline prices are responsible for this increased midwest business.

The Holiday Inn in Petoskey terms their holiday ski business as "terrific". They were filled throughout the week with more individual skiers than usual. Holiday Inn guests came from several midwestern states as well as lower Michigan.

When asked how they viewed the remainder of the season, a Holiday Inn spokesman said they would "know better within two or three weeks."

The Lodge in Charlevoix reports their holiday ski business as good and says that it is too early to tell how economic factors will affect business the rest of the year.

"Because of inflation and job uncertainties, fewer Michigan residents are expected to visit distant places for ski vacations than in recent years," says Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager.

Ratke noted that in the past year, air fares from Detroit to Denver have risen 10 percent with more hikes expected to come. During this same period, the average cost of air fare to well-known ski destinations in Switzerland and Austria has increased 28 percent.

"Although gasoline prices have gone up in Michigan since last winter, the added cost of driving to a Michigan ski area can be counted in pennies since the majority of lodges are no more than a tankful of gas away for most skiers," the Auto Club official adds.

Long Haul

They are delivering a Dodge van and two 4-wheel Dodge vehicles to Miller Enterprises, a leasing company in Fairbanks. Their route will be along U.S. Highway 2 to Montana then north to Edmonton, Alberta and Dawson Creek, where the Alcan Highway begins.

Otis and Bergmann plan to work for Miller Industries for an indeterminate time. "Maybe two months and maybe two years," according to Otis.

They will sleep and eat in the van and are taking with them a supply of canned foods. When asked if they had camped out before Otis said, "Yes, but not in temperatures 70 degrees below zero." They are equipped with down clothing.

With good luck, the trip will take about two weeks.

Charlevoix Commission on Aging Serves 463 More Meals to Area Senior Citizens

Senior citizens in Charlevoix County were served 463 meals during December under the nutrition program of the County Commission on Aging.

This report was made last week at the monthly meeting of the Commission by Arthur Saworski, County Director on Aging.

The meals are served two days a week in Charlevoix and Boyne City and one day a week in East Jordan. In Charlevoix they are served on Mondays and Thursdays at 1:30 in the high school cafeteria.

All persons 60 years of age or older, or whose spouse is in that age bracket, are eligible to participate in the nutrition program, which is funded under the Older Americans Act. There is no charge for the meals but participants are asked for a small donation if they feel they can afford one.

It was also announced at the meeting that Charlevoix County will soon receive $5,4000 under Title VI of the Older Americans Act to provide transportation for senior citizens in the county. This sum is to be matched by $600 from county funds.

Present plans are to set up a corps of volunteer drivers throughout the county to drive senior citizens to the meal sites and to hospitals, doctors, dentists and other important appointments. These volunteer drivers would be compensated from Title VI money. Among other projects of the Commission on Aging soon to be started are blood pressure clinics. Senior citizens will be able to have thier blood pressure taken free of charge by a county nurse on the days meals are served in each of the three cities in the county.

Charlevoix Area Bloodmobile Stages A Successful Drive

Community cooperation and a host of 'walk-ins' were credited with making the first visit of the Bloodmobile to Charlevoix county a success according to Mrs. Robert Tollas, general chairman.

Despite many turn downs because of winter colds and 'no shows' by 30 persons who had registered as donors, the Bloodmobile visited collected 124 units, one less than the quota of 125 units.

"Coming as it did immediately after the holidays, I feel the clinic was successful, said Mrs. Tollas. It was the hard work of the telephone committee headed by Mrs. David Fowler and the others who worked that resulted in a successful visit of the Bloodmobile."

Mrs. Roger Roznoski was in charge of organizing nurses for the event held at the Community Church of God Fellowship hall; Mrs. Jerry Drost, publicity and the Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority, the canteen.

Twenty-three new donors were added to the community's growing list, Mrs. Tollas said.

Forms Coming For Veterans Bonus

The Michigan Department of Military Affairs is busy preparing to handle the thousands of bonus applications they expect to receive from veterans of the Vietnam war.

Application forms are expected to be available for wide distribution throughout the state by the end of this month, and before that time places where the forms may be secured will be publicized.

The Vietnam Bonus Section expects to be able to start operations early next month. It will take approximately four to five weeks after the Section begins processing a claim before the eligible veteran can expect to receive payment, providing the claim is valid and no irregularities require further investigation.

Incoming applications will be handled on a "first in - first out" basis. Veterans and beneficiaries will receive a postcard from the Bonus Section when their applications are received, and a claim number given for future reference, if needed.

Eligible out-of-state claimants and Michigan servicemen still on active duty may secure applications from the Vietnam Veteran Era Bonus Section, P.O. Box 1500, Lansing, Michigan 48904.

To be eligible, a veteran must have been a resident of Michigan for at least six months before entering active military service and must have been on active duty 190 days or more during the period from January 1, 1961 to September 1, 1973.

Combat veterans are entitled to receive a $600 cash bonus, and are defined as servicemen or women eligible to wear the Vietnam Service Medal or the Armed Forced Expeditionary Medal.

Those whose active duty service did not entitle them to wear the aforementioned medals are entitled to draw a bonus of $15 for each month of service, up to a maximum of $450.

Beneficiaries of veterans who died of service connected causes are eligible for the same cash payments.

Commission Meets

The Charlevoix board of commissioners, which recessed its organizational meeting of Jan. 3, will meet at the county building annex at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

A report by the Michigan State Tax Commission from 10 a.m. until noon will highlight the meeting.

Also on the agenda will be the consideration and finalizing of salaries for the circuit court reporter, circuit court assignment clerk, the matron of the county jail, veterans' counselor and others; approval of maintenance agreement with the Burroughs Corp.

Flu Bug?

Despite a period of what might be called "unhealthy weather", there is no epidemic of influenza or other respiratory disease in the area.

The Charlevoix school system reports only the usual number of absentees, and Dr. Robert S. Libke, District Health Director, says there has not been an upsurge in illnesses.

Dr. Libke also says that the State health report shows no sign of an epidemic.

Two Major Events Take Place With Railroads

Two major events have taken place within the last few days that will have a major influence on what happens to Charlevoix's railroads.

The first is a proposal from Michigan Public Service Commissioner William R. Ralls on how to improve Michigan's deteriorating rail service.

The second came in an unpublished preliminary report from the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation.

Ralls proposed last week that a four-point plan be initiated in Michigan to improve deteriorating rail service and eliminate dangerous highway grade crossings.

Ralls' program consists of:

--utilization of $10.5 million in Federal and state funds to provide work for the unemployed repairing critical rail deficiencies.

--expediting U.S. processing of the bankrupt Penn Central's application for Federal funds to rehabilitated deteriorated facilities,

--creation of a state grade crossing fund to aid local communities modernizing unsafe grade crossings, and

--provision of state technical assistance to local communities to fight the threatened abandonment of 51 percent of the total rail miles in the Lower Peninsula.

Ralls said that a safe and efficient rail network is essential for the economic health of Michigan and that we have to remedy years of neglect at the same time that the Penn Central is involved in reorganization proceedings.

We agree with Ralls and are pleased to see that he, as member of the Michigan Public Service Commission, is taking a strong stand for saving Michigan's rails.

However, while the Michigan Public Service Commission is taking a positive stand, we are disappointed in the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation.

Within the next few weeks, they will be making public a preliminary planning report on Michigan Railroad needs.

We feel the report is baseless and a complete disappointment.

Our major complaint with the report is that all the information gathered for analysis is from the U.S. Railway Association, who had in turn received the information from the unbiased railroads, many of whom are trying to abandon track.

And to make matters even worse, the data collected for the 1975 rail study is from 1973.

This we feel is far too old to use when talking about a completely different economy than three years ago.

But, our major complaint is the state transportation department's premise that rail abandonment on a statewide basis would be insignificant.

While they agree it would have a severe effect on a local level, they say the state wide picture would not be substantial.

In fact, they claim that only a .03 percent increase of fuel consumption would take place if our rail lines were dropped and our state had to switch completely to trucks.

We also find the report's statewide line - by - line assessment hard to understand.

Under the state's assessment, the C & O line that runs through Charlevoix would be made only a local service line, while the Penn Central line would be made a state mainline.

This would be disasterious for Charlevoix and we encourage you to attend the public hearings regarding this state report when they are announced for next month.

In the meantime, we encourage you to write to the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation for a copy of the Michigan Railroad Needs Planning Report.

We find it difficult to understand that while the state has had six months to prepare the report it now expects us to have local input within only a few weeks.

We are also upset with the limited number of copies that are being made available to the public before the hearings.

While the report, in our estimation is poorly done, we urge the State Highway and Department Transportation Department to make immediate public exposure of the document.

Hopefully, this will give us a little time to review the analysis and offer some constructive suggestions.

Charter Commission

We encourage as many people as possible to get involved with the commission.

Residents have until February 17 to return the charters to be on the ballot for April 7.

On the April 7 ballot, Charlevoix voters will be deciding on nine residents to service on the commission as well as deciding on whether or not they want to have a city charter and replace the present Fourth Class Cities Act the city operates under.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

If I ever became president, the first thing I will do is fire the U.S. Weather Bureau.

Then I will cast about for a little old lady with a game leg—perhaps lots of little old ladies with lots of game legs living all over the country—and I'll make them my Weather Bureau.

Even if they are right only half the time, their batting average will be better than all of the scientific instrumentation and expensive weather satellites we now rely upon for misinformation about what the weather's going to be like tomorrow.

Just being familiar with traditional weather patterns where they live will give my little old ladies an inside track over the scientific weather wizards in Washington. Furthermore, their arthritic joints would act as supersensitive sensors, telling them to expect foul weather and when to pack the picnic basket.

Frankly, I think the U.S. Weather Bureau would come a little closer to the mark if its forecasters picked their predictions out of a hat.

Take this past weekend, for example. The official weather forecast for the northern Lower Peninsula on Saturday was for continued mild temperatures and rain—the same kind of weather we had had Friday.

But what happened? Well, I guess you know what happened. Early Saturday morning the wind started picking up out of the east and the mercury hit the skids. By daybreak, what should have been rain turned to snow and the wind reached velocities that literally swept frail pedestrians off the streets. By Sunday what should have been a relatively warm and wet weekend had turned into a full-scale blizzard.

Some veteran weather observers agree that the U.S. Weather Bureau misses the mark more often in Michigan than anywhere else because the Great Lakes throw a monkey wrench into the weather works. But it would seem after decades of weather forecasting, the Bureau would come up with a formula for Michigan weather that would produce accurate forecasts at least part of the time.

I suppose what bothers me most about the U.S. Weather Bureau is that it never apologizes for its monumental goofs. You'd think someone would send out little notes to golfers, farmers, sailers and others inconvenienced by the bureau's blunders and miscalculations, but I've never heard of anyone receiving one.

What bothers me almost as much is the fact that the Weather Bureau regularly ignores time-honored portents of what the weather will be tomorrow.

Even in Biblical days, sailors knew that a red sky in the evening means fair weather the following day. However, a rosy sky in the morning is the harbinger of foul weather. This little observation was true in the days of Christ and it is still true today, 95 percent of the time.

But how often have you heard the complexion of sunrises and sunsets mentioned on the TV weather news? Never, I'll wager.

I used to have a great uncle who could predict rainstorms with uncanny accuracy up to 36 hours in advance.

Before he died he shared his secret with me. A "mackerel sky"—by which he meant lots of little white scudding clouds close together—is a sure sign that rain is on the way, probably within 24 to 26 hours.

I have observed "mackerel skies" ever since and am happy to report a success rate of about 97 percent.

Although my joints aren't attuned—yet—to the onslaughts of unsavory weather, I know many oldsters who feel every change in the weather in their bones, hours before they actually happen.

I also know many victims of "sinus trouble" who are as sensitive as barometers in tracking the movement of high and low pressure systems.

That's why I feel the forecasting business should be turned over to our senior citizens, the only people in the country who actually know what they're talking about when it comes to tomorrow's weather.

And if they want to put a few wooley caterpillars and a hutch of red squirrels on the payroll, that'll be OK with me, too.

Letters to the editor

Bloodmobile Says Thanks

January 9, 1975

Mr. Ken Winter, Editor
The Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720
Dear Ken,

Once again Tuesday's visit of the Red Cross Bloodmobile to Charlevoix was a success. Our quota was 125 pints; we didn't quite make that...but missed our mark by only one pint. We feel good about this inasmuch as our visit was scheduled soon after the holidays; and, also, many people were ill with the flu.

In addition to the 124 people who successfully donated their blood, we had 14 others who earned their "I tried" stickers but for some reason or another were deferred this time. It's because of all these people that our drive was a success.

Our sincere thanks go to the people of the Community Church of God and Mr. Siebert, their minister, for allowing us to use their facilities for the day.

Special thanks go to the Charlevoix Lions Club and to the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority. The men from the Lions Club had the responsibility of unloading and loading the Red Cross truck. The Sorority gals again organized and staffed the Canteen for the entire day. They really worked hard! Their thanks, as well as ours, go to Edwards Grocery, Essenburg's Grocery, the Lodge, Maxbauers Dairy, The Market, Oleson's Food Store and Staley's Market. These merchants generously supplied all the goodies needed to supply our Canteen for the day.

We genuinely appreciate the time given by the doctors. Somehow Dr. Custer, Dr. Joy, Dr. Martin, Dr. Piagge and Dr. Roebuck managed to find an hour or so each from their busy schedules to assure the presence of a doctor during the entire session. We couldn't have done it without their cooperation.

We also are required to have Registered Nurses on duty throughout the day. Mrs. Roger Roznoski scheduled these women. They and she should be thanked for their willingness to volunteer their time.

Also, to the many, many individuals of the community who helped during the day we offer our thanks. Their willingness to help...to share in the work...enables us to continue our blood program.

Recognition should also be given the news media for their help was invaluable. Your coverage was great; we appreciate all the articles and information provided by the Courier. The "People Connection" announcements on WVOY as well as their other coverage was of great value in publicizing the Bloudmobile. Our thanks to them both.

We sincerely hope that we have not overlooked anyone and again wish to thank the people of Charlevoix for their continued support.

Sincerely yours,
Charlevoix Community

How I Lost $1,500 and a Friend

By SHERRY MARTIN

In times of inflation and recession or for that matter anytime at all, $1500 is a lot of money. When you lose a great deal of money like this to a shrewd business associate it makes you feel worse than a bad investment on Wall-Street.

Now, it it's play money in a friendly game of monopoly, it isn't quite so serious, but it still doesn't do anything for your ego, and it makes one wonder if possibly the real business world out there might do the same dirty deed someday!

Back to this friendly game of monopoly. The evening began innocently enough, or so I thought, as the couple that we had invited over for the evening and ourselves sat down at the dining room table for a game of cards. Each card game suggested by my husband or I could not be played for reasons known only to our guests.

Of course, they game excuses such as "I've got a crimp in my hand and can't hold any cards"... or "What on earth is trump?"

Then the little lady (so as not to bring names into this, we'll call her H. Huges, she probably has a good lawyer) suggested we play monopoly. Well, I did have the game shoved away in the back of a closet, so I hauled it out and dusted it off.

After all, what else was there to do? Make ourselves comfortable in the living room and comment on the lovely shapes and sizes of the snowflakes that were floating down, or figure out how many threads to the square inch in the carpeting?

I was designated banker and fortunately so because later in the evening I had to embezzle to pay a $3 debt owed to Mr. Hughes. H. Hughes somehow managed to land on and purchase Park Place and Boardwald.

If you have ever played Monopoly you know that these are the best pieces of property to own in this game. If the owner has enough money to buy houses or motels for these, any other player that lands on it goes bankrupt trying to pay the rent.

H. Huges had it all ... Park Place, Boardwalk, and I'm quite certain she also had her own "loaded" dice and extra money in her pocket when she sat down!

I had nothing...and I needed money, so I sold H. my one lousy railroad at a fair price with the understanding that I would have a free pass on one railroad. (She now owned 3 of 4, with the purchase of mine) I chose one, not realizing until later, when I landed on one, that she gave me a free pass on the only railroad she didn't own.

You might say I'd been sold down the rail-road?

Suckered at my own dining room table. Let me tell you, right then I ran out of snacks and the frig went dry. I started to yawn a lot too.

To save face, I spent every nickel I had left buying that last crummy railroad from Mr. H. (H)Hughes. Then I landed on Boardwalk and went broke.

My evil guests took their dice and my pride and went home. They probably rent an apartment above a casino.

There is a moral out of all this. If you're going to use your Monopoly game for kindling, first separate the little plastic houses and motels from the cards, money, and box. Like playing it, trying to burn it leaves a sticky smelly mess.

Laughing in Church

Is there any hope for a grown man who goes to church on Christmas Eve and laughs at the creche?

(My mother just fainted. She knows I am talking about me.)

But the Christ Child wouldn't stop crying. So the Chief Singing Angel came down from on high and whispered urgently into the Virgin Mary's ear. Mary and the squalling child immediately fled the scene (Nativity). And a minute later Mary was back with a surrogate baby that looked a lot like a Barbie doll wrapped in swaddling clothes.

One of the shepherds had YMCA stenciled on his turbun und a Wise Man wore a beard you wouldn't believe. My son whispered that the beard was actually a wig borrowed from an angel.

This pantomime pagennt was staged by the youth of my favorite church. The costumed kids acted out the birth of Christ while the choir sang and narrator read the Gospel according to Luke. It was nice and I didn't intend to laugh. My mother and numerous nuns taught me to behave in church or a bolt of lighting would zap me into Purgatory or Hell, depending upon my state of grace at the time.

But I was sitting between my 2 teenage children, a daughter home from college and a son home from any acid-rock concert. (Their mother was part of the heavenly chorus.) It was the son who exposed me to the lightning.

He began to laugh with his mouth shut. The noise was minimal, escaping in small snorts through his nose and ears. But his effort to contain the laugh forced him to shake. It was crowded and he was shaking against me. It did no good for me to turn my head away and pretend he wasn't laughing because I could feel him quivering and I knew he was dying because he couldn't stop laughing. This made me laugh and I tried to swallow the laughs and this made my eyes water and my jaw ache and I finally buried my face in a handkerchief, now quivering myself, and I prayed that God would forgive me and that my favorite angel in the heavenly chorus would not see me, please dear God.

Of course, I quivered against my daughter and she started to laugh and couldn't stop. The same thing happened to the 2 people on her left and to a couple seated in front of us. It was a disaster.

And no one except my son knew exactly whnt we were laughing nbout. He later said it was the 3 Wise Men who did him in. In real life they are his buddies and he recognized their bathrobes from less holy occasions. The beard that was really an upside down wig was the kiss-off. It was hilarity time in the pews.

The bearded Wise Man later confessed he had hoped his wigged chin might provide the congregation with a few chuckles. Bless him. Why not give a laugh for Christmas? And why not give it in church?

Mother and Aunt Madeline will recall that I have long crusaded for less stuffiness before the altar. Why not applaud a good nnthem from the choir, or a good point from the pastor? Why not say an unorchestrated Amen aloud when you agree? And why not laugh when something funny happens? God won't want a man to choke to death on a laugh swallowed out of piety.

As I grow older, and my offsprings spring farther away, I realize the warm value of happy memories. I am certain the laughing-in-church episode will be remembered and recounted on countless Christmas Futures. And each time I will feel my kids shaking beside me and it will feel good.

It was a fun thing that might have occurred in the Alibi Bar. But, as a voice from the heavenly chorus would surely say, it was nice that it happened in church.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Doris Pearl

This week the Courier talks with a young housewife and mother. Doris Pearl, the former Doris McBride, lives in Norwood Township with her husband John, a buildiug coatractor, and 2 children, John, 7 and Ellen, 4.

She tells us something about how she runs her home and philosophizes a bit.

COURIER: We understand you are a native of Charlevoix.

PEARL: Yes, I grew up on a farm not far from where we now live. Both John and I graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1963. We went to Western Universlty in Kalamazoo and I also went to cosmotology school in Grand Rupids. I had a beauty shop in my home for three or four years.

COURIER: Do you live on a farm now?

PEARL: No, it's not really a farm. We have 32 acres, mostly wooded. We do have a garden of about an acre and a half, an orchard of dwarf fruit trees, berries, a grape arbor, and asparagus.

COURIER: What do you grow in your garden?

PEARL: Everything we need in the way of fruits and vegetables. We can and freeze all we can use, so we don't have to buy any during the year. Last year we planted 50 pounds of seed potatoes, which will last us until we get new potatoes next summer. We have a large root cellar to keep them in. We just buy dairy foods and meat.

COURIER: Do you have any animals?

PEARL: Just two dogs. We don't have cats because we are bird watchers. We have had chickens up to this year and are going to have some again. It really doesn't pay to raise chickens when you have to buy feed for them, but homegrown chickens do taste better, and they're fun for the children.

COURIER: How to you manage to work such a large garden?

PEARL: We get up at five in the morning during the summer. I do my housework and work about four hours in the garden. We have a small tractor and a roto-tiller.

COURIER: What about things you have to buy, such as sugar which is so expensive now?

PEARL: Fortunately, we had enough jam and jelly left over so I didn't have to make any this year. I use a lot of molasses and honey in making cookies. Also, I make things like rice pudding for dessert because it doesn't take as much sugar as pie or cake. I also render my own lard on our wood cook stove.

PEARL: No, we have an electric stove, too, and I use that for baking because the heat is more even. However, the first year we had the wood stove we saved 1,000 kilowatts of electricty. My husband bakes bread for us, using his grandmother's recipe.

COURIER: Does your husband hunt or fish?

PEARL: He doesn't hunt, but he does fish. Recently we had four meals of fish in one week that were caught through the ice. Last summer John caught 29 lake trout. We fish from the pier nnd in the lake, but it's really no bargain when you figure the cost of the boat, equipment, etc. But it's fun.

COURIER: How do you buy your meat?

PEARL: We buy beef by the halves and other meat on sale, at least enough for seven or eight meals.

COURIER: Do you sew nuch?

PEARL: I make most of my clothes, except blue jeans and sweat shirts. The last long dress I made cost $12 for material. The dress would have cost at least $65 in a shop. Ellen gets most of her clothes from an older cousin, but I have made shirts for young John.

COURIER: How uften do you shup?

PEARL: I bring Ellen in to nursery school twice a week and do all my shopping and errands on these days. It's a ten mile trip and planning this way saves gasoline and time. We do all our shopping here. John is a local businessman and we feel we should. If everybody felt the same way, local businesses would have no problems.

Kenney's Excavating Holds City Lead

By CHUCK WRIGHT

Leading by 10 points with two and a half minutes left in the game, Village Milkhouse survived a frantic rally by Kenney's Excavating to win 62-61.

The loss was the first of the season for Kenney's and narrowed their first place lead over the Milkhouse to just one game in the B league's Lake Charlevoix division.

The Milkhouse pulled out to a 17-7 first quarter lead thanks largely to Jerry Sandahl's 7 points, but stumbled to a 25-22 halftime lead.

In the middle of the third quarter, Kenney's received a crushing blow when their center, Rick Van Sledum, was ejected from the game for unsportsmanlike conduct.

Just as important, however, was Dale Boss's hot hand in the second half. He scored 18 of his 22 points in the third and fourth quarters.

Terry DeVries led the last minute Kenney's surge. For some reason the Milkhouse kept firing up long shots in the waning minutes. Kenney's would get the rebound and bring it down to score. DeVries had 15 of his game high 28 points in the fourth quarter.

Rob Casteline added 14 to the Milkhouse cause while Denny Way added 11. For Kenney's Max Bolser added 14 and Jack Danbert 13.

In A league action, the Town House remained undefeated and a game in first place with a narrow 75-71 win over Swansons K&D. The Town House blew a 19 point lead in the first half and trailed 49-48 in the middle of the third quarter.

Spook Coleman led the way with 23 and Dave Strawbridge had 19. For Swansons, balanced scoring almost won the game for them. Randy DeYoung had 16, Bruce Meggison 15, Kevin Swanson 13, Dave Swanson 12, and Bob DeYoung 10.

Freedman Arleroft had no trouble with Haggard's winning 88-50. Freedman's is still only a game behind the Town House. The Crain brothers were a two man show. Roger pumped home 28 points while Denny hit for 25. Mike Bode contributed 12. Dean Gunther led Haggard's with 14 and Frank Hackett had 10.

Bob's Sunoco thrashed the Coast Guard 70-41 as they built up their lead every quarter. As usual, Hud Drenth led Bob's attack with 26. Big Hugh Campbell added 10. For the Coast Guard, Marty Richardson scored 17 and Matt Timmons had 10.

In the B League's Lake Michigan Division, Charlevoix County State Bank now has a commanding three game lead over the rest of the field. The Bankers beat Medusa 63-36. Steve Martinis led the way with 20 points, Dennis LaCroix added 14 and Larry Skippergosh 11. Richard Borths paced Medusa with 19.

Jim's Clark moved into a three way tie for second place with Russell's Shell and Andy's Tire World with a 66-51 victory over Russell's. Jim's led in every quarter. Jerry Skippergosh took the scoring honors with 24. Steve McClellan chipped in 16. For Russell's Jim Potter had 16, Larry Brock 13, and Mike Crain 10.

Alroy Cottages upset Andy's Tire World 36-35. Trailing throughout the entire first half, Alroy used a real team effort to fight back. Nobody scored in double figures for Alruy. Kevin Jonnechek had 16 for Andy's.

Wojan Aluminum won a wild game over John Deere, 53-50 in overtime. The nip and tuck battle saw three technicals called. Bill Joy and Don Ward each scored 4 points in the overtime to lead Wojan's to victory. Ward had 15 for the game and Jim McGarry hit for 12. Hal Evans scored 21 for John Deere.

First State Bank clipped Muma's 39-35. The Bankers led by fifteen at halftime but only managed 12 points in the second half. Dale Burge led all scorers with 14.

High scorer for the week: A league-once again, Roger Crain with 28; B league-Terry DeVries with 28.

Idle Thought: More players were thrown out of games and more technical fouls called this past week than any other time during the season. Maybe it is time for players and fans to remember that this is recreation basketball, not the NBA. Every team wants to win but sportsmanship should be a priority. Further, the referees are there because they are interested in basketball. There is no reason they should have to put up with uncalled-for abuse. Sportsmanship is the name of the game.

Lose to Cheboygan

Rayders Drop Another

The Charlevoix Rayders will host the Grayling Vikings in a return game here Tuesday and entertain Rogers City here Friday as the teams of the Michigan-Huron Shores league begin their second round of play.

In a meeting here Friday, Charlevoix dropped its game to Cheboygan by a score of 60-56 to give the team a 1-6 record for the first half of the season.

In Friday's meeting with the Chiefs, the Rayders, who trailed by 11 points, 44-33 at halftime, outscored the visitors 33-26 in the second half to cut Cheboygan's victory margin to two points as time ran out.

The Rayders trailed 22-13 at the quarter; 44-33 at halftime and, after scoring eight field goals and a freethrow during the third period, cut the Chief's lead to six points, 56-50 going into the final period. The 18 points scored in the final eight minutes, however, fell short at the final horn.

The Rayders scored 27 field goals and 14 of 20 free throw attempts while Cheboygan had 29 field goals and 12 of 20 charity shots. Charlevoix had 16 personal fouls called and Cheboygan 17.

Mike Streeter paced the scoring for Charlevoix with 21 points followed by Bob Alger with 19; Dan Greene and Chuck Faust with nine points each; Kevin Martin with six and Dave Martincheck with four. Mark Hosmer also played.

Dave Lindsay led the scoring with 23 points for Cheboygan. Ed Ormsbee had 14 and Jerry Gowell 10.

* * * *

The Charlevoix Junior Varsity team, coached by Don Carey, moved into a first place tie with Boyne City Friday after trimming the Cheboygan JV's by a score of 51-32 here Friday.

At the same time, the Boyne City JV's were defeated by Petoskey. Both Charlevoix and Petoskey have a 6-1 record.

The young Rayders outscored Cheboygan 21-12 in the field goal Department as they led the young Chiefs 14-8, 27-18 and 35-23 by quarters.

The remainder of Charlevoix's point were scored at the free throw line where they scored on nine of 17 attempts while being called for 20 personal fouls.

Cheboygan connected on eight of 23 attempts and had 18 personal fouls.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH
West Clinton St.
Morning Worship 11:00 a.m. Sunday School 11 a.m.
Service First Wednesday of month 8 p.m.

Late in the 19th century, Mary Baker Eddy discovered and founded the religion denominated Christian Science. She experienced an instantaneous healing of a serious physical condition while studying the biblical account of the healing of the palsied man in the light of her growing convictnon that God was the devine Principle of the universe including man.

Based upon this conviction confirmed by her healing she authored the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, rendering her discovery available to anyone else who might be interested. Many were. The happy experience of many was such that eager groups of interested followers emerged. Charlevoix became the base for one which met just in the summer for awhile.

There was sufficient interest to organize a church known then, in 1909, as Christian Science Society, Charlevoix. Year long services were held in Bank Hall.

As interest grew services moved to Knights of Pythias Hall, then to Odd Fellows Hall and finally, to Van Pelt Hall where they remained for 24 years until 1934 when a home at 205 Clinton was bought and converted into a church. It was dedicated ten years later.

Services include the singing of hymns, a scriptural selection, a solo and the reading of a lesson sermon from the Christian Science Quarterly.

Church and Sunday School convene at 11:00 o'clock, Wednesday evening meeting first Wednesday of month at 8:00 p.m. Visitors are warmly welcomed.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURC

Townships Learn About Building Code

Robert Trumble, head of the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection, met with township and city zoning administrators last Wednesday evening to explain the Michigan Building Code.

Trumble was hired last fall to head the new department, which is responsible for enforcing the code and issuing building permits.

The code applies to all new buildings and structures, including municipal, county, state and private buildings except where such buildings are otherwise specifically provided for by statute.

The code also applies to any building repairs which include "the cutting away of any wall, partition or portion thereof, the removal or cutting of any structural beam or bearing support, or the removal or change of any required means of egress, or rearrangement of parts of a structure affecting the exitway requirements."

The code further applies to repairs which include "addition to, alternation of, replacement or relocation of any standpipe, water supply, sewer, drainage, drain leader, gas, soil, waste, vent or similar piping, electric wiring or mechanical or other work affecting public health or general safety."

In order to receive a building permit, the applicant must submit:

(1) Septic tank permit, if needed, for the Health Department.

(2) Zoning permit from the Township or City.

(3) Driveway permit, if needed, on County or State roads.

(4) Soil Erosion and Sedimentation permit, when needed.

(5) Two sets of building plans.

(6) Two sets of specifications. (Building measurements and materials to be used.)

(7) A check for the amount of permit.

Trumble says that requests for building inspections called in before 10 a.m. will usually be handled the same day. However, the department reserves the right to inspect within three working days.

Backfill inspection will be performed only when walls are finished, parging and scaling is complete, the weep tiles and pea gravel installed.

Rough inspection will be performed only before plumbing and electrical inspections are complete.

The building permit must be posted on project site prior to starting of building and must be maintained until final certificate is issued.

Trumble is meeting with county builders and contractors this Wednesday evening to acquaint them with the Michigan Building Code. The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock in the Top O' Michigan Auditoriunt in Boyne City.

No One Has Filed

Petitions Available

Although several petitions have been taken out, no one has officially filed for the Charlevoix City Charter Commission.

City officials say petitions, bearing the signatures of 12 residents, must be in by 4 p.m. on February 17 to be eligible for April 7.

During the April 7 election, residents will be deciding on whether or not they want to replace the present Fourth Class City Act with a homerule charter.

In addition to voting on the charter question, residents will select nine residents to serve on the commission.

Salaries for the non-partisan commisaion positions have not been decided.

There are presently 243 Home Rule Chartered cities in Michigan, while there are only 21 still operating under the Fourth Class Cities Act.

Famous People in History

BRIGHAM YOUNG

Brigham Young was born in Vermont in 1801. He was a painter by trade and settled in New York near where Joseph Smith, the founder of the Mormon Church, lived. Young converted and was baptized a Mormon in 1832. He served several years as a missionary then succeeded Smith as head of the church in 1847. As head of the Mormon church, Young directed the mass migration to Great Salt Lake in Utah. Pioneer's Day, a legal holiday in Utah, celebrates the arrival of the settlers at the Great Salt Lake. Young was the leader of the settlement and later was appointed Governor of the Utah Territory. Although removed as governor by President Buchanon, Young served as head of the Mormon church until his death in 1877.

COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD

MONGOLIA

Mongolia is a Soviet satellite country located between the U.S.S.R. and Red China. It is more than twice the size of Texas with one tenth the population. The capital and largest city is Ulan Bator. Mongolia has very little land suitable for agriculture and the base of its economy is its herds of livestock. Although large reserves of mineral resources are said to exist in Mongolia, the country is mostly underdeveloped. Most Mongols speak Mongolian and worship as Buddhists.

GHANA

Ghana is located on the Gulf of Guinea in western Africa. It is a little smaller than Oregon. Ghana has common borders with Ivory Coast, Upper Volta and Togo. The capital and largest city is Accra. Ghana is rich in mineral wealth and is a leading producer of diamonds. It is also the world's leading cocoa producer. Most Ghanans speak tribal languages or English.

Farmers Say Contaminated Milk Being Sold

Northern Michigan dairymen are claiming contaminated milk and meat are being sold over store counters across the state.

Some farmers, who have had their herds quarantined by the Michigan Department of Health because of P.B.B. contamination, say they are still able to sell their milk, but refuse to drink the milk themselves.

P.B.B. is poly-brominated bi-phenyl, a poisnonous substance used in making fire retardants which was mistaken for a food supplement and mixed with an aminal feed distributed to Michigan farmers by Michigan Farm Bureau Services.

The contaminated food supplement, has caused the death of an estimated 12,000 head of cattle and other animals throughout the state.

Another 5,000 are expected to be killed shortly, while one million chickens, 4.5 million eggs and 400 tons of feed have also been destroyed because of the mix-up.

Northern Michigan dairymen are becoming skittish because they can't seem to get any financial relief from either Michigan Farm Bureau or the state and are heading towards bankruptcy.

"Why does the State Bureau of Licensing allow these companies to continue selling insurance without at least settling claims?" asked Sherm Thomas, manager of the East Jordan Co-op near Charlevoix.

Thomas said at least 10 farmers in the Charlevoix County area have not received any settlements.

He added that they are being allowed to sell both their milk and meat even though their herds have been quarantined.

'Nobody knows what the aftermath of this will be.'

--Sherman Thomas, East Jordan

"Nobody knows what the aftermath of this will be," he said. "If it has the devasting effect on cattle like it has had then how much of this is going to be contacted by human consumption."

Both Thomas and local farmers say their milk is being sold through the Michigan Milk Producers Association and trucked to Detroit for bottling and distribution all over Michigan.

"These farmers are wondering what is happening to our Department of Agriculture and what's happen to the Director of Public Health for the State of Michigan," Thomas said.

"If they'd find a can of pork and beans on a store shelf that had any contamination, they would do eartwheels to get the public notified and get it up off the shelves."

The effect of P.B.B. contamination upon persons eating contaminated meat or eggs or drinking milk is not known.

Dr. Harold Humphries, environmental epdemicologist for the Michigan Department of Health, said: "There is no informative medical literature pertaining to human exposure to P.B.B., but the effects in animals are frightening."

He also said there may be no effects or that it will take some time for them to show up.

The State Department of Agriculture has set up a safety standard of three-tenths parts of P.B.B. in a million.

Dr. Humphries said that the Health Department is not concernd about farmers selling milk with P.B.B. levels less than the safety standard to the general public because when it is mixed with milk from other sources it is greatly diluted, and therefore thought not to be harmful.

Insurance claims totaling about $10 million have been paid out to owners of the cattle and there are still between $5 million and $10 million in claims outstanding, according to State Insurance Director Daniel J. Demlow.

"I think it may very well be that there's a rather large number of small claims still to be resolved," he said.

To date no one in the Charlevoix County area has received any insurance settlement, and now are finding it hard to meet farm mortgage payments.

"I'm not getting any money from Farm Bureau and I've quit paying some farm mortgages," says Paul Burk, a Charlevoix County farmer who has 120 cattle quarantined.

"Farm Bureau has just told us to keep hanging on and just keep feeding them."

He estimates it costs him $1,400 a week to feed his herd.

Milk sales from his farm have dropped from $5,333 a month to $1,800 a month over the last half year because of P.B.B. contamination.

"I'm at the point now that I'm not making any principal payments on my loans," he said.

"It means that I'm going bankrupt."

Burk said he and other farmers have tried to contact Governor William Milliken's office, who referred them to the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

"They told me there was nothing they could do at this time," he said.

State Senator Robert Davis (R-Gaylord) met in Charlevoix with Northern Michigan farmers last week to help solve some of the financial problems.

"I don't forsee any early solution to the problem," Davis said, adding that there are many legal ramifications with state assistance because it was a 'man made disaster.'"

Davis said the legislature has asked the State Health Department to determine if meat and milk contaminated with P.B.B. was safe to eat and drink.

Davis Expects Tax Hikes

By PEG OHLE

It's no secret Michigan is going to be in financial difficulty next fiscal year, says State Senator Robert Davis.

In a "state of the State" report to local citizens last week Davis said the legislature's immediate problem is in cutting the budget to help make up for the $200 million loss in taxes from the sales of food and drugs.

ROBERT DAVIS

"We do recognize we will have to raise other taxes to make up for part of this loss and we will also be short about $300 million because of general economic conditions," he said.

David said Governor William Milliken will recommend an increase of .6 or .7 percent in income taxes as a first step in meeting budget needs.

In an effort to increase employment, he said Milliken will also propose bond issues for mass transportation in the amount of $175 million, for capital outlay (constructing state buildings, etc.) in the amount of $200 million, and for housing (including that for senior citizens) in the amount of $400 million.

Citing how the entire state is in some way dependent upon the auto industry for employment, Davis said that north of a line between Bay City and Muskegon there are 41 plants hiring 81,000 persons whose jobs are linked with the fortunes of auto manufacturers.

When questioned by a student about the future of college tuition loans, David said that there would be a three percent increase to state institutions for this purpose, and that the governor would recommend a further increase.

Also for students, Davis reported that Governor Milliken would propose that a $300,000 fund be set up for summer employment to offset the anticipated loss of jobs in industry.

Senator Davis was questioned at length by a group of farmers and representatives of the East Jordan Co-Op about what he and other legislators were doing to help solve the financial problems of farmers whose cattle have been poisoned by the accidental addition of polybrominated bi-

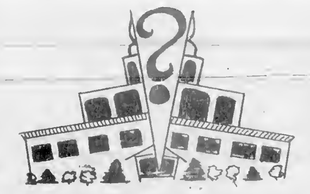
Local Planners Explore Merger



Thoughts of merger between Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township haven't died completely.

The Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission has been asked by the Charlevoix Township Board to do a feasibility study of the two governments merging.

Although the request is not an endorsement of merger, John Haggard, commission chairman, said it was a long-term approach to looking at the community.

"We want to look at what's going to happen to the community 20 years from now with two governments going their individual ways," he said.

"The township board gave us their oral consent for the regional planning commission to make a feasibility study because they felt it was the planning commission's role to take the action."

Haggard said that he plans to ask Charlevoix City Council next week for permission to do the study, since the commission involves both the township and city.

"If the city doesn't want us to do it, then we can't spend our time doing something they don't want us to study," he said.

Haggard said he plans to present the council with a list of topic areas the commission is interested in studying through nine citizen committee groups.

The areas range from water and streets to law and fire protection.

Each area would be headed by a local citizen with members from both the township and city serving on the committee.

The feasibility study comes after the township earlier indicated they were not interested in the city's offer to merge.

Charter Commission Attracts Residents

Although no one has officially filed their petitions for the Charlevoix City Charter Commission, at least 11 residents say they plan to do so.

Residents have until February 17 to file their petitions with 12 signatures to be in the April 7 contest.

If residents approve the charter question, they will have to elect nine residents to the commission.

It's Time to Get Ready for Mardi Gras

Charlevoix's second Winter Mardi Gras is less than a month away and local residents are asked to start getting their snow sculptures and parade entries ready.

Vince Olach, Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce director, says local businesses are finshing up last minute details for the February 8 activity.

"We would like to have some musical groups, floats and people walking in the parade," he said.

Besides the parade, Olach said they are planning to have downhill ski competition at Mt. McSauba, cross-country ski competition and the crowning of a queen and king.

Those having any questions about the snow sculpturing should contact Terry Salmonson at the Aartvark Studios. Questions about parade entries can be answered by Olach at the Chamber office.

First of a Series

Should Charlevoix Have A Charter Commission?

EDITOR'S NOTE: By February 17, Charlevoix residents will have to file their petitions for one of the nine charter commission seats on the April 7 ballot. But, what is a charter commission? What does it mean to change from a Fourth Class to a Home rule city? And should there be a change? The Charlevoix Courier scrutinizes these questions in a special series, "City Cnimmity?" beginning in this issue.

This week, the Charlevoix Courier asks one of Michigan's foremost experts Dr. Arthur W. Bromage, to offer some of his views in a special interview conducted last week at The University of Michigan. Dr. Bromage is of U of M political science professor and author of more than 100 articles and notes on municipal, county and state governments in America.

ANN ARBOR–While the nation's college campuses endured anti-Viet Nam protests and riots in the sixties, Ann Arbor had already gone through a quiet revolution 10 year earlier.

Unlike the student marches that led to mass arrests and destruction, several Ann Arbor officials led this quiet revolt.

Now retired, the University of Michigan political science professor looks back at his earlier endeavors with a chuckle.

But at the time, he said it seemed almost embarrassing that one of the nation's most progressive educational institutions was located in a city that had such an antiquated local government.

Nestled in a tiny fifth floor office in the University of Michigan's Haven Hall, the soft spoken former Ann Arbor City councilman told how the revolution started in 1953.

"We spent hours and hours in committee," he said. "There was no one really responsible for the whole city."

"We had four levels of authority at the time," he said.

He said there were the actual city council, the department heads, council committees and various commissions.

"Council was spending so much time on detail that it never got much done on general policy."

Dr. Bromage said it was equally confusing for city residents to live under Ann Arbor's Special Act Charter that was established in 1889.

He said people were coming to council with their assessment and garbage problems instead of going to city departments first to find out what the situation was.

"I was dealing with details, details, details," he said.

"What we wanted was to have some executive management."

Dr. Bromage said the city presented the problem to the public in 1953 and for the next two years under a charter commission, the community studied possible solutions to end Ann Arbor's pandemonium.

By 1955, Ann Arbor came up with what is known as a "home rule charter" drawn up by local citizenry that was voted on and passed by city residents.

Home rule generally refers to the authority of a city or village under a state's constitution and laws to draft and adopt a charter for its own government.

Dialing down your thermostat saves money. So if you haven't begun consistently maintaining lower temperatures in your home, you'll want to do so now.

1. You can save about 3% for every degree you permanently dial down during the heating season. For example, set your thermostat back five degrees, leave it there, and you'll save about 15%.
2. If you regularly set your thermostat back each night, you can save more than 1% for every degree dialed down for an eight-hour period. For example, set your thermostat back seven degrees and you'll save about 9%. Set it back 10 degrees and save about 12%.
3. Of course, you can save even more by leaving your thermostat down every day and dialing even further down at night.
4. You can save still more Gas and money by dialing down to 55 degrees while you're away from home for vacations or long weekends.

Any time you dial down for more than five hours you save. Just how much you'll save depends on several factors. How many degrees you dial back. How many hours you maintain this lower temperature setting. And the weather. The colder the weather, the greater the savings.

Our Gas is your lowest cost fuel. Use it efficiently and you'll save even more. So if you haven't begun dialing down, do it now. The savings can really add up. Conserve America's vital supplies of Natural Gas, too.

What Would You Do With $174,000?

By PEG OHLE

What would you do if someone handed you $174,846?

The federal government says they want it spent in six months.

Mrs. Helen Phillips, deputy county clerk, explained the allocation to the Board of Commissioners at its regular meeting last week.

The money must be spent for public service work in such categories as governmental units, schools, hospitals, libraries, and mental health programs.

Each unit hires its own employees under the program. Persons eligible for jobs must be registered with the Michigan Employment Security Commission, must have exhausted unemployment benefits, or not be eligible for such benefits.

The $174,846 allotment is for the first six months of 1975, but it is anticipated there will be more funds available after that date, according to Mrs. Phillips.

At present there are approximately 25 persons employed in Charlevoix County under previous CETA funding.

They are working for the Health Department, the Road Commission, the Commission on Aging, the Department of Building Inspection, and in other government agencies, as well as for several school systems.

The County Board of Commissioners has appointed members Lee Moerland, Ralph Richardson and Martin Paul a committee to coordinate the CETA program within the county.

Delegates Named For State Meet

Eight delegates to the Democratic convention to be held in Detroit Jan. 25-26 were named at the Charlevoix county Democratic convention held at the county building here.

You can exercise without losing all your zip.

Unlike most exercises, these are not strenuous and breathtaking calisthentics. They are quiet movements which make the body respond to what you want it to do.

The classes are conducted twice a week in different locations by Mrs. Jane Sooey, who stresses that no one should work to the point of strain.

One person who advocates the exercise system explains, "You should not be a slave to an unsolicited attack of motion on your body. Rather, you must be so alert that you will not allow your body to be governed by anyone but yourself.

"And then there's obesity. So many of our friends who are now overweight could be helped by learning the ABC's of controlled movement... medical authorities warn us about heart disease - that over fifty percent of all deaths in these United States are going to be a result of this insidious attacked on our hearts. Circulatory diseases are on a frightening increase."

Those interested in joining the classes may do so by calling Mrs. Sooey at 547-2583. There is no charge for the classes, and no special clothing is needed. The only "equipment" is a bath mat.

Charlevoix Area Veterans Can Get Advice Locally

By PEG OHLE

Military veterans in Charlevoix County have a friend in the office of Veteran's Affairs.

Mrs. Lois Wasoski, who took over the job of Veteran's Counselor from her husband Robert last October, is in her office in the County Building three days a week to assist veterans and their dependents obtain benefits or other help for which they are eligible.

The office is open from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 a.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

The office telephone number is 547-9365, and Mrs. Wasoski may also be reached at 547-4140.

Mrs. Wasoski spends most of her time interviewing persons and helping them prepare the many necessary papers that are part of any government-related activity. She also reviews Veteran's Administration claims decisions to determine if the applicant was awarded proper benefits, reviews current legislation affecting veterans, and interprets it for them, prepares news items informing veterans of matters relating to them, and most important, reviews the estates of deceased veterans or their widows to determine burial payment and other death benefits.

In this connection, Mrs. Wasoski says veterans and servicemen should keep their families informed of any survivor benefits they may be entitled to upon death, such as dependency and indemnity compensation for service connected death, or non-service connected death pensions for widows.

Burial benefits for wartime and certain peacetime veterans include a maximum $250 burial or cremation allowance, plus a lot allowance not exceeding $150 for veterans buried outside national cemeteries. Survivors of veterans with service-connected disabilities are entitled to a flat $800 burial allowance.

Burial flags and headstone or grave markers are also available for many deceased veterans upon application.

Such documents as military separation papers, divorce decrees, guardianship or child custody evidence, birth, marriage and death certificates should be readily available to validate claims.

The Charlevoix County Veteran's Counselor is nominated by a county veteran's organization and appointed by the Veteran's Affairs Committee.

The Veteran's Affairs Committee is nominated by county veteran's organizations and appointed by the County Board of Commissioners. At the present time, the committee is made up of John Studer, representing and American Legion of Boyne City, William Bennett, representing the American Legion of East Jordan, and Cass Russell, representing the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Charlevoix. There is one vacancy on the committee.

Also located in the Veteran's Affairs office is a representative of the Veteran's Trust Fund committee. This committee has available to them a small amount of state money for use in helping out veterans during emergencies. The money is derived from interest on state government bonds.

Charlevoix County received $170 as its share of these funds for the current six months, but it will be enough to buy a few groceries, pay a utility bill, or meet some other pressing need of a few veterans who are in financial trouble.

Edward K. Shannahan of Charlevoix and Kenneth H. Richards of East Jordan are present members of the local Veteran's Trust Fund Committee. They serve without salary, and Shanahan has a desk in the Veteran's Affairs office, where he can be reached by appointment.

Both Mrs. Wasoski and Shanahan stress the point that one of the most important posessions of a veteran are his discharge papers, which should be readily available. In order to insure that they are, they may be registered in the office of the County Clerk.

Charlevoix Big Brothers Go Co-ed

As a result of recent nationwide studies in the social needs of one-parent families, Big Brothers of Charlevoix County is going Coed.

In our county alone there are more than 150 one parent families which involve over 250 children.

Until recently the major problem arose with boys in fatherless homes who had no male role model to emulate in their own development.

Today's more open and agressive society has been a major factor in an increase of about 85 percent in girls being involved in juvenile and criminal courts nation-wide.

It is for this reason that the Board of Directors of Big Brothers of Charlevoix County decided to expand the concept of their mission to include Big Sisters for girls in one-parent families.

The organization is now searching for a coordinator to handle the many facets which are included.

Applications are also being accepted from women volunteers who wish to be Big Sisters and/or to help direct the program from the administrative end.

Big Brothers continues its plea for men in the communities of Boyne City, Boyne Falls, East Eordan, Ironton, Charlevoix, and the surrounding area to avail themselves of the opportunity to help one boy become a better man through their influence.

For more information call Don Luedke at 547-6314 or write Big Brothers of Charlevoix County, P.O. Box 192, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720.

When Will PBB Be Checked Out?

Since early last fall the Courier has been telling the story of local cattlemen whose herds have been poisoned by poly-brominated bi-phenyl (P.B.B.), which was mistakingly mixed with animal feed.

The P.B.B. a fire retardant sold under the name Flame-Master, was shipped by the Michigan Chemical Company to Michigan Farm Bureau Services instead of Nutro-Master, an animal food supplement.

The two products look as alike as sugar and salt, but the effect upon animals contaminated with P.B.B. has been disasterous.

Cattle lose their breeding capacity and calves which are conceived are usually still-born or deformed. Adult cattle also lose weight, and often die. Dairy cattle milk production decreases notieeably before many of them die.

Financial losses to farmers run into millions of dollars. One local farmer, figuring modestly, has filed a claim for $132,000.

Thousands of contaminated cattle have been killed and buried on State land in Kalkaska County by Michigan Farm Bureau. Now the Farm Bureau has no more money for this purpose, and those farmers whose cattle are quaranteened must keep on feeding them although they know that eventually they will die or some arrangements must be made for killing them.

The Department of Agriculture has set a standard of .3 parts of P.B.B. in a million as a standard for dangerous contamination. Meat and milk from animals testing above that amount cannot be sold, but if contamination is below .3 parts such meat and milk can be sold on the open market for consumption by humans. Both the Department of Agrieulture and the State Health Department admit they do not know what effect eating P.B.B. contaminated meat or drink contaminated milk will have on humans.

It is a question that has never risen before, and one which may not be answered for years to come. The best the Health Department has been able to do so far is set up a series of short-term tests on a group of people in Newago County who used P.B.B. contaminated food products before the contamination was identified. Results of these tests are not yet available.

In the meantime, unknown quantities of meat and milk from contaminated cattle are being consumed by the innocent public. What might happen to them no one knows, and no one seems to care.

The fact that farmers with affected herds are caught in a legal snarl among insurance carriers is a serious money problem for the farmers. The fact that the public is eating contaminated food may well be a serious health problem for the public.

We think it is time for government officials who have been incapable of solving the problem up to now to take drastic action. Money must be forthcoming for the beleagured farmers and assurance given to the public that they are not eating food with any level of P.B.B. contamination.

Perhaps it is already too late, but must we wait for another thalidomide incident?

A Special Thanks To Judge Murphy

Probate Court Judge John T. Murphy deserves special recognition for volunteering to serve as acting 90th District Court judge until Governor William Milliken names a successor.

The veteran Emmet County Probate judge said recently that it would be much simpler for him to fill the seat temporarily than importing someone from another county.

In a time when there is a tendency to do only what one has to do to get by, we appreciate the judges generosity.

It is people like Judge Murphy that make our judicial system what it is today and after two years of turmoil in our own District Court, we are pleased he is offering some solidarity.

Again we appreciate his willingness to add to his already heavy load of Probate Court and step in temporarily as district judge.

We are also pleased to see that two Charlevoix County residents are willing to be considered for the District Judge appointment.

Both are well respected and would do a competent job in the position.

We hope now that both Charlevoix and Emmet County Board of Commissioners will act towards providing supplements to the state salary to attract the best people we can.

By BOB CLOCK

From where I sit, it appears that the only thing that is going to save the United States from total financial collapse in the next two years is an unprecedented display of statesmanship on the part of the nation's labor organizations.

And unless labor acts promptly, I am afraid the country is riding for a fall that will make the Crash of 1929 look like the August Dinner on Beaver Island.

I'd like to see Leonard Woodcock, George Meany and their colleagues in the top echelon of the labor movement stand up and demand that industry cut wages and trim fringe benefits. At the same time I'd like to have them insist upon higher quality workmanship and greater productivity among union members, in exchange for a promise that corporate profits and executive salaries will be reduced proportionately.

And my interpretation of labor doesn't stop with the UAW and the AF of L. It extends to state and national education organizations, bar associations, in the various states and that gigantic conferation of healers known as the American Medical Association.

In fact, I would like to see labor representatives of every stripe ready to set up picket lines if business and industry appear unwilling to take the steps necessary to bring the economy under control.

Workingmen on strike for lower wages and fewer fringes?

Certainly, because that is what it is going to take to prop up our reeling economy.

Unfortunately, President Ford's program will never do the job — and I think he knows it.

The paltry little refund on federal income taxes that he has recommended will have virtually no impact on the nation's production, because in most cases the money already has been spent on goods that were consumed long ago.

All the Ford refund will do is transfer a portion of the private debt to the public sector, where it will add fuel to inflation and further decrease the value of the poor U.S. dollar.

The President himself tells us that the national deficit by the end of next year will reach an unprecedented $500 billion — a sum so astronomical that few of us are capable of translating it into terms that make any sense.

Ford—bless his heart—tried to call it a "temporary" deficit, but he knows and you know and I know there is nothing temporary about it. We will earry it on the books as long as we live in terms of devalued currency and a greatly reduced standard of living.

What bothers me most is that few of my compeers in the workaday world seem to know what is happening or what will happen unless the economy is turned around immediately. The President may be able to "spend" his way out of the present recession, but only at the expense of the American dollar — which translates into your bank account, your home, your business and your spendable income.

Do not believe for one minute that it was a coneidence that gold came back on the market when it did. Congress knows, as we all should know, that if the value of the dollar decreases much more, your life savings, your investments, your home, your insurance policies — all will be worthless.

The only commodity which, traditionally, is capable of withstanding such an onslaught in the marketplace is gold. And if our present economic course continues unchanged, the only commodity that will be of any value after the dust settles is gold.

Unfortunately, the money now being invested in gold is money taken from investment capital where it is sorely needed, further complicating our economic woes.

However, labor could bail us out and save the jobs of millions of workingmen at the same time by insisting on a more responsible pay structure for both themselves, management and stockholders.

But such statesmanship is practically unheard of in America today.

Appreciates Help

For 25 years now this department has been disseminating information concerning the care and treatment of the mentally ill, the value of Traverse City State Hospital to the greater Grand Traverse area, and any other information helpful to a better understanding between community and institution.

During these years, especially the last decade, we have had tremendous changes here at Traverse City State Hospital. It has been and remains imperative that our communities be made aware of these changes.

We would like to express our sincerest appreciation to you and all your staff for the assistance given to us over the past 12 months. There is no other way we could have provided information regarding the changing situation. We have been aware of the increase in the cost of news dissemination and thus doubly grateful for your doing your very best in our behalf.

May we wish you and yours a most rewarding 1975.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Editor:

I enjoy the Courier, have been a subscriber for many years, however, I became very perturbed when I read your headlines this fall. "Girls Kill Elk Rapids"

Enjoys Courier

We want to take this opportunity to tell you how much we enjoy the Courier.

It makes us feel a part of your unique community, although we are just "week-enders" at our South Arm home.

You were right about the beauty of the town with it's Christmas lights! We were there over New Years' and it was breath-taking sight from the hill on Bridge St.

I suppose you have the same problems that all small towns have, but you have the advantage of turning away from the petty and the mundane, and look upon all of that beauty that surrounds you.

It is truly "Charlevoix, The Beautiful".

Yours sincerely,

HOW BUREAUCRACY IS BUILT

The Consumer Product Safety Commission, which has been supported by most segments of the economy, including industry, is proposing regulations which go far beyond the intent of Congress.

The Congress again and again urged "reasonableness" in the administration of the new safety law by the Commission. Yet in light of the Commission's proposed rules for company recordkeeping and public disclosure of all complaints (even frivolous and false complaints), it seems that the intent of reasonableness expressed in the Consumer Product Safety Act has been overlunked. If the proposals are adopted, it could add hundreds of millions of dollars to the cost of producing consumer products.

Under the Commission's proposed system, sophisticated—and expensive—reporting and recordkeeping procedures will have to be developed so that the company does not lay itself open to crushing liability suits and government action as well. What company can afford to risk civil penalties for non-compliance of up to $500,000 and criminal penalties for willful violations up to $50,000 and a year's imprisonment?

The cost of the necessary employee training, recording forms, instructional materials, development of procedures for validating and investigating claims, and legal research to determine what records are protected by law, would run into hundreds of millions of dollars. Naturally these costs would mean increased product prices for consumers, without much, if any, added benefit to them in terms of product safety.

It seems likely that when President Ford recently called upon all branches of government to assess the costs and the "inflation impact" of their regulatory actions, he was referring to regulations such as this one.

If it Fitz

Gee, I'm Sorry Colonel

By JIM FITZGERALD

Relax, folks. Although retired, Colonel Norman Bedell is still protecting you from jerks like me.

From his home in Kettering, Ohio, the colonel has written a passionate plea to preserve the ponderous profundity of the Pentagon ("Wipe that smile off your face, soldier"). He has strongly urged that I "publicly apologize for the biased, slanderous and erroneous statements" I made in a recent column concerning General George Brown, the bigot who is chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

You'll remember that Gen. Brown made front pages when he made a speech blaming troubles in the mid-east on rich Jews who own all the banks and newspapers in the United States.

Under pressure from President Ford, who threatened to free his valet, the general subsequently apologized for his stupid prejudices. And I subsequently wrote a column explaining the most important function of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

It was a timely explanation, because that was the week a soldier was sentenced to the stockade for having long hair. I revealed for the first time that the chiefs of the Navy, Army, Marine Corps and Air Force are called the Joint Chiefs because it is their tremendous responsibility to administer the joint test to all uncommissioned members of the military. The test is that no lock of an enlisted man's hair can be longer than the 1st joint of the middle finger of a Chief of Staff.

Col. Bedell is a former member of the Joint Staff and he took exception to my remarks.

"Even a minimum of research would have revealed that Gen. Brown has far more important things to do than worry about the length of hair on a soldier, sailor, airman or marine," Col. Bedell wrote.

Honest, he really wrote that in a letter to an editor. This nation can't really afford to allow such brilliant officers to retire. They should be required to stay on duty until they are 100 years old, or until the crease disappears from their tailored fatigue uniforms, whichever comes first.

Col. Bedell conceded that Gen. Brown's speech on Jews was "ill-advised" but he chastised me for failing "to make it clear that Gen. Brown's statement on Jewish influence was off the record."

I'm sorry, Gen. Brown was talking to Duke University law students. He didn't intend for anyone else to learn that this nation's top military officer is a biased jackass. If he wanted the entire world to know, he would include kike jokes in his Morning Reports.

I hope that clears that up.

Col. Bedell was also upset by my admission that I once walked out on a speech by the chairman of the Joint Chiefs. "How can Mr. Fitzgerald learn anything about current military policy if he leaves the room where the nation's top military officer is going to speak?" he asked.

The Pentagon bombed Cambodin for a year and didn't even tell the Secretary of the Air Force about it. Gen. Brown wouldn't tell me it was Tuesday even if I could prove I already knew yesterday was Monday.

But don't get me wrong. I was flattered to heur from a former Joint Chief. And it was reassuring to learn that, although retired, Col. Bedell is still keeping his finger in things.

Meet Charlevoix ....Janet Ready

Mrs. Janet Ready is Charlevoix County campaign director for the March of Dimes. Here she tells some things about The National Fundation–March of Dimes and why it is important to continue its work.

COURIER: Why did The National Foundation–March of Dimes undertake the fight against birth defects after the conquest of polio?

READY: Birth defeets are n far more serious childhood health menace than polio ever was. They had been recognized, yet neglected for centuries. When victory over polio was assured, it was decided that the Foundation's specialized programs in research, medical services, professional and public health education could be applied to the birth defects problem. Therefore, the fight against birth defects was undertaken in 1958.

COURIER: What is a birth defect?

READY: It is an abnormality of structure, function, or metabolism either genetically determined or the result of environmental interference during embryonic life.

COURIER: What does The National Foundation hope to accomplish in the fight against birth defects?

READY: Its mission is to feed, direct, and unify the fight to prevent birth defects and their consequences. To do this, it supports programs of research, medical services, professional and public health education, and community service.

READY: Birth defects are the nation's second greatest destroyer of life. Approximately 500,000 unborn babies and over 60,000 children and adults die from them each year. Every year some 250,000 American babies are born with birth defects.

COURIER: What are some of the common types of birth defects?

READY: Congenital heart disease, clubfoot, spina bifida, polydactyly (extra fingers and toes), phenylketonuria (PKU), sickle cell anemin, diubetes, Duwn syndrome (mongolism), lack of one or more limbs, and mental retardation of prenatal origin.

COURIER: Are all defects detectable at birth?

READY: No, there are many defects that are present at birth but remain hidden. Some do not make their presence known until the victim reaches late childhood or even adulthood.

COURIER: Can any birth defects be prevented?

READY: Yes, some. Rh blood disease can now be prevented by a serum. A vaccine against German measles (rubella), a major cause of birth defects, is now in use. A number uf other defects such as PKU and water on the brain can often be treated successfully with modern medical and surgical techniques if detected early enough.

COURIER: How is prenatal care important in preventing birth defects?

READY: Prenatal care can often reduce the risk of death ur disability from birth defects and prematurity. Besides instructing the mother-to-be about nutrition, exercise, physical hygiene and medications, physicians can frequently detect and control conditions which may threaten the health of the mother or her unborn child.

COURIER: What happens to March of Dimes funds collected in Charlevoix County?

READY: Last year we collected $2,720. We spent $2,106 fur medical services for five patients.

COURIER: How is the March of Dimes campaign set up in Charlevoix County.

READY: We have an executive board of ten members which meets in the fall and spring. At these meetings we review the financial report of Treasurer Roger Rozema, vote on how the money can best be spent after reviewing cases presented to us, evaluate campaign policies and the outcome of campaigns, inform leaders on up-to-date research, breakthroughs, and policies of The National Foundation–March of Dimes.

COURIER: Who are members of this executive committee?

Retired Farmer

He's A Poet and Doesn't Even Know It

He's a poet and doesn't even know it?

But he does know it and doesn't want to show it.

Perhaps it seems a little strange that a retired man would begin writing poetry, but it doesn't seem odd at all to the one-time Charlevoix County farmer.

He started his writing career several years ago, after he retired from farming and began working at Freedman Artcraft to build up some Social Security.

"I just felt good and things," he said.

"I know one thing...a cockeyed poem will hit me and I'll have to get up and write it down even in the middle of the night."

The tall, lanky man moved to this country with his parents when he was 14-months-old.

"I'm an American Czech," he said proudly while resting his huge hands on his knees.

"I'm not like some from the old country, I'm proud of it."

Wearing brown leather work boots and blue overalls, the smiling older man began to settle back in his chair and relate how proud he was to be a naturalized citizen.

"I try to do one thing and that's vote every time," he said.

"It is terribly important that the American people retain their voting privileges or they will lose their form of government."

When asked why he felt so strongly about voting, Kubicek's face turned from a smile to a frown.

It was almost as if he had seen a ghost, his voice began to sound more serious.

"I do a lot of reading," he said.

"Reading, even novels, is an eduction in itself," he said.

The Bohemian settlement farmer related how his parents used to sit up nights and talk about the homeland after a hard day of raising potatoes.

"I read and heard my folks talk about the government they were under," he continued.

"They were under Austrian control."

But, he said his parents did not lose their Czech identity.

"Any time any country is dominated by another one, it is taken advantage of in one form or another," he said.

Kubicek said, for instance, that his grandfather had to serve 12 years in the army and was forced to set up a home for his wife and leave her for 12 years.

"She at the same time, until 1848, had to serve as a serf to a local manor owner...which is nothing but slavery," he said.

"Her work was field work."

The retiree said his grandmother had to crawl on her knees to do her work and the arthritis got so bad she almost had to crawl everywhere the last 14 years of her life.

"Some of those manor owners spent their time and money at the courts of Europe," he said.

"My parents spent evenings around the stove talking about it."

He said he also does a lot of reading of Czech and American literature and can read between the lines.

Kubicek lived on his parents' Bohemain settlement farm, which is located just outside of East Jordan, until eight years ago.

After his parents died in the late thirties, he decided to try working at what was then called the East Jordan Canning Company.

"I stayed there for two years and there was nothing," he said.

For another two years, he sailed with the Pittsburg Steam Ship Company working as a second cook.

But missing his home, Kubicek returned to the farm.

"I didn't do what my folks did, I raised stuff I could sell for a decent price," he said.

Kubicek never got married.

"When marriage attracted me no one wanted a farm boy," he continued.

Then, eight years ago, he moved to Charlevoix and began work at Freedman's until his retirement.

Russell's Remains in 2nd Place Tie

By CHUCK WRIGHT

Russell's Shell remained in a second place tie with Jim's Clark in the Lake Michigan division of the B league with an exciting 62-55 victory over Andy's Tire World.

The team is two games behind Charlevoix County State Bank.

Mike Crain sparked Russell's into holding a slim 41 to 39 lead when he came on to score 12 of his 24 points. He had a lot of help however.

After a strong start, Andy's has now dropped below .500 for the first time this year.

Jim's Clark pulled off the upset of the week, defeating league leader Charlevoix County State Bank 63-51. It was the Bankers second loss.

Jim's trailed throughout the contest, but made a fourth quarter comeback as Jerry Skippergosh sank six foul shots and Vince Left added six more points. Left and Steve McClellan both had 14 for the game while Skippergosh and Brian VanLoo had 12.

For the Bankers, Larry Skippergosh and Dennis LaCroix had 14 and Steve Martinis chipped in 10.

Alray Cottages defeated the slumping Medusa squad 55-37. After a close first quarter, Alray began pulling away. Scott Blanchard hit for 18 while Jay Mescryak added 13. Chuck Bascom was the only bright spot for Medusa as he scored 18.

In the Lake Charlevoix division, Village Milk House is really rolling. After upsetting Kenney's last week, the Dairymen came back and trounced First State Bank 92-42. Dale Boss poured in 35 points from all over the court. Gary Novotny and Denny Way each had 18 and Jerry Sandahl 11. Larry Roth scored 16 for the Bankers while Glen Taylor added 15.

Kenney's Excavating retained their one game lead over the Milk House by downing John Deere 75-44. A 27 second quarter was the difference in the ballgame. Max Bolser and Jack Danbert had the hot hands ns they hit for 24 and 23 points respectively. Paul Stanfield added 12 and Terry DeVries 10. Hal Evans scored 14 and Jim Wynns 10 for John Deere.

Wojan Aluminum evened its season record at 4-4 with a strong 55-37 victory over Muma's. Trailing 14-12 at the end of the first quarter, Wojan's, led by Don Ward and Don Smith, made a strong comeback to lead 27-21 at halftime. Ward scored 16 for the game and Smith 13. For Muma's, Bill Genge had 13 and Mike Mappis 11.

In the A league, Roger Crain scored 30 as Freedman Artcraft blitzed the hapless Coast Guard 96-49. From the outset the game was no contest although the Coast Guard played with its usual great enthusiasm. Bernie DeVries had 16, Terry Blissett 13, and Mike Bade 11. For the Coasties, Marty Richardson had 13 and Gregg Waller 11.

Swanson's K & D rolled over Haggard's 90-55. Bob DeYoung had his best game of the season as he dropped in 26. Bruce Meggison contributed 24, Kevin Swanson 16, Jee Jones 14 and Dave Swanson 10. Dave Fershee had 17 for Haggard's while Frank Hackett added 14.

The Town House remained one game in front of Freedman's with a come-from-behind 74-61 win over Bob's Sunoco. Down 28-20 in the middle of the second quarter, the Town House came out in the third and scored 28 points. That blitz combined with Dave Strawbridges outstanding defensive job on Hud Drenth was enough for victory.

Dan McKenzie and Spook Coleman paced the Twun House attack with 16 points. Joe Beaudoin contributed 12. For Bob's, Harold DeYoung dropped in 18, Drenth managed 17, Bon Boss 12, and Dwight Boss 14.

Flu Hurts Charlevoix Matmen

The flu bug plus a powerful Rogers City Huron wrestling team spelled disaster for the Charlevoix Rayders Thursday night by a score of 51-9.

The Charlevoix JV team suffered its first defeat of the season, losing by a score of 21-12.

This week Charlevoix will travel to Sault Ste. Marie on Tuesday and host Boyne City here on Thursday.

In the meet with Rogers City, Charlevoix posted wins in only two weight classes. They included 6-3 decision by Terry Mol over John Bellmore in the 145 pound class and a pin in 4:58 by Jim Sladek over Alan Pines in the 185 pound class.

In the other events, Mike Kitely (98) lost by a pin in 2:32 to Paul Radke; Jeff Skelton (105) by a 9-3 decision to John O'Toole; Don Trost (112) by 9-2 decision to Pat Lamb; Dan Key (119) by pin in 1:01 to Mike Barrett; Frank Olach (126) by pin in 3:51 to Randy Elowsky; Terry Drew (132) by pin in 4:57 to Andy Centala; Brad Snizik (138) by pin in :59 to Alan Dagner; Dan Mort (155) by 12-3 decision to Claude Vogelheim; Gary Probert (167) by pin in 3:52 to Jamie Plath; Alan Gray (heavyweight) by pin in 4:22 to Don Martinies.

Losing their matches were Mike Byard (98) by pin in 4:59 to Rod Kreuger; Rex Hodge (119) by pin in 4:30 to Mike Radke; Dan Bruce (132) by 5-1 decision to Bob Asam; Mike Snizik (155) by 8-6 decision to Tim Schaedig; Greg Loper (167) by 9-2 decision to John Claus.

Grapplers Take 6th

Coach Norin Probert said this was the first time the Rayders had participated in this particular type of tournament. He went on to say that it is a change in pace in the wrestling season which offers competition in one of the most important areas of the sport, the take down.

Petoskey won the tourney with 171 points, the only Class B team in the meet. They were followed by Pine River with 159 points; Glen Lake, 133; Frankfort, 112; Grayling, 106.

Other teams and their points include Traverse City JV's, 92; Marion, 85; Elk Rapids, 84; Manistee Catholic, 82 and Mancelona, 40.

The Charlevoix team was composed of only nine men because of the flu which kept one team out of the meet, Probert said.

Paul Krause, principal of Ebenezer Christian School and Marvin Rubingh flew to Iowa City, Iowa this weekend. They visited Mr. Krauses' brother Bill at the University of Iowa Hospital. Bob was severely burned several weeks ago and is in the burn unit, where he is receiving skin grafting. Another brother, Bill is a patient at Craig Rehab, 34275 S. Clarkson Englewood, Colorado, following a tractor accident, several weeks ago. This was a special for Marvin, as it was his first flying adventure and on his 14th birthday.

Mrs. Bessie Nowakowski had surgery last week and is recuperating at Traverse City Osteopathic Hospital.

phenyl (P.B.B.) to their feed.

"I don't forsee an early solution to the problem," Davis replied, adding that there were many legal ramifications and it was a "man made disaster."

"It didn't take you long to do something for the auto workers when they were laid off work," replied Alvin Grace who recently lost a herd of beef cattle by poisoning.

"How do we go about getting rid of our animals that have been condemned, that we can't sell but that we have to keep feeding?" asked another farmer.

"The Farm Bureau has run out of money to bury these animals and we can't eat our meat or drink our milk," he added.

Davis' answer was that the legislature had asked the State Health Department to determine if meat and milk contaminated with P.B.B. was safe to eat and drink. "We are also working with the Department of Agriculture," he said.

Charter

"This is unlike legislative establishment of local charters by special act, which results in the cities having hand-me-down charters from state capitols," he said.

Charlevoix became a city under Michigan's Fourth Class City Act in 1905.

He said home rule frees cities to devise forms of government and exercise powers of local self-government under locally prepared charters adopted by local referendum.

Charlevoix residents will be deciding on April 7 whether or not they want to consider replacing the present Fourth Class City Act with a home rule charter.

Bromage said it is important to remember that voting on the question of city charter only enables a city to examine various forms of government through the establishment of a charter commission.

Before any official changes could be made it would have to be put through another city-wide vote.

While Charlevoix residents are voting on whether or not they want to establish a charter commission, they will also be selecting nine residents to sit on the commission.

Residents interested in serving on the conmission must file a petition bearing signatures of 12 residents by February 17.

"I'm not saying it is a good thing for you" Bromage said about changing to a home rule city.

He said it simply gives a city the chance to evaluate its present system of government.

"For us, we got citizens off the spot of where they go, now they can go to the city administrator," he said.

As a result of changing to home rule, Bromage said his city probably achieved a more professional police and fire department, as well as public health, public works and park and recreation departments.

"At least now we have one administrator you can go to if you have a problem," he said.

"You have someone to tell you what might happen six months from now, if you decide to go a particular way."

Once a charter commission is established, Bromage said, if they're smart they will first hold public hearings with present and past mayors, city councilmen and department heads to see how things are operating now.

After the public hearings, the U of M professor said a lawyer or person who acts as a charter consultant should present copies of other charters.

It's not cheap, but you have to remember that this is something for generations and generations," he said.

He added that those serving on a charter commission should realize it is a responsible position requiring many night meetings.

"It's a very responsible position and once it is cleared by the governor, the charter has to go to the people," he added.

"They should tell they're not flying blind beeause there are hundreds of home rule charters in Michigan."

Bromage emphasized that city residents make the final decision.

"If you don't like what they (the charter commission) do, you can vote it down," he said.

In the 45 years he has been going around the state, Bromage says it sometimes takes two or three attempts to get a city charter that is agreenble with the nanjority of people.

"And even if you lose, you're one up," he said.

DICK OESTRIKE of Porlside Sports explained how to purchase cross country ski equipment in a special clinic held Sunday at Beourke's Steak and Slein

ONCE THE indoor instruction was over, participants gave it a try on the snow at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course. Some 50 residents participated in the free afternoon clinic.

UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
106 State Street
Sunday School 9:45 a.m.
Sunday Services 11 a.m.
Minister: Elmer J. Faust

The Charlevoix United Methodist Church is located at 106 State St., a place which it has held for 100 yr. It is part of a circuit which includes the Greensky Hill Indian Church. The charge is pastored by Elmer Faust, who has held this appointment for the past 5 yr. It is in the Grand Traverse District of which the superintendent is Dr. Donald Scranton, Traverse City. The area bishop is Bishop Dwight Loder of Detroit.

We believe that the church exists for the maintenance of worship, the edification of believers, and the redemption of the world. We believe The Bible is God's Word. We practice 'open communion'. We practice the several modes of baptism. We preach Christ, crucified, risen, and coming again, as the one hope of salvation for our race and for our society. We believe that the world is our parish and that our task is to bring to its suffering and sin the promise of new life in Jesus Christ.

Regular Sunday services at the church include: Sunday School for persons of all ages, at 9:45 a.m.) Sunday worship at 11 a.m.) Youth Fellowship at 6 p.m.) Several small groups (for prayer and discussion) meet weekly at various homes. Meeting places are announced from week to week. The Women's Society includes three 'circles', each meeting monthly, at varying locations. All meetings are open to the public and attendance is encouraged.

MALI

Mali is a landlocked country in western Africa, larger than Texas but smaller than Alaska. It shares borders with seven African countries. Mali has nearly five million people, most of whom are either farmers or cattle raisers. The capital and largest city is Bamako. Much of the northern portion of Mali is in the Sahara Desert. The official language is French but tribal languages are common.

GUINEA

The small country of Guinea is located on the western coast of Africa. It has a coastline on the Atlantic Ocean and shares borders with six countries. Guinea is slightly smaller than Oregon but has nearly twice as many people. The capital and largest city is Conakry. At present, Guinea is mainly an agricultural country but its large mineral deposits such as diamonds and iron are becoming more and more important to the economy.

Robert Neff Retires From Charlevoix Grocery Store

The switch ends 25 years of business for old-time grocer Bob Neff, who will be going into semi-retirement.

The brown brick store at the corner of Bridge and Mason has stood almost as long as anyone can remember.

Before Bob and his brother, Gordon, took over the operation in 1950, Milton Block ran the business for many years.

Gourmet Offerings

Summer residents have become acquainted with the store through its large gourmet offerings and the meat counter.

The corner grocery, like so many Charlevoix stores, has had its share of famous people, like Henry Ford II, pass between its aisles.

But even with the grandeur of well-known personalities, you ask Bob Neff what he'll remember and miss the most about ending his career and you might be surprised.

"I've liked all the people," he said.

"I like all kinds of people. There's something good about everyone."

The break-ins were only the third he has experienced in his 25 year history.

Being right on the waterfront, Neff says he has had some unusual experiences for a grocer.

"One time I pulled a kid out of the lake," he said while working in the backroom behind the meat counter.

"I ran down and pulled him out," he recalled.

Like Job

Neff says he has liked his job because of all the people he has met in the course of his work.

Neff isn't sure what he will do during retirement.

"I'm just going to slow-up," he said.

"I have to do something.

"I'm too young to retire."

Neff didn't get into the Charlevoix grocery business with his brother until after he had first left his hometown of Charlevoix for a few years.

After high school, he went to Detroit to work for a die-casting company and then in 1940, he joined the Michigan State Police and worked as a trooper for 10 years.

Purchased Business

"My brother was working on the railroad bridge here and business was starting to go down," he continued.

So the two purchased the business from Milton Block. Gordon Neff retired several years ago, but he is known to many residents for his wood carvings.

Last year, the business was purchased by Ken Peterson of Petoskey, but Neff remained as manager.

Replacing Neff as manager is Leo Bullian.

Originally from Beaver Falls, Pennsylvania, located just outside of Pittsburgh, the 33-year-old Bullian has managed several men's clothing stores.

Likes Towns

"I like the idea of a small town," he said about deciding to move to Charlevoix from Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Although he went to school at Northern Michigan University, before graduating from Indiana University, Bullian said he had never been to Charlevoix until last year.

He said he had always wanted to move back up north and was glad he could take advantage of this opportunity.

Council Tables Request For City Administrator

After assuring Robert Wexstaff that he would stay on as city administrator, Mayor Edward Hansen sought on Monday night to win council's support to appoint him permanently.

Hansen made the recommendation after being pushed for a decision on hiring one of three other candidates council had interviewed. Council tabled the request.

Wexstaff, Charlevoix's city assessor, has been filling the city administrator's spot on a temporary basis for 1½-years.

"I'm not dissatisfied with the man we have now," Hansen told the council.

In light of the changing economy and the money already saved the city through Wexstaff's efforts, Hansen said he wanted to make Wexstaff's position permanent.

The Charlevoix mayor then pulled a chart out of his brief case and showed statistics where city taxes had been decreasing during his administration and where he had not been robbing the electric fund to cover other city expenses, as he said he was charged having done.

Hansen said he didn't think it would be wise at this time to replace Wexstaff.

"We had no intention of relieving Mr. Wexstaff," Councilman McRae replied.

McRae said it was the opinion of the council that they would retain him as city assessor and hire a new administrator.

"I think there is enough work for Mr. Wexstaff and a city administrator," he said.

Hansen said hiring another city administrator would cost the city at least $30,000 and raise city millage a minimum of one mill.

Hansen said he based this figure on a salary of $16,500 plus another 40 percent for fringe benefits, as well as supplying him with a car and office.

"I would hope the decision would be made before the election, so it wouldn't be political," interjected Councilman George Plumm, who moved the action be tabled.

The mayor, who is seeking re-election next month, said he was not making this a political issue.

"I'm not going to break another man into this job," Hansen said.

"I don't think it is political."

Hansen said after the meeting that he wasn't about to waste money by hiring another city administrator.

"It's been hanging in the fire too long," said Councilman Ralph McRae, who is also running for mayor.

"I didn't want to bring it up personally because it could turn into a political situation."

Mardi Gras is Almost Here!

Downtown merchants have been meeting with the Chamber of Commerce to plan a whole day of activities that will take place February 8.

Official ballots for electing a King and Queen to reign over the one-day event are expected to be out this week in local businesses.

Then you simply have to pay 50 cents for each ballot you want to cast.

The money will be going towards either Mt. McSauba, the Charlevoix County Humane Society or for a citizen's band radio transceiver for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department to monitor emergency calls made on Channel 9, a CB emergency network.

Counting of the ballots will be on Friday night, Feb. 8, at the Grey Gables.

In addition to the King and Queen competition, downhill and cross ski races, as well as snow sculpturing competition are planned.

Those entering the snow sculpturing will be eligible for more than $100 in gift certificates from local merchants and restaurants.

Charlevoix May Get First Athletic Club

Charlevoix may find itself with four indoor tennis courts, handball courts and a competition swimming pool in the near future if all goes according to plans.

William R. Schleman of Stream-Eze and a Charlevoix summer resident is seeking the zoning changes for the complex on Stover Road, west of Wojan Aluminum.

Schleman said the athletic club has received no objection from Wojan.

Located on the northeast portion of the property, Schleman said they are proposing rental apartments along the bluff overlooking Lake Charlevoix.

The matter has been sent to Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission by the City Council.

In other action, council:

–Heard a report from Stan Hammond regarding the progress of the Charlevoix Housing Commission and authorized a $1,000 appropriation to cover expenses.

–Appointed Robert Barnum to the Board of Review and David Jullieret to the Salary Commission.

–Approved use of snowmobiles on specified routes in the city on Saturday of Mardi Gras weekend providing liability insurance is obtained.

Board Resets Election

The date for the spring election for operational millage and possibly millage for a limited building program was changed to April 21 from April 7 by the Charlevoix Board of Education Monday night.

At the same time, district voters consider operational millage, the board is also asking for approval of millage to underwrite the cost of modification of the Middle School; the construction of six classrooms and an all-purpose room at the high school.

The request would also include purchase of property on M-66 in Charlevoix township as a future site for a high school and the construction of a complete outdoor athletic complex.

The entire project would cost an estimated $1.8 million which would require an estimated 1.7 mills levy over an extended period of time.

The board also announced there will be no smoking in the Charlevoix public school buildings during public meetings (such as school board meetings) athletic events and halftime periods of athletic events. The directive will become effective at once.

Should Charlevoix Have A Charter Commission?

EDITOR'S NOTE: With the February 17 deadline for the Charter Commission petitions nearing, the Courier offers its second in a special series, "City Calamity?"

While Courier readers learned last week how a new city charter helped Ann Arbor, this week the Charlevoix Courier looks at a city that is going to revert back to its old form of government.

Detroit News political writer Pat Murphy reveals for the Courier how Flint is going back to a strong mayor system under its new charter. Murphy, who has been covering the state political scene for two years, used to be a labor writer for The State Journal in Lansing.

By PAT MURPHY

FLINT – After years of seeing itself as a leaderless community floundering in the backwash of urban problems, Flint is abandoning its city-manager form of government in favor of a strong mayor system.

Despite a deep suspicion of government–fueled by occasional scandals over its municipal history–Flint is in the early process of selecting a chief executive who could be paid more than any other mayor in Michigan.

Flint's new charter, approved last November, abolishes its city-manager form of government and calls for a strong chief executive.

Under the current charter, the Flint mayor has had little more than ribbon-cutting powers and is primarily a ceremonial chief executive selected by part-time city councilmen from wards rather than in city-wide elections.

Flint will retain the ward system of electing councilmen under the new charter–providing residents with a direct link to city hall.

"The old charter was designed to diffuse power," explained attorney Carl L. Bekofske, who headed the charter revision commission and acknowledges being interested in the mayor's job. And it did just that.

"But I really think it also frustrated people for a strong leader who could be held accountable."

Under the new charter, which was approved by 61 percent of the voters and will take effect next November, the next Flint mayor will be elected to a four-year term. He will have appointive and initiative powers and limited veto power over the council.

In short, he will be the focal point of municipal power –the place where the proverbial buck stops.

Residents expect to get more leadership – an accountability – with a strong mayor. Enough, possibly to enable Flint to shuck its "factory town" image and live up to its potential as a vibrant city, civic leaders hope.

City power brokers are intent on getting a high-caliber executive with integrity and a reputation for honesty.

Those are vital prerequisites for the mayor of any city, but seem particularly important in Flint because its government image has been tarnished.

Over the years occasional grand jury investigations have been called to probe allegations of graft, corruption and malfeasance by the "city hall clique," a group if which councilmen and police are sometimes lumped.

As recent as 1970, the mayor and councilmen were indicted by a grand jury, but later exonerated by the Michigan Court of Appeals, for soliciting a bribe from a Lansing firm in exchange for favorable votes on a housing project.

Earlier this year, still another grand jury began looking into alleged bribery connected with municipal rezoning, cable television contracts and city contracts.

Many insist the Flint picture isn't that bleak. They point to some rejuvenation of the downtown area, a fine educational system and an extensive recreation program as evidence that the city is a good place to live and grow.

But even Flint's proudest backers support the charter, acknowledging that the city needed more leadership, particularly in attracting new industry to diversify its economy.

Business is Down Welfare Goes Up

By PEG OHLE

There is one organization in the county that has plenty of clients and plenty of business.

It is the Social Services Department.

All of its branches—direct relief, food stamps, and aid to dependent children—show a sharp increase in activity over the same period last year.

In December, 1973 Social Services had four active direct relief cases, none of which involved employable men. They were older people and mothers.

In December, 1974 the department had 33 direct relief cases, 17 of which involved employable men.

In December, 1973 Social Services received 26 requests for food stamps and 37 cases were in the processing state.

In December, 1974 the number of requests was 81, with another 95 being processed.

Aid to dependent children cases have increased to a lesser degree.

In December, 1973 A.D.C. cases numbered 177 and in December, 1974 the case load was 182. None of the 1973 cases involved an employable man but in December, 1974 nine families in which there was an employable man were receiving aid to dependent children.

Unemployment is the major reason for the additions to Social Services books. Other factors include rising inflation and newcomers to the county, according to George Duncan, assistant director of the Charlevoix County Social Services office.

"When times are tough people in the cities think it is a good idea to move up here where they can hunt and fish and have a little garden," he says.

To receive any kind of aid through Social Services, numerous forms must be filled out and thorough investigations made. The increase in case loads means more paper work for Social Services employees and therefore a longer period of waiting for applicants.

The local Social Services office has hired only two new staff members in the past year, while the case load has quadrupled in some areas. The Department is geared to handle about 30 food stamp applications a month but, as noted above, the number it is receiving is almost three times that many.

Each type of Social Services aid has its own eligibility format, covering everything from size of family, income, cost of shelter, cost of medical care, age and other considerations.

Each case must be considered individually, using the specified eligibility format, and when there are any changes in the family situation, the whole procedure must be repeated.

Purpose of the food stamp program is to assist low-income households to purchase a nutritionally adequate diet through normal channels of trade.

Under this plan, eligible households exchange their food money for food coupons of higher monetary value. The bonus, or free coupons, paid for by the federal government, increase the purchasing power of the household. Food coupons may be used to buy food from authorized retail food stores at prevailing prices.

Any food or food product for human consumption may be purchased with food coupons except meat and meat products which are imported, and other foods which are identified on the package as being imported. However, coffee, tea bananas, and cocoa, although imported, may be purchased with food stamps.

A pamphlet distributed by Social Services gives the following examples of what a four-person household might receive in food stamp aid:

With no monthly income, or an income up to $29.99 a month, the family would receive, free, $116 worth of coupons; with a monthly income of $50 to $50, the family would pay $10 for $116 worth of coupons; with a monthly income of $150 to $170, the family would pay $41 for $116 worth of coupons; with a monthly income of $250 to $270, the family would pay $71 for $116 worth of coupons; and with a monthly income of $310 to $360, the family would pay $89 for $116 worth of coupons.

New Michigan Soil Erosion Act Requires Numerous Approvals

Contractors, developers, and other earth changers are reminded that Michigan's new Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Control Act is now in effect.

The law was passed in an effort to reduce soil erosion and sedimentation and requires:

(1) Any earth changes must be conducted in a manner which will effectively reduce accelerated soil erosion and its resulting sedimentation.

(2) All persons engaged in earth changes must design, implement and maintain acceptable erosion and sediment control measures in conformance with the law.

(3) Soil erosion and sedimentation control measures must be set forth in a plan which is to be available for inspection at the site of the earth change.

(4) A state prescribed permit must be obtained from the local enforcing agency.

In Charlevoix County, permits may be obtained from the Department of Building Inspection in the lower level of the Court House Annex.

Winter. Love it or Leave it.

PAUL WALKER

LUCILE CUNNINGHAM

By KEN WINTER

Winter. Love it or leave it.

Most of those who have to brave the brisk, biting winds and deep snow would rather leave it.

There are a few, though, who don't mind the sudden flurry of sub-freezing temperatures.

"Isn't the snow beautiful," exclaimed Lucile Cunningham, a local realtor.

"I like it."

The wind continued to sweep down Bridge Street throwing light snow in the air, as the Charlevoix resident paused to answer a few brief questions.

"I don't mind the cold if I can be doing something," she said as she began to enter the United Methodist Church.

"I don't mind it as long as I don't have to go in and out of the cold."

Paul Walker of Charlevoix's Water Department doesn't feel quite the same way.

"It's pretty rough," he said while sitting in his green city truck outside Charlevoix City Hall.

"It's terrible working out in these conditions."

But, unfortunately, Walker says that's a part of the job and they have to do a lot of outside work.

Harvey Hamilton of John Norton's Standard Service has been braving the cold for years to fill gas thirsty cars that shuttle many to and from work.

"It's good for you," he said while leaning against the cash register inside the station.

"In and out.

"I ain't dead after years of it, so I guess it don't hurt much."

Hamilton, who says he has been pumping gas for 30 years, doesn't think his line of work is that bad.

"You just have to dress for it, that's all there is to it," he said.

While many are inside their warm houses watching their boob tube, Dan Cikalo of Lake Charlevoix Cable Television is outside repairing the lines.

"It's all right as long as you're dressed for it," he said while digging into the back of his repair truck.

When asked whether or not he likes to work outside, the Boyne City resident said he didn't know.

"I've never been asked that question before," he said.

"Anyone would be crazy if they wouldn't rather work in the summer."

Firemen have just about the same situation.

"You can't stay here and let it burn," said Ben Gill of Charlevoix's Fire Department.

"We've had men come out of the shower and go and forget their socks."

Gill said firemen have one of the coldest jobs around because they have to work with water and more times than not they end up getting wet.

But, he says it's not the cold temperatures outside that bother him as much as the warm temperatures inside.

"We've got to wear long johns and the women don't," he said.

"We're sweating all the time and then have to go out and freeze."

Gill says the problem stems from thermostats in city hall, where they are required to be on duty for emergencies.

The city employees want the temperatures up, but the fire department doesn't.

Even by turning the heat off in the fire hall, Gill says it's too hot.

This reporter's only problem with winter is having the same last name as the senson.

It's Mardi Gras Time Take Advantage of It

Many Charlevoix residents are gearing up for this year's Mardi Gras and we hope many more will be planning to celebrate in the near future.

Scheduled for February 8, downtown merchants have held several meetings to plan for the festivities.

Beginning its second year, we are glad the Mardi Gras committee is working hard to emphasize many of the daytime family activities.

Many people had said that they aren't interested in the Mardi Gras because it is only a gimmick to build up bar business.

We don't agree and encourage those people to look at the full slate of activities that are planned so the entire family can participate.

Besides the Saturday morning parade, the committee is planning snow sculpture competition, as well as downhill and cross country ski competition.

They're even attempting to have a prince and princess, in addition to the traditional King and Queen.

The Mardi Gras can be something special for Charlevoix, if everyone participates and joins the festivities.

We look at Mardi Gras as one event that Charlevoix residents can be a part of and have fun.

Most of us spend our time serving the tourists that visit our area and never really get a chance to enjoy the area we are so fortunate to have.

So, take advantage of the activities and enjoy Mardi Gras in Charlevoix.

Support the Commission

Last week, the Charlevoix Courier began a series of stories on the Charlevoix City Charter.

It is our hope to present you with arguments both for and against getting a charter so you can weigh the advantages and disadvantages.

We feel having a charter commission is a good idea and encourage you to vote favorably on the question when it comes to you on the spring ballot.

Last week in the Courier, Dr. Arthur Bromage, a University of Michigan political science professor, explained why Ann Arbor became a Home Rule city.

At the same time, he explained the importance of creating a charter commission and what it can do for a city.

We are not in a position at this point to say it would be better to continue operating under the present Fourth Class City Act or switch to a new Home Rule Charter.

This is why we are supporting a favorable vote for the charter commission.

Those who are elected to the nine charter commission seats will have a chance to explore the different forms of government and then present the facts to the public for their consideration.

If the commission handles their job properly, they will be looking at our existing situation and seeing what can and can't be improved.

After this, the commission with the help of a consultant will look at charters from other communities and perhaps see how they solved some of the problems they may have had.

Then the commission will be looking at Charlevoix with this input and will see what they can come up with for Charlevoix.

Once a charter is drawn up, it has to go back to the public in hearing and then in a vote before anything official can take place.

The charter commission is simply a group of local residents attempting to improve our government, but only with the approval of the entire city.

If you are interested in becoming involved, we encourage you to file a petition February 17 for the non-partisan position.

We are looking forward to the creation of a charter commission for Charlevoix.

Sign Up for School

Charlevoix Public School officials say enrollment for their adult education program for this winter is down.

We hope you haven't forgotten about the program and register for one of the many classes that have been scheduled.

In addition to the high school completion program for those who want to earn a diploma, Charlevoix Public Schools are offering courses ranging from floral arranging to basic woodworking.

It's a good time to pull yourself out of the house for an evening and be with some other people in the community.

Why We Need a Charter

Our present charter comes from the 19th century–1895. Charlevoix had no choice, the State said "This is it." This was in the days before cars, television, radio and airplanes, but outdoor toilets, kerosene lamps and dirt roads were prevalent. But in 1909 the State Legislature also said that those cities that want to can make their own charters. And so they call such charters "Home Rule Charters." Since 1909 some 243 cities have developed their own charter within guide lines set up by the State. Charlevoix is the only city between three and four thousand population that still retains 4th Class City charter. There are now only three cities above four thousand and seventeen cities down to 500 population using the 4th class status. Every city within seventy-five miles of Charlevoix has o "Home Rule Charter." In fact, under the present laws no new city would be permitted to use our antiquated charter.

There are many options under "Home Rule", and your neighbor down the street if he is elected to the Charter Commission will help you exercise these options. You could have non-partisan elections, some of the council could be elected at large. The mayor could have a two or three year term, or he could be elected by the council itself. A millage limit of 8 to 10 mills could be established, and to change it a special election would have to be held. You could have a council-manager form of government where the council acts as a board of directors and the manager runs the city like a big corporation, which it is. But anyway these and various other options would be available. Public hearings will be held and every citizen will be listened to by the Charter Commission. And when the Charter Commissioners are through forming the Charter all the people will vote. If it is a bad charter, it should be voted down. A new Charter is certainly not going to turn the whole city government around but it might improve it twenty percent. Any government is only as good as the people that run it.

So in April the Citizens of Charlevoix will have the opportunity to elect nine commissioners on a non-partisan and at large ballot. At the same time they will also vote whether to allow these nine commissioners to revise our present 1895 charter to a 1975 charter.

The task of writing a new Charter need not be difficult. There are ten or more cities in Michigan that have very workable and well written Home Rule charters. These would all be available for study by the Charter Commissioners. So 90 percent of a new Charter is ready and waiting of immediate use. It is the remaining 10 percent that would require special consideration to the needs of local situations or conditions.

The persons needed on a charter commission will be intelligent people - who are open to ideas and suggestions - who are not politically motivated and have a non-partisan attitude - who will take time in the end to benefit all of Charlevoix. They should provide an orderly and smooth transition from the old to new charter. A transition from the 19th to the 21st century. They should also include in their thinking that Charlevoix township will come into the City on a Charter acceptable to them. And perhaps most of oil they should constantly remember that they are assembling o form of government that may endure into the next century for several decades. It is an opportunity and a challenge that could only happen once in one's lifetime.

Sincerely
Ralph McRae

Clock Upsets Reader

Dear Editor,

Mr. Clock, in his Clockwise article, seems to think that the statesmanship of union leaders will save us from financial ruin in the next several years.

Mr. Clock says, "I'd like to see Leonard Woodcock, George Meaney and their colleagues in the top echelon of the labor movement stand up and demand that industry cut wages, and trim fringe benefits."

Then he goes on to say, "In fact I would like to see labor representatives of every stripe ready to set up picket lines if business and industry appear unwilling to take steps necessary to bring the economy under control. Workingman on strike for lower wages and fewer fringes?"

I would be willing to wager everything I own that if union leaders who represent only about 25 percent of American workers would make such a demand, that business and industry leaders, plus 75 percent non-union workers would either drop dead or laugh themselves sick. He closes his column by saying, "But such statesmanship is practically unheard of in America today."

I must agree with him here, if he means that union leaders will provide such statesmanship.

"Oil Workers Win 26 Percent Raise in Wages Over the Next Three Years."

"Railroad Workers Win 40 Percent Raise in Wages Over the Next Three Years."

If these two headlines in the newspapers are any indication of union statesmanship in the days ahead, I think we will have to look elsewhere for leadership.

U.S. News and World Reports has estimated that 279 House members out of a total of 435, are expected to support most union backed bills. Sixty-one senators out of one hundred are expected to do what labor bosses want.

Perhaps the day will come when the 75 percent of the non-union workers will step in and refuse to buy union-made products, unless, the union leaders show more restraint in their demands.

Thank you,
Robert L. Olson

A New Type of Justice

By JIM FITZGERALD

It is to be hoped that Lady Justice's blindfold does not slip. She might see the yellow ribbon tied around Jeb Magruder's old oak tree – and throw up all over her out-of-balance trays.

Most people think Judge Sirica did a nice thing when he unexpectedly let Magruder, John Dean and Herbert Knimbach out of the pokey before their sentences were served. The freeing came so suddenly, Magruder's warden didn't even have time to find a substitute to fill out their golf foursome that Sunday morning.

Judge Sirica didn't tell why he opened the prison doors. But everyone assumes he was rewarding 3 men for ratting on their Watergate henchmen. Also, there is the general feeling that the three have suffered enough. After all, they lost important jobs and are now subject to public ridicule every time they give Town Hall lectures at $2,000 per speech.

Besides, Richard Nixon was given a blanket pardon for all sins of word, deed or omission he might have committed while President. It is not generally known, but there was also a retroactive clause in Nixon's pardon. This allows him to commit one legal murder should he ever find himself on the edge of a cliff, standing behind that guy Butterfield who told the world the White House was bugged.

That is, Nixon can serve no prison term for such a murder. However, there would be o stiff fine with the stipulation that Bebe Rebozo and Robert Abplanalp must hand wrestle in Madison Square Garden for the privilege of picking up the tab. And there's a built-in bonus for the workman who spells Abplnnip's name correctly on the Garden marquee.

So. That's the ultimate justification. If Nixon is pelted with powderpuffs, it's not fair to throw rocks at his hirelings. It is a unique system of justice, which, if applied to all crime, would empty 90 percent of this nation's cells.

Everyone knows the Godfather doesn't go to prison. He dies in his garden of too many grandchildren and later comes back to sequel life, n bigger crook than ever. The crime chiefs are above the law, in Las Vegas penthouses. Their hired men sell the dope and lay the bets and pimp the prostitutes. And when the law declares an occasional crackdown, it is the hired men who get long prison terms. The Godfathers get indigestion and check into the Mayo Clinic.

Under the Nixon-Ford-Sirico system, this is obviously unjust. If the big crooks gnes free, the little crooks' punishment should be nothing more harsh than 6 months in a Newark Holiday Inn. And if the little crooks agree to squeal, they should be allowed unlimited visiting privileges into New York City to appear on Meet the Press and to sign contracts to write books revealing how n Mafia hit man found Christ in a subway john.

This new justice would do more than give burglors the same privileges of lawyers (excuse any redundancy). It would also make prison space available for the extended jailing of the miscreants who are the real threat to the very foundations of this government.

I mean the welfare cheats, the overtime parkers and the people who walk on grass.

Also the independent snuggers who rob only to feed their own selfish habits - such as eating - and give no share of the proceeds to Organized Crime. This is almost as bad as not contributing to a political party.

Onward and Upword.

Meet Charlevoix ...Chuck Meier

With the ski season in full swing, the Charlevoix Courier thought it would be good to check with Chuck Meier, general manager of Charlevoix's local ski resort, Mt. McSauba.

Meier, who also works at Freedman Arteraft Engineering, is married and has five children.

He and his wife, Jacqueline moved here from Covington, Kentucky and for two years has been manager of Mt. McSauba since 1969.

COURIER: How are things looking at Mt. McSauba this year?

MEIER: With the conditions the way they are, the outlook is really great. We have slope that we haven't opened. That is the west. The slope that is in use, besides the main slope is the bunny slope, have only had bare spots. But last season we have had, I think there were 2 inches of base.

What facilities do you offer at Mt. McSauba?

MEIER: To start with, we have three areas serviced by rope tows. They are named the bunny slope, the main slope and the west slope. Then there is a trail called speedway, and tail face. Then we have the lodge and we have a snack bar for those who want to stop for a snack. The main hill is 800 feet long and is generally for intermediate skiers. Our local ski team practices every night after school and they also give the lessons to the youngsters, the beginners. There is a one dollar charge for the lessons that is used by the ski team to buy equipment. The park is managed by myself and my family. I'm general manager and I work in the lodge and do all the maintenance on the equipment and on the slope with my two boys, Mark and Tim. Gary and Rob Steebe also help by acting as ski patrol members and then their father does the snow plowing of the parking lot.

COURIER: What are the hours at Mt. McSauba?

MEIER: Daytime skiing on Saturday and Sunday is from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Night skiing on Monday (adult night) is 7 to 9 p.m. Regular night skiing is on Tuesday and Thursday night, 7 to 9 p.m.

Courier: What are the costs for skiing at Mt. McSauba?

MEIER: They are as follows:

Season Passes: Family $50; Couple $35; Adult (Single) $25; Student $15; Child $10; Daily Rate: Adult $2.50; Student $1.50; Child 4.75; Night Rate: Adult $1.50; Student $1.00; Child $.50

I might add that we do not have rental skies available.

COURIER: Do you have any suggestions for parents who leave their children at the area to ski?

MEIER: There have been several cases this year with children's hair or jackets being caught in the rope tow. To help this situation the parents would be sure to stress the fact that children should keep jackets zipped, scarfs tucked in and hair in braids of tucked in. What causes this is that the rope is allowed to twist about two to four turns in about 200 feet. This is very difficult thing to control, so the state doesn't hold the area operators right to that. When a person has started up the rope, any loose article that can be turned by the rope itself will wrap around the rope. It is very difficult to get loose from that because they are holding on with two hands and there is just no way to pull free until they come to the safety gate and this automatically stops the rope and they can free themselves.

If the majority of parents would just come out at the closing time, without all the calls and pick up their children it would relieve n lot of problems.

Gasoline Tanks Go South

Home Wrecker Visits Charlevoix

Lonnie Shawhart is a home wrecker.

It's his job.

His latest project has been taking down the Citgo gasoline storage tanks near Ferry Avenue in Charlevoix.

If the weather had cooperated, Shawhart said he would have had the 37,000 gallon tanks down in 48 hours, but because of high winds it will take longer.

"We've got a crew that takes them down and another that puts them up," the wrecking company owner said as he watched his crew brave near zero weather.

Shawhart whose company is based in Oklahoma, said they are moving the Charlevoix tanks to Miami, Florida.

He said apparently Citgo could make more money from the gasoline there than they could in Charlevoix.

"You can't buy metal like this anymore," he explained as the reason why the tanks were being saved.

Shawhart said it seemed ironic that the steel industry is laying off people and yet there is a demand for the products.

Shawhart said he got into this type of work 12 or 14 years ago because he couldn't make it as a cotton farmer in Texas.

"I went into this for more money," he said.

"But, I can't say this has been any better."

But unlike other industries, the 53-year-old man said business is booming.

"I don't like the work, but I like the money," he said.

"I guess I don't like being away from home so much," he said.

Born in Paris, Texas, Shawhart farmed for 20 years in Texas.

"Farming was kinda of a gamble," he said about the 26,000-acre farm he used to own.

"It's a bigger gamble than this."

Charlevoix Wins Fourth Game

Rayders Dump St. Ignace; 69-66

The Charlevoix Rayders chalked up a 69-66 victory over St. Ignace Friday night, their fourth of the season.

In the game which was played without Bub Alger who was benched with an ankle injury, Charlevoix went to the free throw line to dump the Saints on the latter's floor.

The Saints outscored Charlevoix 31-25 in the field goal department but the Rayders were able to make up the deficit frum the charity line scoring 19 of 30 free throws and attracting 12 personal fouls.

St. Ignace, on the other hand, had only four of eight ottempts but collected 29 personal fouls.

After playing to a 16-16 first period tie, the Saints went ahead at halftime 32-31. The Rayders, however, came back strong as the second half got underway to outscore their opponents 20-10 to go ahead 51-42 at the three-quarter mark. Though the Saints came back to outscore the Rayders 24-18 in the final period, Charlevoix came through with the three point victory which moved them into a tie with Gaylord for fourth place with a record of 4-6 in league play.

Dan Greene topped the scoring for the Rayders with 19 points; Mike Streeter and Chuck Faust had 16 each; Kevin Stokes, 10; Dave Martinchek, six and Mark Hosmer, two.

Jim Bishop had 22 points to pace the game. He was followed by Jim Ahlich with 14 and Louie Bengton 12.

Charlevoix will play at Harbor Springs Tuesday night and will host Boyne City Friday night.

J.V. Ties Boyne

Charlevoix's little Rayders dropped into a tie with Boyne City for first place in league standings Friday night after losing to the St. Ignace Saints by a score of 67-55.

The two teams had played to a 12-12 first period tie before Charlevoix moved into a three-point 35-32 lead. In the third period, however, the Rayders were out-scored 20-9 to fall behind 52-44 going into the final period. As time ran out Charlevoix failed to overcome the 11-point deficit.

Scott Boss with 13 points and Brian Williams with 11 were top scorers for the Rayders. Dennis Way had eight; Mott Doan, seven; Bud Klooster, six; Dave Tollas and Pat Schafer, four each and Steve Berlage, two.

Pat Cronan had 20 and Owen Pillsbury 14 for the young Saints.

Charlevoix 'A' League Tied

By CHUCK WRIGHT

The A league is all tied up!

Bernie Ward canned a 15-foot jump shot as the buzzer sounded to give Freedman Arteraft a thrilling 73-72 win over previously unbeaten Town House.

Both teams have now lost just one game - to each other.

Freedman's was in command throughout the first three quarters. Roger and Denney Crain led an awesome fast break which gave Freedman's a 12 point lead early in the fourth quarter. Then they lost their momentum.

The Town House, led by the hot outside shooting of Spook Coleman and Dave Strawbridge, proceeded to outscore Freedman's by 17 points over the next four minutes. With two minutes left to play the Town House had a 5 point lead.

A three point play by Terry Blissett and two clutch free throws by Mike Bade tied the score with forty-five seconds left. After the Town House made a foul shot to lead by one with ten seconds to play, Freedman's worked the ball to Ward who swished his game winning shot despite being off balance.

Both Crains had 19 points, Blissett added 13, and Ward 12. For Town House, Strawbridge had 23, Coleman 24, and Topper Carey 10. Get ready for the end of the season showdown.

Bob's Sunoco pulled into a second place tie with Swanson's K & D by beating Swanson's 59-54. Bob's used a tough zone defense to hold the scoring down. Hud Drenth led the scoring with 21 and had a lot of help from Ron Boss with 16, and Ike Boss with 14.

There is even a tie for the cellar in the A league as the Coast Guard won its first game of the year by downing Haggards 44-37. Haggards led by eight at halftime, but Joe Gustafsen and Bill Galver both scored eight points in the second half to lead the comeback. Gaiver led the Coast Guard attack with 14 points. Andy Peters paced the Haggards offense with 17.

Village Milk House managed to nip Wojan's 62-60 to remain only one game behind Kenney's in the Lake Charlevoix division of the B league. No team led by more than six points at any time during the contest. Gary Novotny paced the winners with 19, Dale Boss had 15, and Jerry Sandahl 11. For Wojan's, tough Don Ward poured in 28 while Dean Mikulski contributed 15.

Kenney's Excavating remained in first with a surprisingly tough 52-42 victory over First State Bank. Kenney's had a fourteen point lead at halftime, but First State Bank battled back to within four before losing their momentum. Dale Shooks led Kenney's with 21 and Terry DeVries had 11. Pete Spieles had 11 for First State Bank.

Muma's picked up its first win of the year with a 50-46 upset of John Deere. B. Klooster was high scorer for Muma's with 17 big points. Rick Putman had 15 and Bill Gengle 10. Band leader Gary Stutzman led John Deere with 18 and Dave Moyer collected 15.

Charlevoix County State Bank survived a stiff challenge and defeated Alray Cottages 55-47. The bankers remain two games in first place in the B league's Lake Michigan division. Carl Swanson kept Alray Cottages close with 16 points, but it was not quite enough as Larry Skippergosh countered with 18. Denny LaCroix also had 16 for County Bank.

Mike Crain scored 31 points, his high of the year, leading second place Russell's Shell to a 69-30 romp over Medusa. Jim Potter and Larry Brock both added 16 to Russell's attack. Chuck Bascom had 22 points for Medusa.

Jim's Clark stayed tied for second with Russell's with an easy 76-48 win over Andy's Tire World. Jerry Skippergosh amassed 26, Vince Left collected 21, and Steve McClellon added 17. Steve Jonnecheck led Andy's with 15, while Kevin Jonnecheck hit for 13 and Stu Cunningham collected 11.

High scorers for the week: Dave Strawbridge had 24 in A league; Mike Crain canned 31 in the B league.

Dr. Davis Shows Them How

Youngsters Fight Tooth Decay

Fighting Mr. Tooth Decay can be a terrifying experience, especially if you happen to be a three-year-old.

But, with a little help from the good guy, in this case Dr. Robert Davis of Charlevoix, the battle turns out to be only a minor skirmish.

Some 20 three and four-year-olds showed up early Thursday morning to get the latest strategy in fighting the decay that starts appearing about that age.

"Does anyone volunteer" asked Dr. Davis as he rested his arm on the dentist chair.

No one said a word. You could hear only the trickling of water fountain next to the chair.

Then a few of the teachers began to try and coax some of the youngsters into getting their teeth shined," so mommy could see them later."

"There's always someone who wants tu volunteer," Dr. Davis said.

"Doesn't anyone want to get their teeth shined?"

Biting his lip with determination, he marched bravely to the chair and climbed up.

"Everyone thinks it is so tough to go to the dentist and it's not hard at all," Dr. Davis said reassuredly as he rested his hand on Christian's shoulder.

The dental assistant quckly tied a paper bib around Christian's neck.

He then gave Christian a mirror that he gripped tightly in his hand to watch the battle about to be launched inside his mouth.

The rest of Christian's friends slowly began to edge toward the dentist chair and peer inside his mouth to see how Dr. Davis polished teeth.

Christion just slipped up to the front of his chair and reached for a drink of water to rinse out his mouth.

While the next volunteer, Lori Jinsky, clumbed up into the chair, the rest of the class just stood silently.

DR. ROBERT DAVIS, Charlevoix dentist, spent part of his time last week showing Charlevoix Co-op Nursery School students that going to the dentist isn't bad at all. Some of the students didn't have to much to say about the experience until Dr. Davies won their confidence with a live demonstration.

Charlevoix Middle School Council Constructs New Student Lounge

What is red, white and blue and used to be called the "dungeon"?

Ask Charlevoix Middle School Students.

"The dungeon", as Charlevoix Middle School students called it, used to be pretty unpopular.

Now almost everyone in the building wants to go there.

The room, now known as the "Student Lounge" got a new lease on life after eager Middle School students proved they could start something and finish it.

He said they got the idea for the student lounge from their counselor, who thought it might be good for students to have some place to go during free time to study.

"Just like the teachers have a lounge to go to when they have an hour off, we now have one," added Mike Keller another eighth grader involved with the program.

However, when the Student Congress said they were going to go ahead with the project, they learned it would have to be done on their own because the school had no extra money.

So the students got together and completely repainted the room and recarpeted the floor with samples they were able to get from several local merchants.

"We've redone the whole thing," says Bourke. Kevin Kratt, an eighth grader, said anyone who wanted to come down, came and helped with the work.

He said all the students worked together.

Since the room was completed last week, Kratt said students have been able to study and relax.

Kellie Cross said she was surprised how everyone was able to work together in doing the room.

"Everybody gut along," she said.

"I really like it down here."

"It gives us a break."

Kratt said he hoped no one would abuse the room and write on the freshly painted white walls.

"The people in the office thought we cheered up the place," he said.

Bourke said that many parents have said students shouldn't have a lounge because it is a part of the school.

"Before, the teachers didn't want anything to do with it," he said.

Keller said Student Congress is presently working on rules for the room and that they are trying to make them as simple as possible.

"There are always going to be some kids who will abuse it," Keller said.

KELLIE CROSS (left), Kevin Kratt, Mike Bourke and Mike Keller were some of the students who helped change the room.

STUDENTS NOW have a place at school where they can relax and study if they have a few free moments during the school day.

CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
State St. at Clinton
Rev. Hewitt Johnson
Sunday Services
7:30 a.m. and 11 p.m.

Services for Episcopalians in Charlevoix began in the summer of 1883 and Christ Church was organized formally as a Mission in 1887. The cornerstone of the present building was laid July 30, 1894 and by 1903 the Church was equipped to hold services both winter and summer. For the greater part of Christ Church's history it has been served by clergy from Petoskey or Traverse City. The first full-time Priest arrived in the summer of 1953, although much work has been accomplished by the devotion of the part-time Vicars. Since 1953 the Mission has been served by resident clergy, although the present Vicar, The Rev'd Hewitt V. Johnston, is also in charge at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Elk Rapids.
Sunday services are at 7:30 and 11:00 A.M. and are usually Holy Communion. The Prayer Book is always used at the early service and the New Liturgies are used at the later service. A mid-week service of Holy Communion is held on Wednesday at 12 noon, and services are held on Saint's Days and Holy Days as announced. There is an active Episcopal Church Women chapter and a full range of Church activities: Church School, study groups and other functions.
Visitors are welcomed at all of the services of Christ Episcopal Church and are urged to stay for the fellowship of the coffee hour which is held every Sunday right after the late service. Fr. Johnston can usually be reached mornings in his office at the Vicarage where the phone number is 547-9406.

It's Mardi-Gras Time

Plenty of Things to do

Mardi Gras Comes to Town

It's Mardi Gras time in Charlevoix!

The gay, colorful celebration officially gets under way Friday night with the selection of candidates for Mardi Gras royalty.

In the meantime, Charlevoixans are casting their ballots for those they want to reign as king, queen, prince and princess.

Official ballots for voting on the royalty are available in local business establishments.

You simply have to pay 50 cents for each ballot you want to cast.

The money will be going toward Mt. McSauba, the Charlevoix County Humane Society or for a citizen's band radio transceiver for the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department to monitor emergency calls made on Channel 9, a CB emergency network.

In addition to king and queen elections, a Mardi Gras prince and princess will be named to the royal court.

Prince candidates are Mike Left, Jeff Bergman and Bob Shores, while the princess candidates include Carla Wells and Debbie Heliday.

The royal court will be announced at the Grey Gables on Friday night.

The real celebration begins Saturday morning with the grand parade down Bridge-st., where the Mardi Gras court will make their official debute.

After the parade, the queen and king will judge the snow sculpturing.

Those entering the snow sculpturing contest will be eligible for more than $100 in gift certificates from local merchants and restaurants.

Then Saturday night, the king and queen will be making their visits to local bars and restaurants, where celebrations of the event will be taking place.

Charlevoix's Mardi Gras is a take-off of the famous New Orleans celebration that takes place this time of year and attracts thousands of tourists from everywhere.

The celebration takes place at the end of a long carnival season which begins on January 6 or Twelfth night.

Mardi Gras is a French term meaning "fat Tuesday". The term arose from the custom of parading a fat ox through the streets of Paris on Shrove Tuesday.

French colonists introdueed Mardi Gras into Ameriea in 1766.

The custom became popular in New Orleans and spread throughout the Southern States.

In Germany it is called Fastnacht and in England it is called Pancake Day.

Area Farmers May Get Relief

By PEG OHLE

Two actions were taken last week which may help farmers whose cattle were destroyed by poly-brominated bi-phenyl poisoning.

On Monday, U.S. District Judge Noel Fox of Grand Rapids presided over a special meeting in Grand Rapids among insurance representatives for Farm Bureau Services, Inc. and Michigan Chemical Company.

The meeting was called at the request of Governor Milliken and was attended by representatives of his office and by State Insurance Commissioner Daniel Demlow.

Purpose of the meeting was to reaeh some agreement whereby farmers with pending P.B.B. damage claims might benefit from immediate release of some money by all partielpating insurance companies.

In a "currcnt Position Statement" eovering the meeting, Farm Bureau Services, Inc. says, "Judge Fox, Governor Milliken and Mr. Demlow believe, as does Farm Bureau Services, that agricultural producers, the innocent victims of thls tragedy, should not be forced to suffer while litigation continues over who should ultimately pay the claims. They believe, as we do, that concerned parties have an obligation to affected farmers to make equitable settlements as quickly as possible, and to argue legal technicalities later. It is to this end the meeting was dedicated. We feel that satisfactory progress was made, and another meeting is scheduled for February 6."

Agreement Soon

Farm Bureau Service also reports it is their understanding that an agreement may be reached shortly whereby disposal of at least some of the quarantined animals may be resumed at the Kalkaska site.

On Wednesday of last week, State Representative Ralph Ostling introduced a bill which proposes the issuing of low interest loans to farmers with affected livestock.

"The state just has to step in and help those farmers who have suffered great financial burdens while the insurance companies involved are taking their time making settlements," Ostling says.

Under Ostling's proposal, a person whose livestock or poultry was destroyed as a result of P.B.B. poisoning may apply for a loan through the Michigan Department of Agriculture, which would certify the application and turn it over to the Department of Treasury.

Secure Loan

The farmer would thus secure a loan at two percent interest. According to the bill, the amount of the loan would not exceed more than $1,500 for each destroyed domesticated animal and $4 for each domesticated bird. The note would become due five years from the date of execution.

Aecording to Ostling, he has already reeeived indieations of wide spread bi-partisan support for the legislation.

"It's too bad the state has to enter into this situation. The obligation rightfully lies with Michigan Farm Bureau and the Michigan Chemical Company, but it appears that no early solution will come about between the responsible parties, Ostling said.

Continued Delay

"The delay in making settlements on the part of these companies has caused severe hardships to many of Michigan's producers. It became quite apparent during a special public hearing on this subject in December that many farmers still have to assume the financial burden of feeding and caring for their livestock, but were unable to realize any ineome from their efforts. Others were simply forced out of business," Ostling added.

Burrr.....It's Chilly Outside, but Hot Inside

No matter what winter temperatures Charlevoix residents face this year, there should be no shortage of heating fuels, although in some cases the prices are up.

Fuel oil is not only plentiful but the price is holding steady, and in some cases it is going down. Several local oil dealers contacted last week reported this good news.

Curt Thompson, Charlevoix Standard Oil distributor, says that prices have been dropping since October and the reason given by his company is that fuel oil sales are down.

"People seem to be dialing down and not using as much oil," is Thompson's explanation.

Asked about what effect the proposed new tariff on imported oil would have on price, Thompson said it would increase costs less than one cent a gallon.

"It is my understanding that we are importing only ten percent of our fuel oil, so with the $3.00 a barrel, or 7.4 a gallon, tariff the inerease would be less than one cent a gallon," Thompson added.

Jack Rader of the Petoskey Oil Company says his prices have been stahle since October, and that he is receiving plenty of oil to take care of his customers. He, too, does not think the new tariff will increase prices much.

Much the same comments were received from Total Leonard and Sunoco.

Chipman Plumbing and Heating, distributors of LP gas in the area, reports that the priee of gas has remained the same although the cost of storage tanks used by the eonsumer has increased. There is no shortage of LP gas, according to Chipman.

Natural gas is another story. Michigan Consolidated Gas has raised its price for home heating gas 13 percent, or an average of $30.00 a year.

The higher cost of natural gas is attributed to an inerease in price from Canadian sources.

Persons using electricity furnished by Consumers Power for heat will find their hills up 4.4 percent as a result of a rate increase recently approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission. This was the fifth increase in electric rates in a little more than three years.

Clyde Johnson, head of the Northern Michigan Electric Co-op, says that although it buys some power for Consumers, the new increase does not apply to them and therefore local R.E.A. users will not receive another rate increase at this time.

RENE RUSSELL, a Charlevoix sixth grader, recently took first place in speed skating competition held in Gaylord. The 11-year-old has captured some 10 trophies in her short career.

Should Charlevoix Have a Charter Commission?

EDITOR'S NOTE: With only days left before Charlevoix Charter Commissioa petitions must be turned in (February 17), the Courier offers its third in a special series, "City Calamity?"

During the last two weeks, Courier readers learned about two other Michigan cities, Flint and Aan Arbor, and how each communlty had dlfferent feelings about having a new charter.

This week the Courier, through the National Municipal League, attempts to present some of the most asked questlons about the council-manager plan.

What Is the council-manager plaa?

The counell-manager plan is a form of government developed in the United States to help communities overcome weaknesses in local government structure, and to cope with increasingly difficult and complicated urban problems, by providing for an executive appointed by and continuously responsible to a popularly elected council. In little more thnn half a century it has become the most popular form of local government in the United States, and is regarded as the greatest American contribution to the improvement of government.

How does it dilfer from other forms?

The most important difference is that it provides an extremely strong popularly elected city council and professional administration by a city manager selected by this council for his training, knowledge and experience rather than his political popularity.

In what way is the city council so "extremely strong?"

It is stronger than in any nther form because it not only determines policy but adopting budgets and levying taxes, as all city councils do, but also and especially beeause it hires and oversees a city manager as chief administrative officer to carry out its programs.

What assurance is there that a council will choose a competent city manager rnther than a popular politician?

City charters and state enabling acts prescribing the plan provide that the manager shall be chosen "solely on the basis of his executive and administrative qualifications." Generally councils have a commitment to the manager plan and with its widespread use there is an ever-growing pool of trained professional manpower from which councils can obtain competent managers.

For what term does a city manager serve?

A city manager usually has no definite term, such as an elected official has, or a contract, such as a school superintendent has. He serves as lng as the city council is satisfied with his servlee.

What are a city manager's powers?

His so-called "powers" are really responsibilities. He appoints department heads, serves as the city council's chief advisor, prepares the budget for the city council's consideration, and brings to the city the significant element of professional knowledge of municipal administration.

But can't an elected mayor hire trained experts to head departments and even a chief administrative officer to serve under him?

Yes. Some have done so over the years but there is an understandable tendency for a mayor who wants to be re-elected to choose people who are politically rather than professionally qualified.

Does a city manager have sole power to appoint department heads?

Yes, in most cases. Otherwise he cannot be held responsible for results.

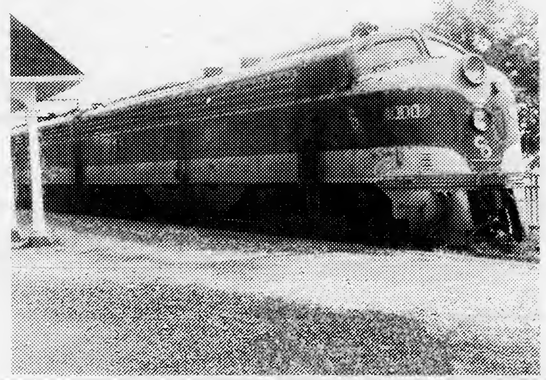
A Green Light for Rails?



CHARLEVOIX'S LAST TRAIN, WILL THERE BE ANOTHER?

Railroads came to Northern Michigan during the last part of the last century, brought here to haul away the fallen timber and to help open the region to tourists and commercial development.

Today, about a century later, the railroads are trying to abnndon their lines that serve the cities and towns to which they gave birth.

Seemingly forgetting their roles as "parents", they claim it is no longer profitable to try to compete with gas-guzzling trucks and automobiles in serving the area.

The fact that the railroads were given over a million square miles of state land to encourage their expansion hns also been forgotten. Northern Michigan is being disinherited by the descendents of those it befriended.

One of the railroads serving the area, the Penn Central, is bankrupt. It is incloded in the study being made by the United States Railway Association (USRA) to determine what branches of this and other bankrupt railroad lines in the central and northeastern parts of the country are excess and could be discontinued.

Preliminary USRA reports indicate they consider all Penn Central mileage from Cedar Springs north in the "excess" category. Whether or not the financial condition of this railroad is the result of poor management makes no difference to the USRA. Neither does the economic and social well-being of the cities and towns that would be left without train service.

Last week a group of area citizens, representing rail users and governmental units, met in Traverse City to hear an attorney who was appointed to assist local communities in the abandonment matter, and to form committees to do indepth research on the impact of railroad abandonment in the area.

Michael Davidson, Washington attorney, criticized the USRA for being unresponsive to rail users and other segments of the public.

"I have requested the USRA to open up its meetings to users and associations and they have refused," he said.

It is hoped the indepth studies being made locally will be presented to the SSRA before February 26, the deadline for receiving public testimony on abandonment plans.

In the meantime, the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation has prepared a Planning Report as the first phase of a continuing railroad planning effort. This report also shows much of the rail trackage is Northern Michigan as "potentially excess".

A public hearing on the State Planning Report is scheduled for February 18 at the Holiday Inn in Traverse City. Testimony from interested persons will be taken all day, beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning continuing until 10 o'clock in the evening.

Charlevoix's Mr. Music Retires

By FRAN MARTIN

Charlevoix's Mr. Music Man, Clarence A. Odmark, after 29 years as head of the music department at the Charlevoix High School, will call it a day, come June.

At the same time, Mrs. Odmark will close oot her teaching career as Homemaking teacher after 17 years at the local school.

The news of their retirements came last week when the Charlevoix board of education accepted, with regrets, their resignations from the faculty.

"I've decided that 35½ years in the classroom is enough", Odmark said." "We're going to play it by ear, do some of the things we've never had time for and then decide what we want to do."

Mrs. Odmark said she was going to take on the role of full-time homemaker.

In discussing their years in Charlevoix, Odmark said, "You know, when we came it was going to be for two years and then we were going to go where the money was because the job here wasn't paying much at the time. Now we wouldn't think of living any other place."

How did they happen to come to northern Michigan?

Following her graduation from Western Michigan University in 1941, Mrs. Odmark, the former Janet Stewart, accepted a teaching position in Petoskey.

It was nlso the year that she and Odie, as he is known by everyone, met through her brother-in-law and sister, the Jewells, who were teaching near Almont where Odmark was teaching after graduating from Eastern Michigan University.

Thos began a 'comnuting' coortship with Odmark taking the Michigan Central train every Friday night to Indian fiiver and then by Smith's Taxi to Petoskey to visit Jan. Then, in October, 1942, they were married.

It wasn't until he enlisted in the U.S. Air Force in 1943 and was assigned to the 311th Air Force Band at Shaw Field, S.C., that they had their first home.

After 22 months in the service, they returned to the Detroit area where he taught for the next 18 months.

"It was then that we decided city life wasn't for us and we started looking around," Odmark said.

Recalling his first year in Charlevoix, he said he had 32 students in the band. It was the first fall when he had one of his most disheartening experiences. He decided to put his band on the field at a football game and, to his amazement, only 17 members showed up. All the others were either football players or cheerleaders.

But things picked op, as he remembers it. By spring he had 38 pieces in the band which qualified for its first State Festival.

The quality of his band is foond in the fact that Charlevoix bands have qualified for state competition in 27 of 28 years and have won 14 First Division ratings.

In addition to his doties as high school band director, he was in charge of the City Band for years. This group rehearsed almost weekly throughout the year and presented weekly concerts in the park doring the summer months.

Odmark also initiated the summer instrumental program where the younger students received individual and group instruction. This serves as a training program for potential band members, he explained.

In the past few years he has turned these programs, the City Band and the instrumental program, over to Stutzman and Evelyn Peters, also o nusic major.

Another brain child is the Band Boosters who have helped raise funds for band uniforms, nusic scholarships travel expenses and countless other band-related projects. In addition, he has directed vocal groups in the high school, organized and directed community choirs, was director of the choir of the First Congregational church until he retired last year and has been a member of the Northern Michigan Com-

Council Should Decide

The time has come for all good people to make a decision.

Charlevoix City Council must make a decision on whether or not they want Robert Wexstaff as their city administrator.

For almost a year and a half, the city fathers have been squabbling over who is going to replace Tom Hanna, Charlevoix's former city administrator.

Still we have no decision.

We have asked time and time again for a decision to be made and still nothing has happened.

We don't think it is fair to the taxpayers of this community, nor to Mr. Wexstaff, to continue this way any longer.

Wexstaff, Charlevoix's city assessor, stepped into the position on a temporary basis and now Mayor Ed Hansen says he has demonstrated his worth and should be appointed to the position permanently.

We are not in a position to judge his ability, but we are in a position to insist more permanency to the position be established.

Council either should give Wexstaff a vote of confidence or hire a permanent city administrator.

Want a Lighthouse?

Charlevoix Public Schools indicated last week that they are still interested in obtaining Beaver Island's south end lighthouse which was recently declared surplus.

The reaffirmation of their position came after a Michigan consortium of community colleges, headed by Jackson Community College, announced they no longer have interest in securing the property.

However, we find ourselves in a position of questioning whether or not Charlevoix Public Schools should take an active role in securing the property.

We feel their intentions of securing the property for an outdoor education program are sincere, but wonder if they would be better off looking for a location on the mainland.

We understand the Board reaffirmed its position because they were fearful the property might go up for sale. This is commendable.

However, after further investigation, the Courier has learned that the Department of Natural Resources could still secure the property and keep it in public hands.

We feel this would be a better agency to manage the property and also make it available for the entire state to enjoy.

Perhaps the Charlevoix School Board could look at sharing other public property on the island with other agencies and thus relieve itself of the worry and responsibility of maintaining the property.

The lighthouse stands on a bluff at the south end of the island and was, until recently, equipped with a powerful twin fog-horn. It was erected in 1851 and rebuilt in 1891.

Help With Rails

If you have any interest in retaining railroad service through Northern Michigan, you should attend the public hearing scheduled for February 18 at the Holiday Inn in Traverse City.

The hearing will start at 9 o'clock in the morning and continue until 10 o'clock at night, thus making it convenient for all who want to testify.

The State Department of Highways and Transportation will conduct the hearing in an attempt to learn what abandonment of railroad service would mean to communities in the area.

Such matters as the dampening effect upon expansions of existing businesses and the loss of attractiveness for new industry are some of the considerations. So are loss of tax base, unemployment and higher transportation costs in a non-competitive situation.

Personal considerations include higher costs for everything brought into the area at a time when motor fuel costs are scheduled to increase sharply. And, if a shortage of motor fuel is again declared, transportation of necessities could be seriously impaired.

It's Mardi Gras Time

Many Charlevoix residents are gearing up for this year's Mardi Gras and we hope many more will be planning to celebrate in the near future.

Scheduled for February 8, downtown merchants have held several meetings to plan for the festivities.

We look at Mardi Gras as one event that Charlevoix residents can be a part of and have fun.

Most of us spend our time serving the tourists that visit our area and never really get a chance to enjoy the area we are so fortunate to have.

So, take advantage of the activities and enjoy Mardi Gras in Charlevoix.

Letters to the editor

Ward Agrees With Clock

Dear Editor:

It is most heartening to take notice of the recent maturing of your contemporary Mr. Rob't Clock. The usual platitudes and pablum has finally yielded to the more demanding realities of life with his recent excursion into what has often times referred to as the dismal science "economics." His expressions in the Jan. 22 issue of the Courier makes more sense than any other efforts that has come to my attention in all the years since his relationship with the local sentined.

Our country is in deep trouble and our neighbors aren't going to fare too well if they fail to grasp some understanding of the "main" problem.

Both the Democrats in Congress and the President have outlined their programs for the country.

Unfortunately neither program really comes to grips with our ailment.

The basic problem we face has two parts. First, inflation has forced up prices so far, and so distorted and twisted the economy in the process, that production costs are out of line with each other and with our incomes.

The result of this has been unemployment.

Second, new jobs have not been created by new and existing businesses, because they could not get the capital necessary to create those new jobs and to pay higher salaries for old jobs.

I do not care how much or what kind of tax cuts are voted, or what proposals Congress makes into law. If Government does not cure those two problems --inflation and lack of capital--we may put off the evil day, but we will never be able to avoid it in the end.

Now, both these problems are simple, but both are politically hard to solve because it means telling people unpleasant truths.

In more ancient times the bearer of bad tidings to the king was executed. Politicians are afraid of execution at the voting booth if they prescribe medicine necessary for the disease. So they hide the truth, sometimes from ignorance, usually from fear.

The problems being simple, the solutions are simple too.

First inflation. It is caused only by the Federal Government printing money when it runs a deficit. So stop government spending at deficit levels, and inflation stops, too. Prices come down, our dollars start to mean something again, confidence is restored.

It takes about $30,000 to create a new job. That $30,000 comes from profits people make in their businesses, or it comes from savings.

Tax rates are so high today, on both corporations and individuals with higher incomes, that they cannot save the capital necessary. Tax rates are high because the people who are not productive.

All over the country it is becoming increasingly more profitable for a great many people not to work. They get more from the Government for not working than they do if they work and pay taxes.

Until tax rates are cut--which means cutting government spending as well--new jobs will not be created and old jobs will not get higher pay.

If government spending is not cut, but taxes are reduced, we will have more inflation with the resulting deficits.

In other words, get Government off our backs and out of our pockets.

Those are simple solutions. Like pointing out that the Emperor has no clothes on, those solutions do not require an extraordinary intellect--just common sense and the courage to say "how it is". The knowledgable people will be buying GOLD.

The U.S. Federal Reserve is the only institution or individual in our country that can print worthless paper money without being hauled into the courts of our judicial system.

Sincerely
Oscar W. Ward

CONTROLS WON'T WORK

Will the government give in to growing pressure for re-imposition of wage and price controls?

It is axiomatic that those who fail to learn from history are doomed to repeat it. Unbelievable as it may seem, considering the sorry saga of controls from 1971-74, there are many in Congress and elsewhere apparently anxious to make the same hideous mistake again.

Public opinion may appear to be on their side. But, National Association of Manufacturers Vice President and Chief Economist George Hagedorn observes, "Public support for controls is always strongest when controls are not in effect."

NAM Chairman David B. Meeker says business people oppose controls because they know from unfortunate experience that they lead to shortages. AFL-CIO President George Meany opposes controls because of the threat to the wages and jobs of his members.

Thus, both business and labor seem to have longer memories than some elected officials and others who call for controls. Industry and workers should be given a chance to correct economic distortions resulting from the last controls.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

For what it's worth, Charlevoix and Emmet counties soon will be the only judicial circuit and district in the state with appointed rather than elected judges.

Last summer, Gov. Milliken appointed Martin Breighner as circuit judge following the resignation of Ned Fenlon.

Now the governor must appoint a successor to District Judge Arthur Reibel, who also has stepped down.

In the meantime, Probate Judge John Murphy is filling in as district judge, and, according to court insiders, he is doing a magnificent job on the district bench.

My sources say Judge Murphy conducts the court with a painstaking attention to detail that is welcomed not only by attorneys and court workers but by prisoners in the dock.

Who the governor will appoint to fill the district opening is pretty much a matter of conjecture at this point. The forerunners appear to be Mrs. Madeline Dinu, an East Jordan attorney, and David Fershee, a young attorney fresh out of law school who is attempting to build a practice in Charlevoix.

Mrs. Dinu has her foot in the door because of a hearty endorsement by the Charlevoix County Republican Party. Fershee was the choice of the Charlevoix-Emmet Bar Association which reviewed the candidates last Thursday night during a meeting at the Weathervane Inn.

Other local attorneys interested in the post are Richard Scholl, a Petoskey attorney, and Arthur Bond of Norwood.

Although Bond is a relative newcomer to northern Michigan, he is well known in the Detroit area where he served as secretary of Chrysler Corp. for many years.

Since moving north, Bond has served as general counsel for Ski and Shore Properties, Inc., headquartered in Charlevoix.

The people of Charlevoix and Emmet counties should be thankful that so many qualified attorneys from out own local cadre of legal talent are aggressively seeking the position of district judge--a job which pays far less than most attorneys reportedly make in private practice.

However the job comes clothed in the kind of public prestige which cannot be purchased at any price. For most of us, our legal entanglements get no further than the district bench. And it is there we want our most competent judicial talent.

I don't envy Gov. Milliken the choice he must make---weighing the qualifications of each candidate against the demands of the job and the political, private and professional endorsements each one has received.

No matter whom he selects, someone will get hurt.

For my money, I'd like to see the post go to someone with a solid background in law who views the bench not as a stepping stone to greater achievement but as a milestone in a career that already has covered many miles.

I believe the job demands the kind of wisdom, keen insight and compassion that come only with maturity.

Gov. Milliken has a tough decision to make and the stakes are high — for all of us.

"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

The time has come for people to start thinking seriously about the 1976 Bicentennial. Now, I know that 1976 is a whole year away, but as they say "Time Flies". And it does.

On January 22, Charlevoix's Bicentennial Committee met in the Michigan room at the library to discuss future projects and a theme for our celebration. A theme that Mrs. Raymond H. Griffin submitted to the Historical Society was selected by the committee to be our bicentennial theme and our new city motto. Hopefully, you will soon be seeing the words "Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future" everywhere.

Renovation and restoration of the train depot was one of the ideas discussed as a possible project for the bicentennial. Efforts are being made to contact the proper people with the C&O Railroad to see if it is feasible to buy or lease the depot. Once this has been determined we will be seeking the help of service clubs and people to donate their time, or possibly develop some fund raising projects. If the train station can be restored, the community would have an excellent spot to hold club meetings and other gatherings.

If you would like to become an active participant in celebrating our bicentennial, contact me at the County Clerks Office in the County building. Any ideas that you might have would be appreciated. This town has a lot of potential and efforts should be made to celebrate the 1976 Bicentennial in style.

TV's Shuffling Success

By JIM FITZGERALD

John Kelly is right. I'm green.

Kelly is co-anchor man for TV Channel 7 news in Detroit. He gave a $300 speech in my hometown the other night, and he explained why TV newscasters are so often criticized by newspaper writers. "They're jealous," he said.

Kelly was accompanied by his new wife, Marilyn Turner, the gorgeous blonde who also works for Channel 7. She forecasts the weather and she couldn't depress me if she predicted a Sunday tornado in the western half of my skull. But she does dismay me considerably everytime she wears a pantsuit.

Miss Turner is the reason I heard my first banquet speech in 30 years. Usually I disappear with the salad plates. But I figured correctly there was no way Kelly could bore me while I was looking at his wife.

However, Miss Turner is not why I am jealous of Kelly. True, she is a girl-watcher's delight. But I don't think I could sustain a lasting relationship with a woman who makes her living sticking squalls and clouds on a big map. I would be afraid she might stick descriptive labels on everything and I would have to read her forehead before turning on my high pressure system.

The truth is, I'm jealous of all anchor men, no matter what their wives look like. I envy them their incredible ability to make it appear the fate of the world depends upon how they shuffle papers.

Walter Cronkite is my favorite. When his program begins every evening, he is holding several sheets of 8x10 paper. He grips them firmly in the center and sharply jogs the the lower 8-inch edge against the top of his desk. On big news nights, he also raps a 10-inch edge on the desk. During the Cuban crisis, he was seen to jogole all 4 edges without once looking at the desk or the paper.

Walter looks to his right or to his left, depending on the political situation at that moment. (When Goldwater was campaigning for President, Cronkite drove to New Jersey via Belgium to avoid making a right turn.) By his concerned expression, you know he is not glancing around frivolously. There are world-shaking events occurring just before camera range, where the Arabs and the Jews are separated only by a water cooler.

What with all this important shuffling and frowning to do, it is not suprising that Walter forgets he is an anchor man. His program has started at the same time for 20 years, but every night it still catches him unaware. Every night he gets so engrossed in his shuffling he doesn't notice 6 million people are watching him. America must clear its throat to get his attention.

Then Walter says hello and switches you to Washington or Tel Aviv for the news. He hardly reappears until the close of the show when once again he is so conscientiously juggling those papers he has forgotten he's on TV.

Cronkite is reportedly paid over $200,000 a year for arranging sheets of paper into neat piles while an awed nation watches.

Where I work, the pay is $2.10 an hour for jogging entire newspapers into piles that John Kelly couldn't lift. Onward and Upward, jealously.

Charlevoix's Hansen and McRae Battle for Mayor

Charlevoix residents really have only one contest to decide when they go to the polls on Monday, February 17, for the city primary--the race for mayor.

This week the Courier begins the first of several interviews with conteaders for local council seats.

Mayor Ed Hansen and Councilman Ralph McRae are the first to be interviewed.

COURIER: Would you please give us what you think are your qualifications for candidacy?

HANSEN: I have served six years as a city council member with a perfect attendance record and another two years and 10 months as Mayor, also with perfect attendance.

Over the period of twenty years, I have actively participated in administrative and policy making activities on local, state and some national levels of responsibility.

My club organizations include memberships on the American Security Council, American Legion and Air Force Association.

MCRAE: As a Council member, in less than one year I have attended more than sixty various kinds of meetings including seven out-of-town, and at my own expense. I have in recent years met hundreds of people in many areas and for personal and business reasons. Since being on the Council, I have initiated or have been very involved with other council members, so that we now have a Parking Authority, A Building Code, A Housing Commission, A City Administrator's Ordinance, and a resolution permitting Voters of Charlevoix to consider a change of charter. To me, the city government is interesting and exciting ... Also a challenge.

COURIER: As a prospective member of the City Council, what do you feel are the issues that should have top priority?

HANSEN: Establishing rapport between all units of city government and continue the low tax rate established now. We should also concentrate on essentials and guard against extravagant programs. We should considerate of the present time and act prudently according to conditions.

MCRAE: I am firmly of the opinion that our City should hire a qualified, experienced and professional City Manager. There is much more work than one capable person can adequately manage. The business of running a city is tremendously versified and complex — covering many unrelated fields. A manger or an administrator must be knowledgeable and experienced as a Personnel Director, Accounting Controller, a Budget Maker (not a guesser), Financial Officer, Office Administrator, Purchasing Agent, Public Relations Man, Airport Supervisor, Overseer of Parks, Docks and Public Buildings, a Director of Operations for the sewers, sewage plant, water, electric and street systems, Inventory Keeper — the Fire and Police departments need his cooperation. And many other duties and responsibilities are his. A lot of time must be spent seeing that Charlevoix receives it's fair share of grants from Federal and State fundings. Last and certainly of great importance is the work of assessing. But, of course, with all the above responsibilities, there is no time left for planning or setting priorities for the future of Charlevoix. We should have both a City Manager and a combined Director of Operations and Assessor. It is misleading to say anything else. Our schools would not think of hiring a Superintendent without experience. It amazes me that we continue to operate like a village.

This year's budget included $12,000 for a Utility Supervisor — that office is now vacant. A few month's ago an inexperienced assistant assessor was hired for $9,000. If we could use the $12,000 and $9,000 amounts, we could pay for a professional City Manager. Under the present set-up, something has to suffer or be neglected.

The Council has interviewed a few men qualified for the manager's job. Personally (and not necessarily the Council) I believe that our present charter is a handicap and has prevented us from receiving a good many applications. Charlevoix and Hart are the only two cities in Michigan that are not recognized as members of the National City Manager's Association. It is almost the same as a dis-credited school system.

COURIER: What course related to future growth do you feel the Council should pursue?

HANSEN: Land should be committed to the highest and best use that can be obtained for it. Zoning should be determined by the people in the immediate area, guided by best interest of the city. Recreation needs to be better scheduled and coordinated by participants in each activity.

MCRAE: Each of these items is important but I would like to consider them as just a part of a plan. I think what Charlevoix really wants is a whole new conception.

A complete planning study that would encompass a Capital Improvement Program not for the next six months, but for the next five years and even some goals that might not be obtainable in less than ten years. We need to set our sights on something tangible that would inspire our civic awareness. There are many possibilities lying dormant, or even ideas not yet formed in the minds of our young citizens. There are grants or funds available for such a study.

COURIER: Do you feel the city is being assessed equitably?

HANSEN: The city property assessments in the unit are being assessed as equitably as reasonably possible.

MCRAE: Who really knows? Unless you hear about specific complaints, it must be assumed that the average taxpayer believes assessing is fair, impartial and equal, or he may think it is useless to appeal. You may be sure they are unhappy and fearful. Presently the Acting Administrator is also the Assessor, but due to the press of duties the Council gave him some one to assist him in assessing. In restrospect, I think we made an error in that decision. We should have given him someone to assist only in his administrative work. Assessing is highly technical and only a fully trained person should be used in this critical decision-making business. If later, I have the opportunity, I would thoroughly look into the assessing procedure, especially to see that it is kept up to date.

COURIER: Should Charlevoix consider merging with Charlevoix Township?

-- Mayor Ed Hansen

'I am firmly of the opinion that our City should hire a qualified, experienced and professional city manager.'

-- Councilman Ralph McRae

HANSEN: For proper development of the township, the two units should be combined.

MCRAE: The merger will come. If so, it will come about only by the grass-root efforts of many people and not from the pressures of the concerned governing units. The various groups of citizens from the town and township must compromise and also protect the interests of their neighbors. In other words, their long time imputs and investments must be considered and balanced against each other's contributions. Confrontations must be avoided. Our hundred year old city is the result of the cumulated efforts of 23 mayors, scores of councilmen, and thousands of taxpayers.

Fortunately everyone is dealing with people they know and respect. We meet them often and daily do business with each other. So we are not strangers. Almost all of the Township inhabitants came from the City of Charlevoix. The sons and daughters know no boundary lines when it comes to love and marriage. Probably the most tragic part of not becoming one unit is the loss of intelligent leadership and the civic participation that our City could use.

While our town has most of what we require --- the Township is lacking in certain advantages. These conveniences or services do not come free but most often must be paid by special assessments by those people benefited. They need our extended utilities and we need their money – not all of it — just some of it, to provide improvements they request.

Less than fifty percent of the business owners from Petoskey Avenue to Stover Road, reside within the City confines, and probably 80 percent of the property owners in the Township, work and receive their living means from within the City. The per capita worth of the Township is much higher than the City's.

COURIER: How do you feel about a city charter?

HANSEN: The present city charter puts no undue restriction on the ability of the city to function well. Any charter is subject to the constitution of the United States and the laws of the State of Michigan. The local format is somewhat irrelevant, as your city government is only as good or bad as the elected officials make and the people insist it be.

MCRAE: I thought everyone was aware of my efforts to have Charlevoix change it's 1895 charter to a 1975 "Home Rule Charter". I would prefer to lose the nomination for the Mayor's office than to have the Charter question defeated. Only by a strong council and professional manager form of government, will Charlevoix be efficiently governed. Frankly, I hope to be the last mayor under the present antiquated 4th Class City Charter.

What Did Last Year Look Like to a Student?

By ROBIN ROSENCRANTS

Many things happened in Charlevoix High School in 1974—some good, some bad. Within these lines are a few of the most important.

In the first month of this past year school (and nationwide) talk centered mainly on the political-Nixon, The Energy Crunch, Watergate; students, parents and community were still "getting over" the lack of Christmas lights in Charlevoix, and general spirit was on the decline.

In February it hit bottom. On Feb. 13, 1974, Mr. Bruce Morgan-science teacher and beloved friend of many who knew him-died of a self-inflicted wound. It was a dark month indeed-severely complicated by the controversy over rescheduled games and meetings-and who should attend the memorial services. In the March issue of "The Flash" some eulogys were printed, and reactions to the tragedy subsided. The man became a memory.

In spite of this, life went on; Ed Buday was elected as the new Student Council Vice-president in place of Connie Crabb, who was the new President. Bill Carey, ex-CHS student now a Harvard sophomore, made his Varsity basketball team.

Then in April, we welcomed two new teachers; Mrs. Henne, who replaced Miss Ashbury in freshman English, and Mr. Woodrow, who took over for Mr. Morgan. Student Council started their Continental Breakfast, and the Spanish Club went to Spain.

When May came, "The Flash" did their regular end-of-the-year Senior Issue honoring Valedictorian Tom Alger and Salutatorian Susie Boss. The grads left the students left-and C.H.S. closed its doors on 1973-74 ....and then welcomed September (74-75) and lots of new students and teachers. Among these are the exchange students; Elin Lundteigen, Leena Kaijala, and George Papadourakis; and the new Learning Center teacher, Mr. Elias Presnell.

Also new was the "Bachelor Cooking" course introduced this year—successful so far (no one's died yet, right?). And then to guarantee a happy start, the Rayders won their first home game (27-14)-in pouring rain. Homecoming was even more glorious. We won, 28-12; Sue Fowler was elected queen; the marching Rayder band made a spectacular show.

On a different note, Miss Geraldine Stanko resigned as Middle School principal this month. Mr. Vincent Chew took over as principal, (A temporary replacement).

The K-5 and Middle School started their first newspapers (K-5 News and CMS Press). CHS was visited by a Youth For Christ organized singing and playing group, "Trademark".

Then, in November, the Crimson Flash endeavored to find out from CHS students what they thought of the paper. In an article titled "Comebacks" the students' comments (mostly negative) were printed, along with some rather caustic replies by Judy Wertman. All in all, too much was said, and nothing much accomplished.

Also in The Flash, the issue of smoking and what to do about it was brought up again. In preceding articles both the negative and positive sides were argued, by smokers and non-smokers. Now the score is even and the debaters are at an impass.

December didn't bring much in the way of exciting events-till the time for "hanging holly and making jolly" came. Then everyone let out a whew and a sigh as "Merry Christmas!" signs and lighted trees went up in the town. Although some were concerned about the economy and energy situation, may seemed relieved at the decision to put up the lights. And so ended 1974; a year of many emotions, happy, sad, and in-between; one to look back on with fondness and regret; to cherish-and forget. 1975? Well, it's here...let's hope it stays.

Charlevoix Students Don't Have it Bad

By JIM BERLAGE

You know, in the big cities like Detroit and Boston, there are a lot of problems going on in the schools.

Faced with the murders of two students within one week, Detroit, Mayor Coleman Young may order Detroit police to patrol the school halls of all high schools and a number of junior highs in the city of Detruit, if approved by the Detroit Board of Education.

This kind of scares me, since who knows, these same problems-murders, riots, or disruptions of classes-are they just around the corner for C.H.S.? It would certainly put a damper on school and education if armed police guard were patrolling the halls instead of Mr. Fortin.

For instance you might get hauled off in handcuffs just for wrestling with a friend in the halls or embracing your girl friend.

So let's hope that Charlevoix High stays away from all the violence of some of the bigger schools but perhaps join in with some of the spirit and pride the bigger city schools show for their teams.

It's National Catholic School Week

St. Mary's Joins National Observation

By PEG OHLE

Students and teachers at St. Mary's School are celebrating Catholic Schools Week this week.

Parents and other interested persons are invited to an open house this Wednesday from 9:30 to 11:30 in the morning, and from 1:30 to 3:00 in the afternoon. Those who are not free Wednesday will be welcomed on other days of the week.

Purpose of Catholic School Week is to give persons an opportunity to become acquainted with their local Catholic schools, and to encourage enrollment in them.

St. Mary's in Charlevoix dates back to 1902 and the present school building was constructed in 1956. The Dominican Sisters of Marywood, Grand Rapids, have operated the school from its beginning.

Sister M. Josine, principal of St. Mary's, states the aims of the school as follows:

"It is the aim of St. Mary's School to prepare students to take their rightful place in society by giving them a solid foundation in reading, language, math, science, social studies, and an appreciation of the fine arts.

"Over and above this knowledge, we want to give our students a strong moral value system on which they can base their life. We try to create a Christian atmosphere in the whole school so that the children learn through experience what it means to be a Christian. This is our chief reason for existing."

To help achieve these Christian ideals, students attend classes in religion and mass each school day.

St. Mary's School is supported by contributions of the parishioners. At present there is no tuition fee, but children pay a small book rental charge.

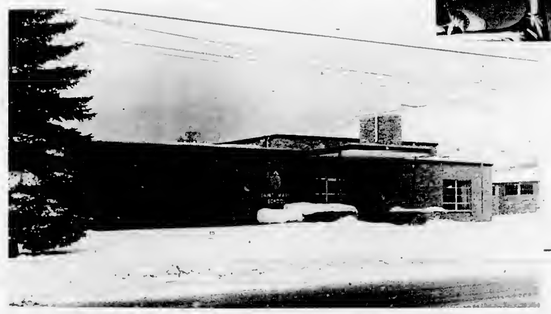
Each year, at least one new set of text books is purchased so that all books are as up to date as possible. This year, new reading and social studies books were introduced, and last year they bought new spelling, writing, math and religion books.

St. Mary's also works cooperatively with the Charlevoix Public School system. All boys and girls in fourth, fifth and sixth grades have an hour of physical education each week at the public school, which Sister Josine says is "enjoyed very much."

Also, according to Sister Josine, "The teachers at St. Mary's find the films and other materials available at the Intermediate School Office most valuable. We make frequent stops there."

Enrollment at St. Mary's this year is 92 students, down somewhat from last year because of a smaller first grade class. Sister Josine says, "We would like a few more students."

This year's faculty includes Miss Karen Buckel, fifth and sixth grades; John Gagnon, fourth grade; Sister M. Helen, third grade; Mrs. Jeanne Dubey, first grade; and Sister Josine who teaches second grade as well as serving as principal.



St. Mary's School

IN ADDITION to the public school system in Charlevoix, there is also a parochial school operated by St. Mary's on Bridge Street.

Rayders Defeat Boyne

By FRAN MARTIN

It has been said for years that anything can happen in a Charlevoix-Boyne City game.

Friday night the Charlevoix Rayders (4-6) proved this as they upset the lofty Ramblers (6-2) by a score of 76-56. The victory avenged an earlier 60-58 loss to the Ramblers on their home floor.

The Rayders got off to a slow start and trailed 12-8 at the quarter before finding the range and dumping in 12 buckets to take a 32-28 half-time advantage.

As the second half got underway, the Haydens continued their scoring spree pouring in 22 points to 13 for the Ramblers for a 54-41 advantage going into the final period when they continued to set the pace with 19 points to 15 for the visitors.

Thirty-one field goals and 11 of 16 free throws gave the victors their winning margin. They had 19 personal fouls. Boyne City had 21 field goals, 14 of 24 free throws and 14 personal fouls.

Mike Streeter led the scoring for Charlevoix with 25 points. Bob Alger, hack in the line-up for the first time since injuring an ankle in the Benzie Central game, came through with 14 and Chuck Faust had 12. Bud Klooster, up from the JV's for his first Varsity game, had eight points; Dave Martinchek, six; Kevin Stokes and Matt Doan, second JV player up for his first Varsity game, four each.

The Rayders played heads-up ball all the way, scoring 12 field goals in the second period and 10 plus two charity shots in the third period.

The Rayders will play at Petoskey Friday.

CHARLEVOIX'S Bob Alger (21) puts in one of many shots he made during Charlevoix's victory over Boyne City in Charlevoix.

Independent League Continues

By CHUCK WRIGHT

It was a strange week in independent league basketball. No game was closer than 10 points. Going into last week's contests, several games figured to be close.

Wojan Aluminum defeated First State Bank by a whopping 22 points, 59-37. Both teams were 4-5 prior to gametime, but from the outset, Wojan's superior heighth turned the game into a rout. Don Ward had his second big week in a row, turning in a 21 point performance and not picking up a single personal foul.

Don Smith, the retired referee, added 10 to the Wojan cause. For First State Bank, Pete Spieles picked up 13 while Larry Roth added 10.

Russell's Shell figured to give Lake Michigan Division leader, Charlevoix County State Bank, a stiff contest and although they did have some bright moments, Russell's lost 66-52. The first quarter ended in a 16-16 tie, but then Larry Skippergosh scored 10 second quarter points for the Bankers to give them a comfortable 36-25 lead.

Russell's did manage to close the gap to six points, but simply could not overcome the State Bank lead. Skippergosh paced the Bankers with 19, followed by Steve Martinis with 14 and Ron Senorga with 10. For Russell's, Larry Brock led all scorers with 21 and Jim Potter chipped in 16.

Jim's Chart jumped out to a 20-5 first quarter lead over Alray Cottages and coasted to the fifth straight win 71-51. Alray did manage to close the gap to five points at one time, however.

Brian Van Loo scored 12 points in the fourth quarter, 19 overall, to lead all scorers. Steve McClellan had a technical foul and 15 points, while Jerry Skippergosh and Vince Left added 12 points each. Clayton Jones had 10. For Alray, Scott Blanchard hit for 16, Jay Masoryak had 11 and Stan Towsley 10.

Andy's Tire World got back on the winning track with a 72-61 win over Medusa. Andy's was behind for three quarters, but Kevin Jonnechek got hot in the fourth and scored 14 points to lead the comeback. He had 33 for the game. Steve Jonnechek added 16 and Stu Cunningham 12. For Medusa, scrappy Charley Borths had his high for the season 24 points. Richard Borths contributed 14 and Jim Borths 12.

Kenney's Excavating remained in first place in the Lake Charlevoix division with a surprisingly tough 55-45 victory over Muma's. After leading by as much as 14 points, Kenney's had only a three point halftime edge. Their overall team balance enabled them to come away with the win. Jack Danbert paced Kenney's with 14 and Dale Shooks and Paul Stanfield each added 10. Muma's was led by Mike Mapps with 13. Dick Putman chipped in 11.

Village Milkhouse stayed right on Kenney's heels with an 81-42 thumping of John Deere. Gary Novotny scored his season's high with 25 points followed closely by Denny Way with 22. Dale Boss connected for 19 and Jerry Sandahl added 10. Ken Bartley was the only player in double figures for John Deere. He scored 12.

Rayder Wrestlers Place 6th in Benzie Tourney

Charlevoix's Phil Christ, who placed first in the 185 pound division, was voted the most valuable wrestler in the tourney.

Five other Charlevoix matmen placed in the meet. Tim DeYoung in the 112 pound class placed second; Pat DeYoung (138), third and Ron Hilton (105), Terry Drew (132) and Gary Probert (167) placed fourth.

Reed City took the tournament with 63 points followed by Scottville with 59; Roscommon, 55½; Pine River, 53; Benzie Central, 51 with Clare in seven with 43½; Manistee, 33; Manistee Catholic, 29.

Coach Norm Probert said his wrestlers had experienced the return of the flu bug.

On Sunday Christ was admitted to the Charlevoix Area Hospital for treatment of the illness.

However, in the tournament Saturday he pinned Jim Kriesel of Scottville in :30 seconds and Gary Childer of Clare in :53 seconds before going into the big match against Gene Stiefelmeyer of Roscommon. Stiefehneyer, with a 22-0 record, had defeated Christ in the holiday tournament here. Christ has a 14-1 record for the season. After wrestling to a 6-6 tie in regulation time, penalty points on Christ put the match into three overtime before the Rayder grappler won in a 6-4 decision.

Charlevoix will travel to Kalkaska Tuesday and to Petoskey Thursday.

On Monday, Feb. 10, Charlevoix will host Mancelona and Rudyard. Parents will be honored during the dual meet.

The Rayders will close out their regular schedule on Feb. 13 when they host Gaylord.

Mr. Music
munity Concert Association since its inception.

The esteem with which he is held by fellow bandmen became evident several years ago when he was asked to head a Music Education Workshop whose assignment was to compile information to be used by band directors.

Odmarks says his wife, Jan has played a major role in any success he might have earned as a band director.

"Jan was always recruited as a chaperone on band trips; she was my secretary when I needed one...here, when I was a district officer and when I was state treasurer," he said. "It was she who balanced the checking account when I was state treasurer."

"When we were compiling the information we gathered in the workshop, it was she who did all the typing and preparing it for the printer."

After two years in the classroom, Mrs. Odmark took over the job of homemaker and mother of three children, Richard, now living in San Antonio, Robert in Arlington, Va., and Julie who lives here.

It wasn't until they were well established in school that she returned to teaching. In the years that followed, she not only taught but earned her master's degree.

Cathryn Lynn Dubey Marries Eugene Liotta

Cathryn Lynn Dubey and Eugene Anthony Liotta of Linden, N.J., stationed here with the U.S. Coast Guard, exchanged their wedding vows at a double ring service solemnized at the First Baptist church Friday evening.

The Rev. Hugh Cowan officiated at the service in the presence of 100 guests. Arrangements of Red, white and blue carnations and gladioli graced the altar for the ceremony. Gold bows marked the pews. Vincent Chew played a program of traditional music and the wedding marches and sang "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Wedding Song".

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Dubey of Charlevoix and Eugene E. Liotta of Linden, N.J., and the late Mrs. Liotta.

Mr. Dubey escorted his daughter to the altar. For her wedding the bride chose a gown of Chantilly lace and white satin fashioned with an empire waist and flowing skirt that ended in a train. Her tiered veil, trimmed with the same lace, was secured by a band of satin and lace. She carried a bridal bouquet of white mums, red and blue straw flowers and ferns.

Mrs. Michael Carr of Traverse City was matron of honor and Cristol Dubey, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. They wore floor length gowns of red and blue velvet, respectively, and matching velvet head bows. Their bouquets were similar to the bride's with velvet ribbons to match their gowns.

Edward Gonzales, U.S.C.G., assisted the bridegroom as best man. Jeffrey Drury, cousin of the bride, was groomsman and Don Ward and John W. Powell were ushers.

Mrs. Dubey chose a floor length gown of burgundy velvet for her daughter's wedding. Her corsage was of burgundy tinted carnations.

A reception, hosted by the bride's parents, followed at the American Legion post home. Women at the First Baptist church catered the event.

Following a southern Michigan wedding trip, the couple will reside at 450-1B Glen Oaks Dr., Muskegon, where the bridegroom will be stationed with the U.S. Coast Guard.

One of the newest clubs in town is the Charlevoix Camera Club, which meets every other Monday evening at 7:30.

The club is the outgrowth of an adult education course in photography taught by Terry Salmonson, a local photographer, last fall. A group of students who enjoyed working together started the club to further their knowledge and techniques.

The club is open to all interested persons of any age. Bob Howard, who is employed by little Traverse Printing Company in Petoskey, is president of the club; Marian Broussard is vice president; and Dr. Robert Martin is secretary.

Howard may be reached at 547-6143 by anyone interested in joining the club.

Dr. Martin says that the club hopes to have an exhibit at the Charlevoix Arts and Crafts show, and at other locations in the city.

Terry Salmonson is teaching two intermediate photography classes this semester. One is at the adult education level, held from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday evenings and the other is a college credit course, held from 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesday evenings. Both classes are held at Charlevoix High School.

There's a familiar old saying about what goes up must come down, but we're not sure we entirely agree, because we have a new book in the library which, once picked up just can't be put down.

That's a terrible pun, but 'Some Are Born Great,' by Adela Rogers St. Johns is a marvelous book. It concerns the great women she has known in her fifty-odd years of covering the news. It is anything but a collection of biographies. She is caustic, opinionated, irreverant, candid. For example in speaking of Willa Cather she remarks...."maybe our finest American woman novelist. She was a horrid, harsh, repellent woman and a lousy, unscrupulous reporter." And how about this amusing tidbit: When the judge sentenced Carry Natioo he said: "Ninety days for disturbing the peace and destroying private property and God forgive me for not strangling her with my bare hands."

The book contains one delightful anecdote after another. There are memorable thoughts, scenes and facts on every page as Mrs. St. Johns writes about Anuillin Earhart, Rachel Carson, Bess Truman, Margarct Mitchell and scores of others. We predict that once you pick this one up, you won't put it down.

A great many patrons have been waiting for 'The Palace Guard,' the new book by Dnn Rather, CBS news White House correspondent. So if you're not completely saturated with the White House scene, you will find this to be a fascinating; account of the Nixon administration and the men who ran it and the country before Watergate brought them down.

And believe it or not, Taylor Caldwell has a new book for us. It's titled 'Glory and the Lightening,' and we wonder how this magnificent, dependable author can keep going--still turning out classics. She was born in 1900 which puts her in the retirement bracket, but we fervently hope she won't join the group.

Her new novel is about the ancient world--Persia and Greece. It concerns the life of Aspasia, the beautiful and intelligent courtesan who eventually became the companion of Pericles, ruler of Athens. This extraordinary woman finds herself increasingly in rebellion against the helpless position of women in ancient society. It is an absorbing novel, and the woman reader will find in the life of Aspasia a model for the timeless conflicts of all women.

(United Church of Christ)

R.H. Giffin, Minister

We are a Pilgrim people by heritage as well as by intent, embarked upon an ongoing journey of faith to discover God's love in our lives.
Founded by the Pilgrims of Plymouth Colony and the Puritans of Massachusetts Bay Colony in the 1620's, the Congregational Church united with the Christian Church in 1931. The resulting denomination merged with the Evangelical and Reformed church in 1957 to become the United Church of Christ in order to more fully express our oneness in Christ, to make more effective our common witness to Him and to serve His kingdom in the world through agricultural, educational, medical, urban and evangelistic projects in 50 some countries.
The United Church of Christ recognizes the inherent autonomy of the local church under the leadership of the "laos", the whole people of God, minister and laity alike. The First Congregational Church of Charlevoix was founded in 1882 after meeting as a Sunday School and Society for many years in the old Dixon home. The latest addition to the original structure was dedicated in 1970. Outstanding in the line of 25 ministers is Dr. Harold E. Kohn, well known counselor, artist and writer now Pastor Emeritus.
The present active and associate membership numbers about 425. Sunday worship is held at 11:00 a.m. September through May with adult classes at 9:00 and 9:45 and Church School classes at 9:45 for all ages through 9th grade. A Women's Fellowship, four circles and a Men's breakfast group meet monthly. A youth group is being reorganized at the present time. Family nights, adult forums, leadership training and an ongoing ministry of music highlight the year.
We are a free church, a responsible church, a church of the people, gathered for work, witness and worship, dispersed to be the church in the community as members assume positions of leadership and responsibility and we invite all of like spirit to worship with us.

Famous People in History

PAUL REVERE

Paul Revere was born in Boston, Massachusetts in 1735. He was a silversmith and engraver by trade. In 1773, he took part in the Boston Tea Party when the patriots dumped tea from British ships into Boston Harbor as a protest against high taxes. As official courier for the Massachusetts Provincial Assembly, he made his famous ride from Boston to Lexington to warn the countryside that the British troops were on the march. As an engraver, Revere designed and printed the first issue of Continental money, designed the first official seal for the colonies and the state seal for Massachusetts. Revere also discovered a process for rolling sheet copper. He died in 1818.

State Health Official Says No Cause for Alarm

PBB Traces Found in Charlevoix Residents

By KEN WINTER

A young Norwood couple have discovered they are one of an unknown number of Michigan residents who have traces of Poly-Brominated Bi-phenyl (P.B.B.) inside of them.

Doug Warner and his wife, Marty Jo, local dairy farmers, learned last week from their physician that the toxic fire retardant mistakingly mixed with animal feed has been found in their blood and no one is sure what the significance of it is.

Twenty-four-year-old Warner knows he has six parts per billion of P.B.B., which his doctor tells him is considered to be a very low concentration.

To this date, his doctor writes, there has been no definite level associated with human illness.

In fact, no definite clear cut symptoms have been attributed to any patient Warner's physician concludes.

What does the young couple do? They're not sure.

Doug and Marty Jo Warner first learned about P.B.B. last July when a state health inspector told them traces of the fire retardant were found in their cattle's milk.

The P.B.B., a fire retardant sold under the name Flame-Master, was shipped by the Michigan Chemical Company to Michigan Farm Bureau Services instead of Nutro-Master, an animal food supplement, and sold to farmers.

Cattle lose their breeding capacity and calves which are conceived are usually still-born or deformed. Adult cattle also lose weight, and often dies.

The state inspector's warning came a few days after Warner had been to the hospital with mysterious severe stomach cramps and a high temperature.

After two visits to the hospital, Warner ended up staying for seven days only to learn that a high amount of protein was found in his urine.

"I kept drinking the milk," he said.

After continued problems, Warner said his physician called the state health department, who in turn ordered special blood tests be taken of the Warners and a hired hand.

In the meantime, the Warners lost their herd of 273 cattle and horses because they were found to have more than .3 parts of P.B.B. in a million, a dangerous contamination standard set by the Department of Agriculture.

Meat and milk from animals testing above that amount cannot be sold, but if contamination is below .3 parts such meat and milk can be sold on the open market.

The Warners finally learned about test results last week.

"I wasn't even home when the letter arrived," Marty Jo said about the letter from their physician.

"It shocked me when Doug said look at the letter on the table."

Even though their physician has told them it is not serious, the Warners say they can't help think about it after watching their cattle slowly lose weight and die.

"You're more careful with your health."

Both say they just try not to think about it.

When contacted Monday night at his home in Lansing, Dr. Norman S. Hayner of the State Health Department's disease control division said no consistent pattern of illness has been attributed to those exposed to P.B.B.

He said the state is still in the process of tabulating results from the nearly 300 people they have surveyed in portions of the state. Another 500 have been interviewed by telephone.

Even though the analysis has not been completed, the medical doctor said there is no cause for alarm.

"If there was a significant level of exposure it had to be with the people on the farm or those who used the meat, poultry or milk directly," Dr. Hayner said.

"Anyone else in the state who has had a very small exposure because they had a portion of meat or a little trace level exposure to this chemical through its getting into a milk supply would have a far lower level of exposure."

The empidemiologist said he could hardly perceive it would be a significant level. He said it was much too diluted in store purchased milk to have any effect.

"If a family has had a large exposure to a high concentration then they should of course discuss it with a physician," he said.

"We cannot examine everyone in the state nor do we have the where with all."

Dr. Hayner said he didn't know if there was a harmful effect to humans and of the thousand people he has known who have had either primary or secondary exposure, he is not aware of any serious illnesses or deaths that can be attributed to P.B.B.

He said the more serious problem to the farmer is more of an economic one.

Financial losses to farmers are reported to be running into the millions.

State Representative Ralph Ostling told the Courier Monday night that the State House is now considering a bill he introduced that would make low cost state louns available to farmers. A similar bill is in the Senate.

The bill now would allow loans for $1,500 a cow or $4 a bird at two percent a month interest for those animals, lost because of P.B.B. contamination and certified by the State Agriculture Department.

"It's no cost to the State of Michigan," he said in an interview in Petoskey.

"The bill proposes to set up an interim loan until farmers can settle with insurance companies."

Charlevoix City Voters Decide on Mayoral Contest this Monday

Other than that, residents in Charlevoix's Second Ward will have to wait until spring to decide on who they want as alderman. At that time incumbent Republican Jeannine Wallace will be challenged by Democrat Ivan Whitley.

The two other city commissilman, clerk and treasurer are running unopposed.

Polls at city hall open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. Absentee ballots must be in by 2 p.m., Saturday.

Even though council candidates are running unopposed the Courier asked each of them how they view particular city issues. (See last week's Courier for detailed interview with Hansen and McRae)

First Ward Councilman Ray Wood is seeking his first full term after earlier being appointed to fill a vacancy.

He is active in no less than a dozen organizations ranging from the Charlevoix Lion's Club to the American Legion.

A relatively newcomer to city politics, the Charlevoix Republican is a self-employed licensed contractor.

"I believe the top priority in the city is the continual improvement in the good departments we have now," Wood says.

Wood said he is pleased with the work the departments are doing and says the city should be looking ahead to the future with good planning for the next 10, 20 and 30 years.

When asked about future growth, Wood said he was more concerned about developing better Residential-1 Housing than perhaps an industrial park.

Wood also said that the city and township should merge feeling that the well qualified residents in both communities could add a great deal if unified.

This April, Jeannine Wallace will be seeking a second term as Second Ward Alderman.

Her major concern is that the city give top priority towards establishing and maintaining a program for electrical, water and sewer, streets and sidewalks.

The Charlevoix Republican says Charlevoix should also strive for strong and proper zoning and cites a need for upgrading present residential zoning.

"Under our present ordinance too many neighborhoods could be downgraded with multiple housing," she says.

Mrs. Wallace adds that Charlevoix needs a building code designed to work with the present construction code.

Even though Charlevoix Township had a negative feeling towards merging with the city, the Charlevoix Councilwoman said it would be in the best interest for both communities to merge.

She also stands firmly on the need for a new city charter so Charlevoix could have a city-manager form of government.

Mrs. Wallace's opponent, F. Ivan Whitley says he has spent hundreds of hours attending council meetings and is abreast of city conditions.

The Charlevoix Democrat is a member of the American Legion and Michigan Democratic Party.

As far as major issues, Whitley says he supports the present city administrator and would like to see a street improvement that includes more than tar and chips.

He said work also has to be done on some of the public park areas.

In the area of future growth, the Charlevoix resident says the city needs more residential one zoning to restrict multiple family dwellings.

He is presently undecided about merger and is waiting for the feasibility being done by the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission.

"More government costs more money and a new city charter means just that," Whitley says about having a Home-Rule Charter.

"I am for updating our Four Class City Act by amendments."

Third Ward Councilman George Plumm is also seeking his second term.

He is Commander of American Legion, Leslie T. Shapton Post 226 of Charlevoix.

If the economic picture brightens, Plumm says the city should improve and expand any project that would better Charlevoix.

Plumm stresses the need for good zoning and encourages projects like downtown parking to improve the area.

He also believes that merger of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township is in the best interest of both communities.

The Charlevoix Republican says he has mixed opinions about a new charter and would like voters to make their own decision.

Miss Annabelle Cunningham is running unopposed for treasurer, a position she has held since 1960. She has worked the county treasurer's office for 26 years.

Mrs. Ida Heise is also running unopposed for city clerk.

She was first appointed to the position by Mayor William Fochtman in 1970.

Mrs. Heise is a member of the Petoskey Chapter of the American Society of Women Accountants.

Bad Weather Hits Mardi Gras

By FRAN MARTIN

Snow showers buffeted about by high winds that sent the chill factor far below zero did little to discourage the residents and visitors from turning out Saturday for the second annual Winter Mardi Gras.

Herb Orvis, Detroit Lion lineman, and Mayor Edward P. Hansen led the parade to the Bridge Street-Clinton Street intersection where they left their cars so Orvis could officiate at the coronation of Lois McLaughlin and Harold Thomure as royalty of the event.

At the same time Debbie Holiday and Robert Shores were crowned as princess and prince of the Mardi Gras.

Bill Supernaw and Mrs. William (Mary) Haggard, runners-up for king and queen, also participated in the ceremony.

Prior to the coronation ceremony, Miss McLaughlin, Thomure, the prince and princess, Hansen and Orvis served as judges of the entries in the Mardi Gras Parade.

NAMED AS Charlevoix's official Mardi Gras Court Friday were Harold Thomure, king; Lois McLaughlin, queen; Herb Orvis, a Detroit Lion lineman; Debbie Holiday, princess; and Bob Shores, prince.

The judges then toured the community judging the ice-sculpture that had been entered in the contest.

First place went to the Chester Boat Livery entry depicting a fisherman and his catch, done in ice. Second place to the Mickey Mouse entered by Dawn McKenzie and third place to the snowmobile and rider entered by the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club.

The Mardi Gras is sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce headed by Vincent Olach, secretary-manager.

Deputies Reach Tentative Agreement

A tentative agreement between the Teamsters Local 214 whose membership is composed of Charlevoix county Sheriff's employees and the Charlevoix county board of commissioners has been reached according to Ralph Richardson of the Board of Commissioners and Harold Thomure, union steward.

The tentative agreement came after representatives of the two groups had met with the mediator, Robert Rombouts.

Agreement has been reached on all major issues of the two-year contract. Two comparatively minor issues remain to be settled.

Richardson said Monday night that he was hopeful of having a letter to present to the board at its meeting on Tuesday. He said he did not expect to receive a copy of the contract at this time.

The old contract expired Dec. 31, 1974. However, both groups agreed that it should remain in effect until a new contract could be negotiated.

This is the second contract negotiated by this local since the sheriff's deputies voted to join the union in 1973.

Council Adopts New Ordinance

By BOB CLOCK

The City Council Monday night unanimously passed an ordinance governing the use of automatic telephone devices which alert city emergency services in the event of fire or burglary.

For several months, the city has received a rash of telephone calls when the devices were triggered by mistake or when no emergency existed.

Oftentimes police and firemen answering calls to unoccupied buildings are unable to locate and turn off the device, which continues to tie up city emergency lines at regular intervals.

The ordinance provides for the issuance of permits at an annual cost of $30 for businesses and residences using such devices. It further provides that only numbers authorized by the city may be fed into such machines.

Salesmen and installers of such equipment are required to notify the city annually of the number and location of devices installed.

The city in turn will install a special emergency line into which the devices will be programmed.

Forensics Snubbed By School Board

By FRAN MARTIN

A Charlevoix high school group, the forensics students, Monday became the first of a number of groups which may feel the affect the school district's austerity move.

Following the recommendations of Supt. James A. McKimmy and Vane Smith, high school principal, the Charlevoix board of eduction vetoed a request for funds to underwrite a trip to St. Johns.

Earlier, the debate teams requested funds to travel to Ypsilanti to participate in the State finals.

In turning down the request of the forensics group, more familiarly known as the One Act group, they were advised that there just was not money available. "In the past there was always a fund that could be tapped. Now there isn't any. You can't budget what you haven't got" Vane Smith said in recommending that the request be turned down.

Happy Valentine's Day

'Tis the Mating Season of the Birds? That's Right

By PEG OHLE

'Tis the mating season of the birds, that's what Valentine's Day celebrates.

At least there was a medieval belief, held generally in England and France, that it was at the start of the second fortnight of the second month that the birds began to mate.

This belief is noted in the poems of many well-known writers.

Long ago Chaucer wrote:

"For this was on St. Valentine's Day.

When every fowl cometh there to choose his mate."

Beaumont and Fletcher in their play "Thierry and Theodoret" have these lines:

"When you hear the birds call for their mates,

Ask if it be St. Valentine's coupling day."

In "A Midsummer's Night Dream" William Shakespeare asks: 'Saint Valentine's is past: Begin these wood-bird birds to couple now?"

Robert Herrick connects the mating of birds with the lovemaking of young people in the poem "To His Valentine":

'Oft I have had both youths and virgins say 'Birds choose their mates, and couple too, this day:

But by their flight I never can divine

When I shall couple with my valentine."

There were several Saints Valentine. The most prominent seem to be two martyrs whose feasts are celebrated on February 14, one a priest who died at Rome and the other the Bishop of Termi. Very little is known about either, but both seemed to have died the same day in the year 270.

Valentine's or love tokens, are probably only accidental connections with St. Valentine, and owe their origin to the mating season of the birds.

Valentine's Day customs vary from country to country. Gifts of candy, flowers, fruits and other items are given in many countries, but in some countries there have been very speelnl customs throughout the years.

In Sicily, some unmarried women got up before sunrise and stood by a window, watching for a man to pass their house. Each girl believed that the first man she saw, or one who looked like him, would become her bridegroom within the year. Shakespeare also notes this custom in "Hamlet" with these words:

"Tomorrow is Snint Valentine's Day

All in the morning betime,

And I a maid at your window

To be your Valentine."

In England, young women rolled the names of their gentlemen friends in clay and dropped them in water. The first name which rose to the surface was her true Valentine.

Another custom was to pin five bay leaves to their pillow. They believed they would see their future husband in their dreams if the charm worked.

Paper Valentines became popular in the United States during the Civil War, although some, in German script, that date back to the 1700's, have been found.

Today, many Valentines have fancy covers and are decorated with flowers and paper lace. They contain words of friendship, a sentimental verse, or a simple message of love:

"Oh, dearer than all the beauty that the fairest day can prove,

Is the heart's divinest duty, to love thee with all my love."

Or, a little more down to earth:

"What the thread is to the needle, when sewing's to be done,

So to complete my life, dear, you're the only one."

Comic Valentines called "penny dreadfuls" were once popular in the United States. They contained caricatures of such persons as school teachers and persons vied to find the worst one for their non-Valentines.

Valentines come in all types from juvenile to sentimental to comic, and some which reflect modern day living, such as:

"For Valentine's Day I got you a computer,

Program Planned

Another Childbirth program for pregnant women and other interested persons will start March 18 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The program is an eight-week course covering almost every aspect of pregnancy and childbirth. Taught by Mrs. Janet Ready, R.N., who will be assisted by several physicians and other nurses and individuals, students will learn about exercises for relaxation and physical conditioning, nutritional needs, female anatomy and physiology, emotional and physical effects of pregnancy, normal labor and delivery, care and feeding of the newborn infant, and social, sexual, financial and emotional adjustment to the new member family.

Members of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Women's Auxiliary are sponsoring the Childbirth program as a public service undertaking. Last October, 14 pregnant women were "graduated" from the first Childbirth program held in Charlevoix.

Each prospective mother is asked to bring her husband or another person who will act as her coach during the childbirth procedure. The course is not only for first-time mothers because all can benefit from the course, Mrs. Ready says. The last class included a mother of four.

Other than pregnant women, the course is designed for those who want to learn about the physiology of pregnancy and childbirth, including men and women who are not sure they want to become parents.

The Childbirth course will be held on Tuesday evenings at 7 o'clock in the Physical Therapy room of the hospital. There is a $3 fee for the course and registration may be made through Mrs. Donna McGarry, phone 547-6017.

Planners Organize Merger Study

The first steps towards developing a merger feasibility study between Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township got underway last week.

Meeting at Charlevoix City Hall Tuesday night, the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission discussed how fact finding committees under the commission's direction would tackle the question.

Basically, the study would cover nine different areas ranging from police, fire and ambulance protection under a merger unit to capital improvement.

Other areas would include planning and zoning, finance, streets and electrical, water and sewer and ward boundary adjustment.

"It's got to be an unbiased study," Commission Chairman John Haggard said.

Fact finding committee chairmen, who were selected by the commission earlier, will be naming four residents (two from the township and two from the city) to be working with them.

Named as chairmen were Jack Mol, police, fire and ambulance; Curt Kipke, parks and recreation; George Duke, planning and zoning; Joan Blanchard, financial and tax analysis, Ken Staley, ward boundary adjustment; Alvin Ranger, water and sewer; Don Vlosin, administrative; and Lou Hollow, capital improvement.

After receiving the reports on April 1, the commission will review and present them to township board and city council in June.

The commission started working on the feasibility study several weeks ago when the township gave them a verbal approval for the project.

Following the township request, the city then gave their nod after being asked by the commission.

The study comes only weeks before Charlevoix Township said they had no interest in joining the city after meeting with them several times.

New Area Consortium

Moerland Elected Manpower Officer

I. Lee Moerland, representing the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, was recently elected secretary of the consortium set up to administer Manpower Program funds in the 10 county northwest Michigan area under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

Called the Northwest Michigan Manpower Consortium (NMMC), the group will be responsible for allocating CETA funds to the various northwest counties.

At a meeting held in Traverse City recently, the consortium also appointed a committee to develop criteria for the Director position of NMMC. The position will require a person oriented in business management and personnel relations who holds a college degree in either field or its equivalent. Advertisements for the position will soon appear in local newspapers.

THERE'S AT least a few who like Charlevoix's cold temperatures. Terry Saimonson of Aartvark Studios found this Arctic Owl atop a crane on Round Lake basking in the cold winds.

Tunison Appointed To State Position

Mrs. Alice E. Tunison, director of Charlevoix County Civil Defense, has been appointed to the state Civil Defense Advisory Council by Governor William G. Milliken.

According to Mrs. Tunison, the Civil Defense Advisory Council is made up of representatives from various state and private organizations which would be involved in disaster cases. Mrs. Tunison represents Civil Defense directors on the council.

Mrs. Tunison, who was first appointed to her county job in 1963, is also a part-time secretary in the Charlevoix County prosecuting attorney's office.

Clinic Scheduled For Area Elderly

Senior Citizens in the area will be given an opportunity to have their blood pressure taken free of charge this Thursday afternoon by a representative from the District Health Department.

The blood pressure clinic will be held in the cafeteria of the Charlevoix High School following the regular Senior Citizens luncheon served by the Commission on Aging.

The luncheon begins at 1:15 and the blood pressure clinic starts about 2:30. Those who do not care to attend the luncheon may arrive later for clinic.

The Mayor's Race -- Who To Vote For

Charlevoix residents head for the polls next Monday to decide on who they want to represent them in the spring city election.

Actually, the only decision they have to make in Monday's primary election is for mayor.

To us the choice is simple.

In last week's Courier, the Mayor made it clear that he is standing on his record.

He says he has been able to keep taxes down and has been happy with Robert Wexstaff as aeting city administrator and would like to see him appointed on a permanent basis.

Wexstaff stepped up from his city assessor's position on a temporary basis to run the city following the resignation of former city administrator Thomas Hanna.

Besides those two issues, the Mayor has said it is important for there to be more unity between departments in city hall.

The Mayor is also standing on his record of experience as both a city councilman and mayor.

On the other hand, residents have Councilman Ralph McRae, who is offering several opposite views from those of the mayor.

Even though a newcomer to the council, McRae is standing on his active involvement in the community as enough experience to become mayor.

His major concern is for Charlevoix to become a home rule city instead of running under the Michigan Fourth Class Cities Act as it does now.

McRae says this would help the city run more smoothly and operate under a city manager, which he says is desperately needed.

The Charlevoix City Councilman has made it clear that he wants Wexstaff back in his role as city assessor and a city manager hired.

McRae has also been pushing hard for senior citizen housing.

We feel the two candidates offer enough diversification that residents should be able to easily decide what direction they want the city to go.

We encourage you to vote next Monday on who you want as mayor.

We at this point cannot endorse either candidate.

Mayor Edward Hansen has had an uphill battle to fight at city hall and has not received a vote of confidence from council on several major issues.

So, it is really too hard to tell what his leadership ability is like. We have not been impressed with his handling of city council meetings, yet we cannot place the blame entirely on the mayor.

At the same, Councilman Ralph McRae has presented us with a lot of good ideas for improving the city, yet we really wonder if his lack of experience in public office might be a hinderance.

Senator Upsets Harris

Senator Robert Davis
State Senate
Lansing Michigan. 48902.
Dear Senator Davis;

The following is submitted as a supplement to your questionaire. The complete success of a free society based on all segments of that society sharing equally in proportion to the contributions made. Our society is divided into three segments, personal, business and governmental.

Further, consider that governmental bodies, in a free society, are subject to the will of the people. The business sector is comparable to the fable goose that laid the golden egg on a daily basis.

Suggest you refresh your memory by reading about Easop's fable, paying strict attention to the results.

The recent repeal of the sales tax has set the tone of the public sector. Suggest you seriously consider supporting the idea of equal sharing by promoting a general reduction of 10 percent of State expenditures, beginning with salaries from top to bottom as well as services.

This action, coupled with an increase of .04 percent income tax (10 percent) will amply provide for the projected defieit of 621M dollars and hopefully produce a 143M dollar surplus.

We need equal sharing of final results, in good times and in bad times, not more taxes across the board.

Sincerely
H.G. Harris

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

Back in the days when the May-st. sewer was still on the drawing board, Mayor Ed Hansen sometimes became impatient with how slowly the project was moving ahead.

"Give me two men and a back-hoe and I'll put it in myself," he told the council one night.

I thought at the time that the mayor was speaking facetiously, because the May-st. sewer obviously was beyond the capabilities of two men and a back-hoe. But now I'm not so sure his honor was speaking in jest.

Since then Mayor Hansen has made it clear that he believes there are simple, inexpensive solutions to all city problems--just as there were when he was a boy.

My problem is that I like to think the same way Hansen does, although I know I am dead wrong.

For example, I wish we could pick up a home-town fellow, put him in an office in city hall and call him the city superintendent. But it doesn't work that way.

Charlevoix isn't a very large community from a population standpoint, but from a problem standpoint we are a giant among pygmies. What other city of our size has its population double or triple for two months out of the year? What other city of our size is bisected by a Great Lakes waterway, neeessitating submarine sewer, water and electrical conduits? What other city our size must provide recreational faeilities for five times our own population?

Charlevoix is too large to have a jack-of-all-trades in the city superintendent's office, yet it is not large enough to be run by a front man with legions of appointed experts at his beck and call. The post must be filled by someone with a certain amount of expertise in many fields. Finance, taxation, personnel relations, electrical distribution systems, zoning, municipal water systems, budgets, street repair and maintenance, federal government programs--you name it.

The job is tremendously complicated and requires vast amounts of administrative and executive expertise.

For the past 18 months, the city superintendent's office has been filled by former assessor Robert Wexstaff who was appointed aeting superintendent by the mayor and council after the resignation of Tom Hanna. For someone unfamiliar with the intricacies of city management, Wexstaff has done a superb job. Mayor Hansen wants to make the appointment permanent, but the council isn't exactly sold on the idea since it renlizes that the job today requires the skills and management techniques of someone not only schooled in city government but also of someone with long practical experience in the field.

In faet, the office of city superintendent has become something of a campaign issue in the present race between Mayor Hansen and Councilman Ralph McRae, both of whom are after the mayor's job in the Feb. 17 election.

McRae would like to cast about for a fully qualified city manager and hire him, retaining Wexstaff as an assistant. Goodness knows, Wexstaff's experience--after running the city almost single handedly for 18 months--shouldn't go to waste.

McRae also knows that we are going to have to pay and pay well for whoniever we hire. But he also knows that Charlevoix is a $65 million corporation that must not be left in the hands of amateurs.

A builder and businessman all his life, McRae has brought more new ideas to Charlevoix city government during his first year on the council than many a freshman alderman in many a year. Working in opposition to Mayor Hansen, he has managed to put the question of charter reform on the April general election ballot. He has gone to bat for Senior Citizens housing. He has drawn up what we believe is the city's first "table of organization," showing who is responsible to whom.

McRae is an "idea man" who likes to put his ideas to work--and he could be just the shot-in-the-arm Charlevoix needs today to see us over the long-haul.

It's fun to think like Mayor Hansen-that there are simple solutions to most problems. Unfortunately, the problems of 1975 defy simple remedies.

And McRae knows it.

Former Charlevoix Mayor Questions Assessment

Editor:

Property tax assessing, unfortunately, cannot be a precise science. I learned that, with some distress, while serving in Charlevoix's city government.

But nor should it be a wild, irrational guessing game, based on the whims or moods of individuals in government. Most especially it should not show favoritism toward those in government.

Yet that seems to be just what it has become in Charlevoix.

After spending hours pouring through the 1974 city tax assessments, the only consistency I could find is that persons on the Board of Review will not be bitten as hard as the average citizen, when tax time comes in June and December.

To understand what is happening takes a little background information.

The Charlevoix County Equalization Dept. is responsible for seeing that all property taxes in the county are based on as near 50 percent of true cash value as it is humanly possible to determine. (This is state law.) This means that the Equalization Dept. uses accepted standards and formulas in determining the true cash valu. of all properties, whether in Chandler Townshlp or on Lake Michigan in Charlevoix. The intent, as required by state law, is that all citizens will be treated equally.

A spot check of Charlevoix's tax assessments last year resulted in the County finding that Charlevoix's residential property (homes) was, overall, 18 percent (.18) under true cash value. Further, the County's check found that commercial (business) property was on the tax rolls for $631,000 more than its assessed value indicates it should be.

It is not difficult to understand how the city's tax rolls got so out of balance.

First, while we all know that the selling price of homes has sky rocketed, the city assessor has not kept up with this probably unfortunate and unrealistic esealation. While new homes were put on the tax roll at about the required 50 percent of true cash value, older homes were not raised in assessment accordingly.

Second, a few years ago downstate interests began buying up downtown business property for out-of-this-world prices. They, apparently, envisioned, some kind of gold rush to Charlevoix. Based on what they were paying for these old commercial buildings, all downtown property tax assessments were raised. But the gold rush didn't develop. One new business after another failed to strike it rich. The value of downtown buildings stabilized and, even, decreased.

The County Equalization Dept., which has an outstanding statewide reputation for its fairness and competence, discovered these two inequities and told the city government to increase, overall, residential property assessments by 18 percent, and chop a total of $631,000 off the assessments on downtown business property.

Board of Review, accordingly, raised the assessment on most homes by the recommended 18 percent. But not all homes.

Board of Review members, who sit in final judgment on the tax assessments before they go to the county, did not uniformly receive the 18 percent home increase.

Board members Howard Otis, Park Ave.; Dan Geneit, State St., and Wayne Carter, Park Ave., all received only a three percent assessment inerease. In all three cases, the Board of Review, itself, vetoed the recommendations of the city's hired, and classroom trained, assessor (Bob Wexstaff) that the assessment on the Otis, Geneit and Carter properties be inereased 18 percent.

Mayor Ed Hansen did even better. The assessment on his gas station property was reduced, from $12,200 last year to $12,000 this year.

Don Berlage, the other Board of Review member, will benefit from having the Pine River Building (Bridge St. at the channel)) property assessment increased only $100 this year. Yet next door, Dr. Walter Höffman's Bridge St. building's tax assessment was increased by $4,300, or 44 percent.

It is on Bridge St. where the assessment picture is the most muddied. This of course is where much of the present city administration's political opposition comes from.

For instance, there was no assessment change for the theater, though it did thousands of dollars worth of improvements last year. Yet on both sides of it assessments went up sharply.

At Leutheuser's restaurant the assessment has been raised 90 percent. The assessment on Earl Young's little stone building went up 87 percent. At the old Williams Cigar Store building (now Colwell's) the assessment went up 150 percent.

It makes sense that the assessment at Leutheuser's, and Colwell would increase. They have both made considerable improvements. But so did the theater.

And just kitty-corner across the street, at the old Kroger Store building (now Shop of the Gulls and Saginaw Savings and Loan), where improvements have also been made, the assessment was lowered 17 percent.

Other downtown businessmen, who have made no improvements, were hit by major assessment increases. For instance: Charlevoix Oil, 36 percent increase; Charlevoix Lumber Co., 23 percent increase; LaBlance Insurance Agency, 97 percent, and Weathervane Inn, 57 percent.

When some of us asked the Board of Review to explain the reasons for these tax increases they could not. If an explanation had been offered that was based on standardized assessment procedures, equally applied to all, there would be little room for argument.

But, obviously, this is not the case. The city government is just guessing and by goshing on how much tax you will pay...and maybe seeing that its friends don't get hurt.

Respectfully,
William Fochtman

If it Fitz

There Shouldn't Be Alarm

By JIM FITZGERALD

OK, I'm convinced. This really is a lousy world.

There's a bill in our state legislature which would make it against the law for newsboys to carry money.

Good God!

I remember in 1940 when the circulation manager of the Port Huron Times Herald first approached my parents with the idea of their only son going into business for himself. He said it was a marvelous opportunity for a 14-year-old boy to learn how to handle money.

I got a 60-customer route, the smallest in town, thus learning how to handle $12 a week. I learned that the first $9 went to the Times Herald or I couldn't have any more papers to peddle. The next $2 went to my mother to pay for my gruel. The final $1 was all mine, if I could get it.

The most bitter lesson a new businessman could learn is that some people never want to pay their bills.

Most of my customers paid up Saturday mornings. But there was a hard core of cheapies, about $1 worth, who never answered the door on Saturdays because they knew it was me. I could hear them inside, laughing and handling my money, but I couldn't knock them to the door.

The only answer was to sneak up on them; to knock on their door when they were expecting friendly callers, not a runny-nosed little paperboy. Once the door was open they were sunk. The bill was only 20 cents a week and I delivered in my own neighborhood. These people were too proud to tell that Fitzgerald brat they didn't have 20 cents.

It would be a disgrace to nwe money to that skinny kid who couldn't walk right because his corduroy pants were frozen.

This furtive collecting required working all hours, most of them after dark. I even collected at midnight from a night-shift factory worker. I would be watching for him on his porch. A few years later I worked in that factory along side the same guy and only then did I learn how close I'd come to getting my head opened with a lunch-bucket.

But nobody beat up on paperboys in those days. No one robbed them. It wasn't risky for me to walk down dark streets with cash in my pocket. Geez, many of my customers left the 20 cents on an outside windowsll or under a floormat. No one swiped it.

Not today. Our legislature is seriously considering a law which would require customers to pay their newsboys by check, by mail. This is because so many paperboys are getting slugged and robbed. Some have even been killed for a few dollars.

What can be done? The lawmakers say remove the temptation. If paperboys don't carry money, no one will rob them.

This is some brilliant logic that has gas station attendants sticking cash through slots into underground vaults that can't be opened until noon the next day, with the sheriff watching.

This is the type of anti-crime thinking that has taken cash away from bus drivers so they can't change a dollar. This thinking has also encased motel clerks in plastic cells where they do business through double-doored slots, talking into microphones.

Marvelous. The way to stop the thieves is to forbid innocent citizens from owning anything worth stenling. The next logical step will be to stop murders by making it against the law to die.

There has gotta be a better way and I suspect it must start in homes and hearts, not in legislatures.

In the meantime, this is a world where it isn't safe for a little boy to walk down the street with $2 in his pocket. A lousy world.

"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

Last week I presented a wrap-up of the bicentennial aetivity in the county at the Historical Society meeting.

There was also much talk about the possibility of establishing a museum for the club's bicentennial project.

A commission was organized to look at the old Dr. Lewis home on Petoskey Avenue to assess its qualities as a future museum for Charlevoix. I wish all the best of luck to the commission and the Historical Society for a highly worthy project.

On February 5, the Charlevoix Bicentennial Committee met once again in the Michigan Room at the Library. Mr. and Mrs. George Duke were kind enough to join us with Mrs. Julia Baer and Mrs. June Cross from the Women's Club to discuss the progress on the railroad negotiations.

Mr. and Mrs. Duke are representatives from the Charlevoix Yacht Club and have been negotiating with the C&O Railroad for almost two years to buy or lease the depot for their club's use. If the negotiations are completed; the Yacht Club will renovate and restore the depot to its original condition as their bicentennial project.

The members of the Women's Club may be a little disappointed that the idea of the restoration of the depot as their bicentennial project is being completed by the Yacht Club.

But, I think it is important for them to remember that the end result will be the same.

I am sure that a little thought can produce a project as memorable as the Yacht Club's with Charlevoix being the graeious recipient of the generous donations of these people's time.

On Tuesday, February 18, a Bicentennial meeting, open to the public, will be held. The time and place will be forthcoming as soon as confirmation is received. So far there are only two projects being diseussed for Charlevoix's participation in the bicentennial.

I hope to see many more.

Charlevoix is the county seat and we should be the leading figure.

Instead, we are the lagging city. Great progress is hoped to be made, but without the support of the local people nothing can be accomplished.

So....Put on your thinking caps!

See if you or a club that you are interested in can contribute a little time for a project of your own, or a little money for projects already underway. I hope to be seeing you there with idens fresh in your minds.

Letters to the editor

Reader Questions Motive Behind Move For New Charlevoix City Charter

A letter to the editor appeared recently in the Charlevoix Courier At about the same time, the same person sent letters out with the heading, "Something About a Home Rule Charter", accompanied by a letter to "Young Voter". The statements made in those letters and article prompts these observations.

It would have been better if either the article, or letters, stated specifies as to what exactly, in the way of improvements, might be expected under a home rule charter. I mean by that, a statement, such as, "Our present charter prohibits the following actions or services by the city of Charlevoix and following as a list of those items. This was not done.

Still another statement, followed by specifics, would have been helpful, "Under our present charter, there is absolutely no alternative method of dealing with the following pressing problems which concern our citizens".

The absence of a list of preliminary specific needs, as above mentioned, which our City must evidently desperately require, makes the call for a Charter Commission weak.

We are being called to action with platitudes, such as:

1. "You could have nonpartisan elections."
2. "This is an opportunity and challenge that could only happen once in a lifetime."
3. "This election will be one of Charlevoix's most historical elections."

This type of approach tends to give rise in the voter warm and patriotic feelings and could leave "visions of sugarplums dancing on our heads."

However, on examination, we may find "things that go bump in the night." Specifics:

1. A recent change to "home rule" greeted the citizens of another city with an additional tax bill unexpected, unannounced and undiscovered prior to the election, in the amount of $500,000. Just a small oversight.
2. "Nonpartisan elections"? Our "nonpartisan" Michigan Supreme Court, together with the laughable nonpartisan status of some of our cities, gives one pause for thought.
3. "Once in a lifetume". The people can adopt a new charter anytime they are so inelined. The reason we have not had a new charter for deeades might possibly be that the people are satisfied with the one they have. And have not seen a need.
4. "One of Charlevoix's most historical elections"? It may well prove to be historical only in that it evolves into a new charter, which will simply provide a marvelous vehicle for great, extended and expensive litigation for the legal profession, relative to the interpretation of the various new items covered in the charter. One nice thing about the one we have, it has been tested by time.
5. I predict, that, you will soon begin to hear (whether in the months, or years, ahead) "to get good men," you must pay more". This is a typical cry heard, which supposedly promises us better government. A list of federal, state and local officials spending time in jail, who were very well paid, makes this a worn out and discredited phrase. Volunteers are what keep this country running. They are either unpaid or receive token payments yet manage to keep our volunteer fire departments, hospitals, garden clubs and thousands nf institutions peopled with those willing to help and do work. Simply because they are not paid full-time salaries makes them no less dependable or competent than others. Along with this cry for fulltime pay, will also come the necessary sequel; pensions for our officials, who have been elevated from token payments to full pay. Additionally, our "full-time" officials will then, in effect, have a mandate from the people, and will have ample time to dream up new services which will call for higher taxes. Ask yourself, "What isn't my city doing for me that I desperately need and will be certainly charged for, if I get it?"
6. A less political approach than the immediate placing of a question on the ballot, would have been for the council to appoint a study committee of citizens to come up with some general and preliminary observations, prior to starting the time clock of a charter vote. Why the rush after all these decades? If such a committee found preliminary need for a charter commission, their obvious recommendation would have given the citizens something to think about, prior to the election.
7. Charlevoix is blessed with enormous individual personal talent on a wide spectrum of abilities. When problems arise, or better yet, are antieipated, or public questions brought forth, the mayor and council would do a great service by appointing committees to relieve them of some of the study work and make recommendations. This charter is a classic example.
8. Have you ever thought that our federal or state government had grown too big? If you have been faced with the frustrations of watching the impossible task of making it smaller, consider the fact that the simple creation of a home rule provides vast new avenues for government expansion, whereas the present City Charter" is far more restrictive. Here is a true "once-in-a-lifetime opportunity" to maintain small town U.S.A. government.
9. It has been mentioned that the charter should be written "with Charlevoix township in mind". It is difficult enough to get two political jurisdictions to merge when joining in the writing of a charter that will simultaneously cover those two governments. For one government, to convert to a different form and create more vested interests and positions, that stand to lose our jobs or status by a future merger or consolidation, creates further question. It seems that a better time to write a charter, if one is determined to be needed, would be at the time of a meeting of the minds of the two jurisdictions. Better that the new charter be a child of both.
10. It has been said that our charter is old. Things that are old are not necessarily bad. They have been tried and generally found to work well. Much good can be found in our present charter, and I am sure much good could be found in a new charter. The simple statement that our charter is old is not worthy of an answer.
11. Citizens' continual search for better government is not limited to Charlevoix. All across the land, people are constantly amending, rewriting and adopting charters. Certainly with all of that talent available, if a perfect charter had been found, it would have been adopted by this time by all of the towns and cities in America. Quite simply, there is no such panacea. Keep in mind, we adopted a new constitution for the state of Michigan several years ago with great predictions as to the future. Simultaneously, we were told that if we would only agree to an income tax; property tax relief would follow immediately. Has anyone looked at their tax bills over the last few years? The only relief the citizen will see is a 'relief line'.
12. It has also been said "any government is only as good as the people that run it". This one lonely statement of value is wholeheartedly agreed with by this writer. One could say that it applies to any city, regardless of the type of charter that the have.

People who are trying to do something should be appreciated. Those that advocate a new charter will find no quarrel with me. Only if they fail to give specific reasons, do I take issue. Some want a "change simply for the sake of change". While a later vote is required to adopt a charter, a commission, without specifics need, may be premature.

In closing, it might be said that this writer is opposed to a new charter. Not true. It is only that during this euphoric discussion of all the wonderful blessings a new charter can bring, I have no heard any reasons raised why a charter might not be in the best interest of Charlevoix at this time. If a study committee or charter commission, for that matter, should come up with specifics that only a new charter can provide, with reasonable guarantees, then I am sure the people will vote for a charter. But even then, you can be assured there will be things that go "bump in the night".

Start Conserving

Recently I was very impressed with the more serious tone of President Ford's State of the Union Message.

I would hope that we in Emmet County as a small but strong community will take on as a personal project the conservation of energy to help our nation as a whole. This could be done by turning off lights when not in use, car pools to save gas, and keeping our electrical output to a minimum. Something that might be most helpful to get this idea to the public would be for each of us to call five persons and they in turn call five people, etc. to remind them about conserving.

If we don't do something now - we and our children might not have any of these necessities for the future.

Sincerely yours,
Marilyn Marco

Entering a year of uncertainties in the economic world, the policy of Mayor Hansen is one of caution and prudence, at a time when other cities, counties and the State are raising taxes; syphoning off more and more money from the free economy. This results in less purchasing power, limiting sales, production and jobs. The City of Charlevoix is reducing expenditures to help the free economy. The chart below shows how the city has reduced spending your tax and electrical money by 47% in the last fiscal year - compared to the five year average rate prior to Mayor Hansen taking office.

+Last two years-Mayor Hansen's terms

Mayor Hansen's opponent has recommended another administrator at a cost of $30,000 per year, a Federal Coordinator for which usual cost is $30,000 per year, and remapping of the city at $10,000. This $70,000 is over three mills of taxes and the related expenses of the projects would be more. The City of Charlevoix is in good hands - it is not the time to start wild spending.

Councils Exchange Students

What happens when Charlevoix and Boyne City students get together?

They talk about each other.

In this case, they talk about how they can improve each others' schools.

Some 10 Boyne City Student Council members were the guests last week of the Charlevoix Student Counell as a part of a special exchange program.

"We're showing them around the school to let them see what it is like," explained Kim Carter, Charlevoix Student Council President.

The Charlevoix Counell had a continental breakfast for the Boyne City guests before taking them on a tour of the high school facilities.

They also saw a special program put on by the Charlevoix speech and dramatics department.

Paul Swartz, Boyne City Student Counell president, said the two schools were particularly interested in getting together because of the rivalries they have endured throughout the years.

"I think it gets you to know other people in the same area," he added about having a student counell exchange.

Swartz said the two schools share many similar problems and this offers them an opportunity to work on solutions that would benefit both.

As an example, Swartz said they got some new ideas on how to start interest in a pep club after visiting Charlevoix.

Landmark Goes Up in Flames

A 75-year-old landmark disappeared from the landscape last week when the old George Burns residence on the Boyne City Road in Oyster Bay was burned to the ground.

The structure, which had been badly damaged by wind, was razed by volunteer firemen because it was considered dangerous for prowling children and others.

Mr. Burns and his family occupied the house from 1906 until Burns' death in 1952. The property is now owned by son Peter Burns.

Abe Saluted

Today is the 166th birthday of Abraham Lincoln.

While no telephone listing can be found in Charlevoix or Emmet Counties for a person bearing the distinguished name, Honest Abe is remembered by street names.

In Charlevoix, it is Lincoln Street, in Boyne City, Lincoln Avenue, in East Jordan, Lincoln Street, and in Petoskey it is Lincoln Place.

Rayders Lose to Northmen

The Charlevoix Rayders (5-6), in an effort to halt the Petoskey Northmen (10-1) on the latter's floor Friday night, held the league leaders to a seven-point, 64-57 victory.

At one time in the game, the Rayders closed the Petoskey lead to five points but were unable to overcome the deficit as the Northmen capitalized on their 26-15 first quarter advantage. It was the 11-point lead early in the game that gave them the winning margin as the Rayders battled all the way.

Charlevoix had 24 field goals, 10 of them by Mike Streeter, tu 29 for Petoskey. The Rayders, however, connected on 9 of 11 free throws while receiving only 10 personal fouls. Petoskey scored on six of nine attempts and had 14 personal fouls.

The Rayders trailed throughout the game 26-15; 29-37 and 50-43 by quarters.

Streeter led the Rayder scoring attack with 22 points for the game. Bob Alger had 10, Bud Klooster, eight; Chuck Faust, six; Kevin Stokes, five; Matt Doan, four and Dave Martincheck, two.

Kim Thomson had 24 for Petoskey and Bruce Hilton and Chris Weston 12 points each.

Teachers Split League Games

BY CHUCK WRIGHT

The final battle of the teachers has ended. John Deere and First State Bank, two teams in the Lake Charlevoix division of the B league consisting of teachers from the Charlevoix School system, met for the third time this season. They had split their first two games.

First State held off a late John Deere rally to win the rubber match of the friendly rivalry 56-54. Although neither team is in contention for divisional honors, their games are always well-played and exciting.

John Deere jumped off to an early lead thanks largely to Gary Stutzman's 8 first quarter points, but then the team seemed to fall asleep for the next two quarters. The Bankers outscored John Deere 18-8 in the second quarter to lead 29-24 at the half. First State extended that lead to 9 points by the end of the third as Chuck Bently scored 8 points.

Stutzman led a frantic John Deere rally in the fourth quarter that fell just short. Team balance was the key to First State's victory. Glen Taylor and Bently each scored 14 while Roger Gowell added 10. For John Deere, Stutzman collected 22 and Hal Evans chipped in 10.

In more important Lake Charlevoix division games, Kenney's Excavating held off Wojan Aluminum 56-44 to maintain their slim lead over Village Milkhouse. After trailing by four with eight minutes gone, Kenney's took over the lead early in the second quarter. Although the game remained close, Kenney's usually had the edge. With the score 42-41, Kenney's ran off nine straight points to put the game out of reach.

Max Bolser led the balanced attack with 12. Dale Shooks had 11 and Terry DeVries 10. For Wojan's, Don Ward had his third straight 20 point game. Jim McGarry added 12.

Second place Village Milkhouse got a good scare from last place Muma's but came away with a 66-65 win. Muma's, playing great ball the last couple of weeks, actually led several times during the game, but the Milkhouse height advantage proved to be too much of an obstacle to overcome.

Denny Way led the Milkhuuse with 25, followed by Dale Boss with 17 and Rob Castlelin with 15. Butch Klooster and Bill Gengle each had 18 for Muma's.

Charlevoix County State Bank remained two games in first in the Lake Michigan division by nipping Andy's Tire World 51-48. Larry Skippergosh had one of his finest games of the year scoring 24 points. Steve Martinis chipped in 10. For Andy's, Kevin Jonnechek scored 13, Steve Jonnechek 12, and Stu Cunningham 10.

Jim's Clark remained in second place by crushing Medusa 88-42. After the first quarter it was strictly no contest. Vince Left paced the winners with 20. Brian VanLoo had 16, Steve McClellan 14, Bob Holtzman and Jerry Skippergosh 12. Chuck Bascom had 18 for Medusa.

Russell's Shell had an easy time with Alray Cottages as they won 66-39. Larry Brock led the misnatch with 21 points. Mike Crain chipped in 16 while Jim Potter added 13 and Ed Holm 10. Jay Morsoryak led Alray with 16.

The A league is still tied up. Freedman Arterafl had trouble with Bob's Sunoco, who played the entire game with four players and the last few minutes with three, before winning 76-53. Freedman's had only a narrow five point lead going into the fourth quarter.

As usual, Roger Crain paced the Freedman attack with 23. Bernie Ward added 13 and Rick Donaldson hit for 10, his first time in double figures this year. Hud Drenth scored 30 for Bob's and Ike Boss collected 11.

Swanson's K & D sank and destroyed the Coast Guard 88-40. Bruce Meggison led the assault with 21 while Kevin Swanson was close behind with 20. Randy DeYoung collected 18, Dave Swanson 13, and Doug Winnel 12. For the good-natured Coast Guard, Greg Waller had 14 and Marty Richardson 10.

The Town Huuse stayed tied for first with a methodical 85-48 drubbing of Haggard's. After building up a thirty point lead, the Town House coasted the rest of the way. Spook Coleman was high point man with 20. Joe Beaudoin added 15 and Danny McKenzie 12. For Haggard's Frank Hackett had 14, Mike Hamilton 12, and Andy Peters 10.

High scorers for the week: A league, Hud Drenth, leader for the second week in a row had 30. B league, Denny Way had 25.

Dial down. It adds up.

Every degree you dial down permanently cuts annual home heating costs by about this much.

3%

Dial down your thermostat —you'll save money and Natural Gas. You can save about 3% for every degree you permanently dial down during a heating season.

For example, set your thermostat back from 70 degrees to 69 degrees, leave it there during the heating season, and you'll save about 3%. Set it back further at night and you'll save, too.

Our Gas is your lowest cost fuel. Use it efficiently and you'll save even more.

A MESSAGE TO THE VOTERS OF CHARLEVOIX - FROM RALPH McRAE, CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR

Last year when I ran for the 1st ward councilman position, I had a platform. After winning the election I took my seat and presented a list of things I wanted to accomplish. With the help of the other council members, many of my objectives were accepted. Now that I am running for the nomination for the office of Mayor I once again would like to present my platform. The important parts are as follows:

1. A 1975 "Home Rule Charter: to replace the present 1895 4th Class Cities' Charter. The new Charter would provide for a non-partisan election.
2. HUD type of Senior Citizen Housing Center.
3. A qualified, experienced and professional City Manager. After all, we are a corporation worth 65 million dollars that needs to be run like a business enterprise.
4. A Department of Public Works with a Director under the direct control of the City Manager. The Department of Public Works would be responsible for electric, water, streets and sidewalks, sewers and sewage plant, marine and docks, city building maintenance and motor pool.
5. A Capitol Improvement Program with a continuous 5 year planning projectile.
6. Quick adoption of the new zoning ordinance now under study. A Zoning Board of qualified citizens appointed for this purpose only.
7. Hold both taxes and utility rates at the present or lower levels.
8. A separation of the Recreation from the Parks Department and a mutual agreement with the townships to assume some of the costs of both.

Although I represent the 1st ward. I can assure you all of my actions have been for the good of the entire city. I am asking support and votes from everyone--republicans, democrats and independents for my nomination as mayor.

I am not running against anyone--I am trying to get elected on my platform only. If you don't like my platform, you should not vote for me.

LATEST ACHIEVEMENTS OF PRESENT ADMINISTRATION

May Street Sewer-completed in 1974. Over-engineered and consequently over--assessed. I am sure under a "Home Rule Charter" this project would have been built 15 years ago. It would have been a logical business decision and not a political venture.

Steel bulkhead on Round Lake-a much needed face lift from a plan conceived four years ago now under construction. Council person Robert Timms should be given most of the credit for this project.

TAXES

A continuous yearly increase in taxes, with not many visible signs of increase in service or public improvements. These increases, mostly from higher valuations and inflation. But certainly no reduction regardless of lower millage rates. No one complains about taxes if they are receiving their money's worth.

The following shows the increases paid by three typical taxpayers selected at random from the tax polls:

YEAR	A	B	C
1970	250	322	187
1971	276	386	176
1972	324	456	207
1973	365	513	233
1974	395	552	251

During the same years, one business on Main Street paid $2,400 more in 1974 than in 1970.

GENERAL COMMENTS.

Our growing bank balance is being financed in a large part by our profit showing electrical lund- and paid by people who can hardly afford burning more than one light bulb.

Our budget is put together without much study or analyzing--such as earmarking for improvements but with no plans to carry them out.

Council long ago would have hired a qualified men with 5 years of city government experience if we had received some encouragement and co operation.

The more one knows about the city government, the more one can see we need a change.

There are about seventy persons between 18 and 21 who are registered to vote. I hope they all turn out for this election.

We should all be sympathetic to the many heads of families now unemployed.

I have a committee of 12 women working on behalf of this important election. If one would like to volunteer their help, please call 547 4744.

COMMUNITY CHURCH OF GOD
202 W. Hurlbut Street
Charlevoix, Michigan

Reverend William P. Seibert, Minister, 547-2875-Church Home-547-9128. Sunday School: 9:45 a.m. Morning Worship 11:00 a.m. Evening Worship 7:00 p.m. Mid-week Services-7:30 p.m.- Include: Adult, Children's Youth Bible Classes; Nursery Class.

We the Community Church of God in Charlevoix, with general offices in Anderson, Indiana, think of ourselves as a movement within Christendom for the restoration of the New Testament Church of God. In our infancy, back in 1880, our basic theme, "Unity among God's people," was not a popular theme. The years, however, have brought vast changes in public opinion, so that today there is scarcely a Christian who would argue against the unity of Christians.

Membership in the Church of God is by virtue of a spiritual birth. Everyone who has been truly converted from sin has experienced the forgiving and regenerating love of God in Christ is viewed as a member of God's family. The Church of God Jesus Christ is seen as the only door by which men may enter God's great family. Scripturally, there exists no other loyalty or allegiance. In the heart of God alone are kept the records of those who by confession, repentance, faith, and surrender have experienced a new birth. In the first century "the Lord added to the church such as were being saved." We feel that God still operates in the same manner.

We see the Bible as more than a record of God's revelation of himself to mankind. It is also the supreme guide-book for members of the family of God. What other book of principles could be given to improve on that which God has given? What other statement of belief, what creed, could improve on the New Testament?

We believe that the Bible very clearly proclaims that every Christian is a priest. There is therefore no room in God's family for human government. God can...and does...speak Directly to each one of His children. And no one child is above another in delegated authority. It is always God who "sets the members in the body as it pleases him."

The Church of God, in prayer and sincere desire to know God's will exercises complete freedom in determining all matters of mutual concern and interest.

To become a member of the Church of God, one who is truly Christian by experience and confession simply associates himself with the group and exercises all the privileges and powers which are his as a member of God's family.

Salvation makes a person a citizen of God's kingdom, and only sin can put him out; as such a citizen he has a potential membership in every local group of Christians throughout the world. He exercises those privileges in the group or congregation with which he associates for worship, study, fellowship, evangelism, and service.

Tax Tribunal Rejects Charlevoix's Petition

A petition by Charlevoix County to intervene in Emmet County's equalization appeals has been denied by the Michigan Tax Tribunal.

A Tribunal spokesman told the Charlevoix Courier, there was not enough time to consider Charlevoix County's motion to participate in hearings being held in Petoskey on Feb. 26.

The decision leaves the county with only an opportunity to file legal briefs with no direct participation.

Charlevoix County is concerned that a decision by the Tribunal may result in local residents paying more than Emmet County taxpayers for support of the Char-Em Intermediate School District and the Petoskey School District that lies in Charlevoix County.

In question are taxes levied by Emmet County in 1973 and 1974 against a property valuation lower than the equalized value set by the State Tax Commission. Charlevoix County uses the state valuation.

By doing that, county officials say millage in Charlevoix County has a greater value and therefore means Charlevoix taxpayers are paying more into levies shared by each county.

The five-member state tax tribunal, created last year, hears appeals of property tax assessments.

Proseeuting Attorney Harvey Varnum filed a petition on behalf of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners in an attempt to participate in hearings to be held in Petoskey later this month.

Although exact figures are unavailable, Charlevoix County officials claim that the persent .25-millage levy for bonds on the Char-Em Intermediate School District Service Center would have been said this year if Emmet County had assessed its taxes on the state equalized value instead of a lower figure.

County officials also claim Charlevoix taxpayers have been putting more into the district's general and special education funds.

The petition states in part that if the valution for Emmet County is below the State equalized value determined by the State Tax Commission "the taxpayers in that portion of Charlevoix County lying in the Petoskey School District will be paying a disproportionately larger share of the revenue to said school district than they should since Charlevoix County equalized as required by law."

It further states that "both Charlevoix and Emmet Counties levy assessments for the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District both for operational expenses and for debt retirement. That if Emmet County is allowed to levy on an equalized valuation below that which was set by the State Tax Commission for (1973 and 1974) State equalized valuation, the Intermediate School District would stand to lose thousands of dollars in monies. Again the Charlevoix County taxpayers would be paying more than their proportionate share of the Intermediate School District's budget. Furthermore, such a reduction in the equalized value for Emmet County would require an additional levy of taxes in 1975 on the debt retirement which would not be true if the valuation set by the State Tax Commission is retained."

The State Tax Commission set Emmet County's equalized value at over $196 million in 1973, but taxes were levied by the County on the basis of a valuation of approximately $136 million.

In 1974 the State Tax Commission equalized Emmet County at more than $202 million but the County seeks to have the equalized value reduced to approximately $186 million.

Emmet County's appeals for acceptance of the lower valuations will be heard by the Michigan Tax Tribunal in Petoskey on February 24 and February 26. It was in these hearings that Charlevoix County hoped to be able to intervene so its voice could be heard in a plea to correct the alleged inequities.

However, in denying the intervention the Michigan Tax Tribunal has granted Charlevoix County leave to file briefs in the cause as Amicus Curiae, or friend of the court, who may suggest matters of law for assistance of the Tribunal

McRae Defeats Hansen for Mayor

By FRAN MARTIN

'Monday's vote has reaffirmed my belief that the people of Charlevoix want sound and responsible city government.' --Ralph McRae

In an upset victory, Ralph McRae, presently serving as first ward alderman, defeated incumbent Edward P. Hansen by a vote of 440 to 396 to win the nomination for mayor in the Primary Election here Monday.

McRae, in winning the nomination for the office, scored a dual victory, tallying 339 votes at the polls and 101 via absent voters ballots.

Hansen received 331 votes at the polls and 65 through absent voters ballots. He was seeking nomination for a third term in Monday's primary.

He was elected to a two-year term as first ward alderman in April 1974.

After receiving the news that he had won McRae said: "Monday's vote has reaffirmed my belief that the people of Charlevoix want sound and responsible city government.

"Although most of the credit for my victory must go to my energetic campaign workers, I believe my efforts on behalf of a charter revision and Senior Citizen housing were the deciding factors."

McRae polled 143 votes in the first ward; 82 in the second and 114 in the third ward for a total of 339. The 101 AVB gave him the 44 vote margin.

Hansen had 70 in the first, 116 in the second and 145 in the third ward plus 65 AVB for a total of 396 votes.

Incumbents who received the nod in the primary election and the number of votes each received follow: Ida A. Heise, City Clerk, 695; Annabelle Cunningham, city treasurer, 705; Raymond V. Wood, first ward alderman, 242; Jeannine Wallace, second ward, 176; George Plumm, third ward, 254.

Ivan Whitley, a candidate for second ward alderman who will oppose Mrs. Wallace on the Democratic ticket in the General election received 31 votes in Monday's election.

Problems on Beaver Island?

No One Knows Much About the County Airplane

BY PEG OHLE

The ambulance plane which Charlevoix County secured for Beaver Island last spring came up for some discussion at last week's meeting of the Board of Commissioners, and the conclusion was that no one knew much about its operation.

Commissioner Ralph Richardson reported that the Sheriff's Department (which has jurisdiction over the plane) had not received a log book on the plane's operation since last October.

Part of the agreement in connection with the plane was that a monthly log book be sent to the Sheriff's Department by part-time Deputy Sheriff William Welke, who resides on the Island. Welke is one of three certified pilots of the plane.

In a telephone conversation with the Courier last week, Welke reported that the plane had made 11 emergency trips from the time it was delivered last May 17 to the end of the year.

Another part of the agreement in connection with the plane was that it be housed in a hangar. Richardson reported that the hangar has been a long time in completion, and after a recent inspection by Charlevoix County Building Code Administrator Robert Trumbull, additional reinforcement would be needed on the roof to support winter snow.

The subject of a plane for Beaver Island first came before the Board of Commissioners in February, 1974, when James Janda, Supervisor of St. James Township, appeared to express the need for an ambulance plane for the Island. It was also learned at that time that a U-6A DeHaviland Beaver Aircraft was available on loan for five years from the United States Government under the Excess Property Program.

The Board of Commissioners in resolution then allocated $4,000 to cover cost of delivery of the plane and insurance for the year 1974. After that date all costs pertaining to operation of the plane were to be borne by St. James and Peaine Townships.

Last week, Alice Tunison, Civil Defense Director who helped procure the plane, said she had received a bill for this year's insurance and was trying to contact someone on the Island about paying it.

Whether or not residents of Beaver Island wanted the plane to begin with, and whether or not they want it now seems to be a matter of conjecture. As Commissioner Oscar Ward said at last week's Board meeting, "It seems to depend on who you talk to."

Another County official said recently, "No matter what it is, Beaver Islanders won't agree." The same official intimated that the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department wishes it had no responsibility for the plane.

The plane did make an important trip last Friday, however. After being refused service by two commercial flyers, the Charlevoix County Road Commission summoned it to Boyne City to take an engine for snow equipment to the Island.

Earlier this month, Marian Martin, Courier correspondent on the Island who was suffering from pneumonia, was flown to Traverse City by McPhillips Flying Service. When asked why she hadn't taken the Island plane she replied, "We just didn't think about it. We've always flown with Joe."

Charlevoix Commissioners Respond

County Government isn't Cheap

American Social reformer Henry George once said taxation must not take from individuals what rightfully belongs to individuals.

If the 19th Century Philadelphia saw today's tax bills, he'd probably turn over in his grave.

Government isn't cheap and rising demands for services are costing local taxpayers thousands of dollars.

And even the decision makers, the county commissioners who decide where the money is to be spent, cost money.

It cost Charlevoix County residents nearly $35,000 to decide how its budget, which is $1.3 million this year, should be spent.

Commissioners receive $140 a month as base salary, with the remaining portion earned from attending committee meetings at $35 a meeting.

The minimum a commissioner could earn is $1,680.

According to the Michigan Association of Counties, Charlevoix County Commissioners rank about in the middle with their salaries when comparing them against counties with similar populations.

Manistee and Mason Counties pay their commissioners about $1,200 a year and $20 for each committee meeting they attend.

The state association office says Cheboygan and Clare County Commissioners get $1,800 a year and $30 for each committee meeting.

Newaygo County Commissioners earn $2,500 and $35 per diem.

Commissioners set their salaries every two years.

In addition to their salaries and expense monies, Charlevoix County Commissioners get health insurance so that other county employees may qualify for group insurance, and they are also eligible for retirement benefits.

The highest paid commissioner, Bob Davis of Horton Bay, earned $3,465 in salary as last year's chairman of the Charlevoix Board of Commissioners. He doesn't begrudge a cent of it.

"The chairman is in charge of the county," Davis said. "If they have a disaster in the county, he is in charge."

In addition to chairing monthly commission meetings, Davis said the chairman also attends many other committee and county meetings during a month.

Commissioner Ralph Richardson, who pulled in $2,680 last year, defended the commissioners' salaries when asked why they are paid a great deal more than Charlevoix City Councilmen.

Councilmen averaged about $350 last year.

"Who is their administration for? Just the city," Richardson said.

"The county is administering for the county, cities and townships."

Richardson said he didn't think the commissioners are paid enough for what they do.

"Some are and some aren't," he said about commissioners being justified in taking the salaries they received last yenr.

"Some aren't getting paid enough."

Richardson said everyone is running government ragged.

"If I made a tenth of what I made now, I would be regarded the same way," he said.

Here are what Charlevoix County Commissioners earned last year in salaries. This does not include travel expenses:

Thora Kotowich	$2,189

Animal Shelter Coming Soon

Charlevoix County may soon have a new animal shelter.

The Board of Commissioners last week authorized preparation of plans for a building which will probably be erected on property owned by the Sheriff's Department on Grant Street.

Commissioner Ralph Richardson, chairman of the Sheriff's committee, which has jurisdiction over the animal shelter, reported on the study he had made of types of building which would serve the purpose and suggested that a pole-type structure similar to the one now used in Antrim County might be best.

Two possible locations for the animal shelter have been under consideration, the Sheriff's Department property and a parcel of land owned by the County Road Commission near its headquarters outside of Boyne City.

Richardson said that the committee preferred the Charlevoix site because all utilities are available there. Also, the shelter could be under constant surveillance by members of the Sheriff's Department.

The Antrim County building is a 24 by 60 foot structure and holds ten cages. There are no outside runs, the animals remain inside at all times, and the building is insulated so that sounds from the inside are not carried to the outside. The Charlevoix building would be the same color as the other Sheriff's Department buildings so it would blend in with them.

The present Charlevoix County animal shelter located in Boyne City has been under fire for some time by the State Department of Agriculture, which is in charge of inspecting such facilities. It has no water or light and is poorly heated and uninsulated. Neighbors in the vicinity have declared it a nuisance because of noise from barking and moaning dogs.

The Board of Commissioners has allocated approximately $20,000 for the new dog shelter.

Originally it was thought that some working agreement between the county and the Charlevoix Humane Society could be worked out whereby the Society would help finance the new animal shelter and provide help in operating it. However, at the present time it is the intention of the county to keep complete control of the shelter.

Notebooks Filled with Stories

Evva Smith--Hometown Historian

Evva Smith is an historian at heart. For years, the 76 year old Charlevoix widow has been collecting clippings and pictures of Charlevoix past and present.

She has notebooks filled with stories about people, happenings and nostalgia. And the stories and pictures she doesn't keep she sends to friends who she knows will enjoy them.

The former Evva Barber was born in East Jordan but moved to Charlevoix at an early age. Her first school house was the building that now houses the American Legion. She went to school there four years, learning the ABC's from one teacher who taught first and second grades and another teacher who taught third and fourth grades.

Later she attended the old grade school which was located where the present Middle School stands.

Like su many older residents, Evva Smith remembers Charlevoix as strictly a "summer" town. It was filled with resorters for three months a year and the local economy was dependent upon the money they brought in and spent in that short period of time.

Charlevoix remained a summer town for so long, according to Mrs. Smith, because the resorters wanted it to remain a quiet, quaint community untouched by the commercialism they found in the cities.

"We had to run bills in the winter and pay them in the summer when we had money," she says.

Charlevoix was a town of resort hotels, both large and small. Some of those Mrs. Smith remembers, and of which she has pictures, are the Hallett Hotel, The Inn, Bartlett Hotel, Belvedere Club, Chicago Beach Hotel, Chicago Club and Fountain City House.

It was these resort hotels that provided most of the employment for Charlevoix residents. The men served as gardeners, maintenance men, "drivers" and housemen. The women served as cooks, maids, nurses and laundresses.

Resorters also added to the local economy by purchasing their daily needs from local merchants. The butchers, grocers, bakers and dry goods merchants "stocked up" as the summer approached.

Entertainment for local residents was simple in the old days, Mrs. Smith recalls. In the summer time, when they weren't working, it was an exciting thing to go to the depot and watch the trains come in. Livery men and hotel chauffeurs gathered to pick up the vacationers and distribute them around town.

There were lake cruise boats that came into port and picked up passengers for a trip to Mackinac Island, where they remained for three or four hours, then returned to Charlevoix.

Horse and dog races along Bridge Street attracted almost as many on-lookers as today's Venetian Festivals, according to Mrs. Smith. And in the winter time an icy strip was left along Bridge Street for tobogans, which zoomed from Upright Street to the channel. Ice skating on the pond near where the Middle School is now located was also winter fun.

Other winter activities, not in the fun category, included shoveling snow (the city did not provide that service in those days) and shoveling coal into furnaces.

All the changes that have come about since Evva Smith remembers the early days have not been for the best, she feels. "The world's condition is not better, but life is easier, especially housekeeping," she says.

Mrs. Smith does not like the condominiums on the north side of town because "they spoil the beautiful drive along there."

Although looking back on the past, Mrs. Smith keeps up with the present through her work with the Missionary Society and Circle of the First Baptist Church. She is also interested in the Senior Citizens organization and hopes there will soon be Senior Citizens housing in Charlevoix.

Who's Fighting Whose Fire in Charlevoix Township?

Who's fighting whose fire in Charlevoix Township?

It apparently depends on whom you call.

If you happen to dial the City of Charlevoix Fire Department you'll get them. If you call the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, the Charlevoix Township fire engines will come roaring out.

What's the problem? Actually, officials from both Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township say there is no problem at all.

"We really want the assistance, but we don't want them to do our work," says Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud about the city.

"We really want them around, but we want to do the damn work."

Charlevoix Mayor Ed Hansen says if city firemen receive a call they have been directed to answer it.

"When the Charlevoix Township has an operating fire department, then the township people will call the township and not the city," the mayor said.

The apparent rift began last May when the township started operating its own fire department.

Now nine months later, the smoke still hasn't cleared the air on who's providing fire protection to Charlevoix Township.

"We were real happy with the service they gave us, but we felt as though the administration (city) was charging us a little too much for what we were demanding in services," he said.

"They wouldn't even negotiate with us."

Townships wanting fire service from Charlevoix were required to pay one-half mill of their State Equalized Value, according to Mayor Hansen. Charlevoix Township was paying about $9,000.

"It cost the residents of the City of Charlevoix more than a half-mill for fire protection," Hansen said.

The city presently has contracts with Hayes, Marion, Norwood and Eveline Townships.

Although not unhappy with city fire protection, Stroud said his township would be better off adding an additional 20 more certified firefighters to the area by having their own department.

Township firemen recently completed a Michigan State Fire Fighters certification program that included 66-hours of course and field work. Department officers received an additional 50 hours at North Central Michigan College.

In addition to the firefighters, The Charlevoix Township Fire Department has four trucks, none newer than 1954.

But, Stroud said he has no doubt about their ability after the firemen tested them. He adds that all are equipped with what he says is the latest equipment available.

"We feel it is sufficient, we have really put it through the paces," he said.

"We have modern equipment and signals and the newest hoses," he said.

When asked what assurances the township could provide to its residents that the equipment is adequate Stroud said he has been trying to get the Michigan Insurance Services office to tell them what qualifications they need to meet.

The private firm, formerly known as the Michigan Inspection Bureau, provides statistical rating and research information for insurance agencies. No other organization deals with fire protection inspection.

The association, for example, rates communities designating them on a one to 10 scale, with a one rating having the best protection.

Detroit, as an example, has a two rating, while Traverse City has a sixth class rating and Petoskey and Charlevoix have a seventh class rating.

"our engineers come in and look at a community's fire prevention system and relate it to class one fire protection," said Robert Young of the Insurance Services Bureau.

He said Charlevoix Township had a Class 9 designation, which recognizes fire protection with a minimum amount of equipment which can provide a minimum amount of protection.

"A property located in the 10 class area thus no fire protection at all," he said.

The rating is then used by local insurance agencies to determine insurance rate for home owners.

A $20,000 homeowner under a class seven or eight rating would have to pay $64, while one under a class nine and 10 would pay $86, says a local insurance agent.

Stroud says he has not been able to find out what his township has to do to get a better rating.

"I cannot find out how they can rate us without a test, anyway," he said.

The township has also been negotiating with Charlevoix for a mutual assistance agreement. However they have been able to get only a verbal agreement.

"We have no formal agreement," Mayor Hansen said.

"I don't think we can continue to provide service for free," he said.

Stroud said they are interested in assistance, but when Charlevoix makes a run into the township they want to know about it.

"They were running them all spring and we didn't know about them," Stroud said.

Hansen says if the city gets a call they will make the run because he doesn't want to put the city in jeopardy.

Building Fee Schedule Questioned

After much discussion, a new schedule of fees for building permits was adopted by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at its regular meeting last week.

The schedule was prepared by a committee headed by Commissioner Oscar Ward and questioned at length by Commissioner Ralph Richardson, who compared the fees with those earlier proposed by the County Department of Building Inspection.

Ward explained that his schedule was designed to give builders of smaller homes a break by keeping the fee for permits at $15 for homes costing up to and including $20,000. Fees for homes costing over $20,000 would be $15 plus two percent of the amount over $20,000. For instance, a building permit fee for a home costing $30,000 would be $215.

It is anticipated the new schedule will bring less fee money into the Department of Building Inspection, which was set up to be as nearly self-supporting as possible. Any costs of operating the department will have to be paid out of general county funds, and Richardson pointed out that the new fee schedule will make it necessary for all taxpayers to bear a larger share of the cost of operating the department.

All building, remodeling or demolition of buildings in the county outside of the city of Charlevoix which costs more than $200 must be inspected by the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection and a permit received for such work. The city of Charlevoix maintains its own office of Building Inspection.

The building permit fee schedule as adopted also includes commercial structures, for which fees run from $8, for buildings costing up to $500, to $316 plus $2 per thousand for buildings costing over $100,000.

High Court Can't Rule By Decree

A Michigan Supreme Court decision recently claiming the court has "inherent power" to legislate appropriations Matters can only be described as an arrogant misreading of the separation of power doctrine.

The case in question involved a dispute between Livingston County Circuit Judge Paul Mahinski and the Livingston Board of Commissioners. Mahinski, as presiding judge, negotiated a contract for county court employes (who were represented by a union) covering their salaries and working conditions.

He subsequently ordered the county commission to implement the contract agreement. Commissioners balked, claiming this amounted to the judiciary taking over the legislative body's appropriations powers.

The Supreme Court recently by a five to two vote, upheld Mahinski and contended that local governments do have the final authority to limit the amount of money appropriated for local court salaries and working conditions.

What this amounts to is that the Supreme Court majority has taken upon itself the authority to legislate by ordering elected local government officials to pay whatever a judge and court administrators say they must pay, even if the local officials don't feel it is within their budget.

Two dissenting justices, Charles L. Levin and Thomas G. Kavanaugh, appropriately rejected this elitist view of their bench colleagues. Levin and Kavanaugh said the courts do not possess inherent power to appropriate money and called the majority opinion a "rueful precedent."

For several years the high court justices have been trying to bring lower courts under total state funding to end local bickering. We agree that is the best answer since all courts are an arm of the Supreme Court and thus part of the same state agency.

The Supreme Court majority, however, is doing nothing for its own cause or credibility by using such strong arm tactics to make its point. Nor is there any sense in the high court's kindly advice to local units that they can always appeal if they are not satisfied with a judge's appropriations decision.

Appeal to who? Any appeal would ultimately go back to the same judges who just made the Livingston County decision.

A. Barry McGuire, executive secretary of the Michigan Association of Counties, characterized the Supreme Court's decision aptly when he said: "The club has ruled in favor of the club."

Our congratulations go to minority dissenters Charles Levin and Thomas G. Kavanagh for refusing to go along with "the club." The courts of Michigan must have adequate financing, but not by judicial decree.

Geologist Questions Ward's Economic Viewpoint

February 7, 1975

Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan

Dear Editor:

In his letter to the Courier of 2/5/75 Oscar Ward points out the problem of inflation and the difficulty of generating capital for expanding business and job opportunities. He holds that inflation is caused only by printing of money by the federal government to provide deficit spending and that lack of capital for business expansion is due to high taxes levied on corporations and individuals with high incomes. These simple problems should somehow be resolved by simple solutions of cutting government spending and taxes.

While Mr. Ward's central thesis is basic, I'm afraid the picture is more complicated. In addition to the visible kinds of inflation which is reflected in the cost of goods and services, we have during recent years experienced an ever increasing demand on certain natural resources that are limited in quantity and quality. This has led to a sort of built-in inflation when demand exceeds supply and may at some times reach crisis proportions, such as in the case of petroleum. We thus reach a point where our demands inflated beyond the ability of earth resources to satisfy them. Both government and industry have long been aware of this trend and could have exercised more of the common sense which Mr. Ward advocates. As long as corporate profits and taxable income were high it seemed to be preferred that the public wear blinders. As a result most of our population lost touch with sources of minerals and their role in our economy. They were conditioned mainly to buy the products of the assembly line and not to be concerned about what made the assembly line possible or how it is to be sustained.

Until World War II our country was blessed with ample reserves of most minerals although we have always been deficient in a few important ones. Gradual depletion and greatly increasing demand then led to increasing reliance on foreign sources developed by American capital much of which had originally been generated by exploitation of our domestic resources. Now many of the cheap foreign sources are becoming less available or are themselves suffering depletion and we must increasingly live within our own means. Short term efforts by the government to preserve the status quo will only aggravate situations which are economically and socially unsound. The public cannot exercise good sense unless all the facts of life are known.

Belatedly Henry Ford II has issued a call for more planning to provide information on which orderly allocations of resources may be based and to alert people to problem areas before they reach crisis proportions. It's rather ironic that such a viewpoint comes from a leader in the auto industry. At one time a car called the Edsel was produced and this was branded, often rather humorously, as a costly corporate mistake. Now the entire auto industry seems to be caught with a giant Edsel on its hands – a production capacity to produce the kind of cars that are unsuited to the needs of the times. This is coupled with an obsolete railroad system that was largely abandoned because immediate desire for profits failed to consider future needs.

A good bicentennial project might be a sober assessment of how our natural resources were utilized during the last two hundred years, where we stand now, and what goals we should establish in the search for a life of quality for ourselves and the generations to come. To bring this about will require broad public dissemination of information and discussion. A segment of prime television time might regularly be devoted to such an endeavor. I believe the public would respond if it knows that it has a hand in shaping its destiny and can look forward to some stability rather then a murky future.

Yours sincerely,

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

I mentioned in a column several weeks back that even in these inflationary times the Clocks are only spending something like $35 a week for enough groceries to feed six.

Some of the reaction wasn't very nice. One woman wrote in and implied I was starving my kith and kin.

I thought perhaps I had made a mistake, so I have been keeping a pretty close tab on expenses ever since. And I have discovered that we are spending closer to $30 a week on groceries – which makes me even more of an ogre, I suppose.

In case your arithmetic is poor, that means we are spending $5 a week each – or less than $1 a day – to feed six people (and two dogs. Yes, dog's eat, too.)

How do we do it?

Planning is helpful. Saturday morning before we do our grocery shopping, we all sit down around the dining room table to decide our menus for the week. Kids know what they like to eat, and quite often they come up with ideas for well-balanced, nutritious meals.

We draw up a shopping list at the same time as we write the menus and try to stick to it. At times we have to make last minute substitutions on the firing line down at the supermarket, but usually we can find what we want at a price we can afford.

We also have found there is considerable savings in buying in quantity. If you have reasonable prospects that the food will be eaten promptly and won't go to waste. Did you know that cooking oil comes in full gallons and is quite a bit cheaper than pints or quarts? Or that potatoes have sold for as little as four cents a pound this winter in 20- pound bags and larger?

Of course, if it would take you six months to eat 20 pounds of potatoes, forget it.

We also have an unwritten rule against the buying of "snack items" – except when company is expected. It doesn't make sense to buy potato chips for 99 cents a pound (or much more in many cases) when the basic raw ingredient sells for 95 cents less a pound.

We also steer clear of the candy counter, since the cost of candy has increased even more than the price of sugar. And I'm sure the kids' teeth aren't suffering. Every once in a while we buy salted peanuts, which fill the candy gap quite nicely.

Perhaps I should point out that we also avoid the bakery counter and the cookie shelves. Since September, Judy has made bread three times a week – at a cost of about one-third or less than bakery bread. She also makes all of our dinner rolls, hamburger and hot dog buns and pizza shells at a tremendous savings. Flour-the main ingredients in all baked goods – costs between 12 and 14 cents a pound if you follow the sales. Yet you will pay four times that much for the same flour in a loaf of bread.

The same goes for prepared pancake and biscuit mixes. They are convenient, yes. But you can come up with better results at a fraction of the cost if you whip them up yourself. The same goes for cookies. There is no comparison in taste between a home-baked cookie and a store-purchased cookie. But which one costs less? Your guessed it.

Inflation hasn't forced the Clocks into becoming vegetarians, but we do eat meat less often than before and we don't consume so much of it at one time. Furthermore, we have made no concession in the quality department. We usually buy the best cuts of meat because they are cheaper in the long run.

If we buy a roast, we try to make it do for two meals. What appeared on the dinner table Sunday as a pork loin will probably reappear Wednesday as egg foo young. And Saturday night's meatloaf will turn up in sandwiches at lunchtime the rest of the week.

But we've gotten over the idiotic notion that you have to eat meat every day. What's wrong with macaroni and cheese? Or spaghetti with meatless tomato sauce? Or homemade potato soup garnished with parsley? The list of super meatless dishes is almost endless, and since many of them include either cheese or eggs, they are top-notch in the nutrition department.

We have developed a certain squeamishness about foods that are artifically colored because of reports of what such additives can do to the nervous system. This means our choices in breakfast cereal are severely curtailed – thank goodness. We either buy corn flakes or Grape Nuts, but rely largely on oatmeal or other whole grain cereals available in health stores.

Despite these days of high prices, the Clocks are eating a little butter every week for the first time in years. With oleo so expensive, we buy a pound of butter a week and fancy ourselves rich.

And I guess, in a way, we are. At least we eat well.

"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

In order to keep ahead of the progress and development of the bicentennial, I must make regular visits to each city, village, and township that is active in the county.

Last week, I decided that it was high time for me to visit Beaver Island. I had never been to the island before and was wondering just what this community that had once been our county seat was like. I was far from disappointed.

I arrived to find the island much larger than I imagined. I was quite surprised to discover seven inland lakes and numerous inarshes set in the hilly, sandy terrain that is so common to this area.

St. James was a quiet, picturesque little town with its own sleepy pace. The people there didn't want to hurry through the time they were enjoying, and they were more than willing to share it with you. Everywhere I went, I was hospitably received and made to feel more than welcome.

I met with Archie LaFreniere and Bea Parker to discuss the scope of their bicentennial project. They propose to restore the Mormon printing press and to preserve many of the old Mormon structures still standing on the island.

Theodora Protar was a Russian immigrant doctor who came to the island. His farm and tomb are among the buildings to be preserved. All of this is of great historical significance and should be preserved to record an era that will never be seen again.

An important side effect if all this work is accomplished will be to the economical benefit of the island. These buildings and their museum are the main attractions for the tourists. Like much of this area, most of Beaver Island's business is dependent upon the tourist trade and they really can't afford to lose it.

Motions are being started to obtain the necessary funding for their projects.

They have a lot of hard work ahead of them, but I have all the faith in the world that these people will complete what they have set out to do. Beaver Island, I take my hat off to you!

The Convention Blues

By JIM FITZGERALD

Immediately after turning left into the hotel driveway, I knew it was going to be a convention to regret. A policeman gave me a ticket for making an illegal left turn.

I had paused under the sign saying "No Left Turn." My wife had said: "You can't turn left." But the hotel was on the left. If I had turned right, or continued straight, it might have been 5 minutes before I found the hotel again. I might have been late for a free drink. I turned left.

The cop was at least 12 years old. It took him a long time to fill out the ticket with his crayon. He paused over the long list of possible offenses on the ticket. "Just put an X before 'Didn't listen to his wife'," my wife told him. It cost me $14.

But she soon got hers. It costs 25 cents to get out of the hotel parking lot. You insert a quarter and a big wooden arm lifts just long enough to let you drive through the gate. Some friends were driving through as we walked by. We chatted a minute and then they continued on, thus freeing the big wooden arm so that it came down on my wife's head.

"It could have been worse," I said as I helped her back on her feet. "It could have been me."

This was the annual convention of the Michigan Press Association. It is always held on the campus of Michigan State University in a 7-story hotel called the Kellogg Center of Continuing Education. It is called this because it was paid for with snap-crackle-pop money, and because it is a continuing education to rent a room there.

Some of the bathroom doors are tent flaps, offering the privacy of an army barracks. There are sliding doors on the closets and when you slide them they block the bureau drawers and hit your wife in the sore head. The twin beds are fine if you and your partner are twin dwarfs. If you want a cup of coffee between 10 and 12 n.m. on a weekend, you must drive to town. If you walk half a mile to the far end of the parking lot, and then discover you don't have a quarter to buy your way out, the hotel management doesn't like it when you scream and honk your horn and cry real tears all over their blacktop.

At these conventions it is my habit to wear a glass while making the rounds of hospitality rooms. It hangs around my neck on a chain, sloshing gently against my belly, thus freeing my hands for signing autographs. I have been attending these conventions for 23 years and no one has ever asked for my autograph, but I'm ready.

Actually, I'm being modest. I received my first autograph request this year. It happened during the big banquet Saturday night. A young lady picked me out of the multitude and asked me to sign her program.

A neighboring publisher later described the scene like this: "Fitzgerald signed, stood and took a bow, and held his hands over his head as if he'd just won the heavy weight championship of the world. And his 742 dinner companions rose as one and threw up."

I later asked the young lady in which newspaper she read my column.

"I didn't know you wrote a column," she said. "I wanted your autograph because of your hanging glass. I've never seen a chain drinker before."

I asked her to lend me a quarter.

Happy Valentine's Day

If you ask a Charlevoix Elementary teacher what they think about Valentine's Day, you'll probably get an ear full.

If you ask a student, he'll tell you its the greatest holiday around.

If you ask Leena Kaijala (top left) she'll tell you its the best thing around.

The Finnish exchange student had her first Valentine's Day last Friday at Charlevoix Elementary School when she attended a party held by Miss Sue Smith's first grade class.

"I had never seen a Valentine party before," she said.

"I really like the little kids."

Mrs. Vince Chew's Fourth Grade Class performed a play (right), while Mrs Carolyn Demoor's class had a Valentine Post Office.

State Health Official Says No Cause for Alarm

PBB Traces Found in Charlevoix Residents

By KEN WINTER

A young Norwood couple have discovered they are one of an unknown number of Michigan residents who have traces of Poly-Brominated Bi-phenyl (P.B.B.) inside of them.

Doug Warner and his wife, Marty Jo, local dairy farmers, learned last week from their physician that the toxic fire retardant mistakingly mixed with animal feed has been found in their blood and no one is sure what the significance of it is.

Twenty-four-year-old Warner knows he has six parts per billion of P.B.B., which his doctor tells him is considered to be a very low concentration.

To this date, his doctor writes, there has been no definite level associated with human illness.

What does the young couple do? They're not sure.

Doug and Marty Jo Warner first learned about P.B.B. last July when a state health inspector told them traces of the fire retardant were found in their cattle's milk.

The P.B.B., a fire retardant sold under the name Flame-Master, was shipped by the Michigan Chemical Company to Michigan Farm Bureau Services instead of Nutro-Master, an animal food supplement, and sold to farmers.

Cattle lose their breeding capacity and calves which are conceived are usually still-born or deformed. Adult cattle also lose weight, and often dies.

The state inspector's warning came a few days after Warner had been to the hospital with mysterious severe stomach cramps and a high temperature.

After two visits to the hospital, Warner ended up staying for seven days only to learn that a high amount of protein was found in his urine.

"I kept drinking the milk," he said.

After continued problems, Warner said his physician called the state health department, who in turn ordered special blood tests be taken of the Warners and a hired hand.

In the meantime, the Warners lost their herd of 273 cattle and horses because they were found to have more than .3 parts of P.B.B. in a million, a dangerous contamination standard set by the Department of Agriculture.

Meat and milk from animals testing above that amount cannot be sold, but if contamination is below .3 parts such meat and milk can be sold on the open market.

The Warners finally learned about test results last week.

"I wasn't even home when the letter arrived," Marty Jo said about the letter from their physician.

"It shocked me when Doug said look at the letter on the table."

Even though their physician has told them it is not serious, the Warners say they can't help think about it after watching their cattle slowly lose weight and die.

"You're more careful with your health."

Both say they just try not to think about it.

When contacted Monday night at his home in Lansing, Dr. Norman S. Haynor of the State Health Department's disease control division said no consistent pattern of illness has been attributed to those exposed to P.B.B.

He said the state is still in the process of tabulating results from the nearly 300 people they have surveyed in portions of the state. Another 500 have been interviewed by telephone.

Even though the analysis has not been completed, the medical doctor said there is no cause for alarm.

"If there was a significant level of exposure it had to be with the people on the farm or those who used the meat, poultry or milk directly," Dr. Hayner said.

"Anyone else in the state who has had a very small exposure because they had a portion of meat or a little trace level exposure to this chemical through its getting into a milk supply would have a far lower level of exposure."

The empidemiologist said he could hardly perceive it would be a significant level. He said it was much too diluted in store purchased milk to have any effect.

"If a family has had a large exposure to a high concentration then they should of course discuss it with a physician," he said.

"We cannot examine everyone in the state nor do we have the where with all."

Dr. Hayner said he didn't know if there was a harmful effect to humans and of the thousand people he has known who have had either primary or secondary exposure, he is not aware of any serious illnesses or deaths that can be attributed to P.B.B.

He said the more serious problem to the farmer is more of an economic one.

Financial losses to farmers are reported to be running into the millions.

State Representative Ralph Ostling told the Courier Monday night that the State House is now considering a bill he introduced that would make low cost state loans available to farmers. A similar bill is in the Senate.

The bill now would allow loans for $1,500 a cow or $4 a bird at two percent a month interest for those animals, lost because of P.B.B. contamination and certified by the State Agriculture Department.

"It's no cost to the State of Michigan," he said in an interview in Petoskey.

"The bill proposes to set up an interim loan until farmers can settle with insurance companies."

Charlevoix High School Hosts Band Competition

Charlevoix High School will host the Annual District II Band Festival on Saturday, Feb. 22 at the local high school gym.

Sixteen bands, with almost a thousand young musicians will be participating from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Admissions to the concert presentation of these bands is open to the public.

Each band will play three concert numbers and two sight reading pieces they have never seen.

The bands will be rated from one to five by the 3 concert judges and one sight reading judge, and an average score will be arrived at and awarded each group.

Only bands receiving a final rating of one will be eligible to participate in the State Festival, to be held later in the spring.

The sixteen bands come from 10 schools, with Charlevoix, Gaylord, Onaway, Cheboygan entering two bands each, and Petoskey three groups.

In addition, bands from Johannesburg-Lewiston, Central Lake, East Jordan, Boyne City and Rogers City will participate.

Judges for the event will be Rex Hewlett of CMU, Raymond Roth of U. of M. (Flint), Edward Downing of Ann Arbor, and Stanley Bauman of Elkton Pigeon Bayport. C.A. Odmark is the local chairman, assisted by Gary Stutzman.

The Charlevoix Band Boosters will also assist in the supervision and operation of the festival.

Senior Citizens Get Buses

Two mini-buses have been leased by the Charlevoix Commission on Aging.

Transportation provided by the buses will be an expansion of services provided Senior Citizens through the Commission, which is already providing nutritionally balanced meals and free blood pressure readings.

The buses are being paid for through funds provided under the Older Americans Act and will be used to transport Senior Citizens to and from appointments, meal sites and shopping areas.

A schedule for the buses will soon be set up and published. The buses will be housed in the city garage in East Jordan and will be driven by Eugene Beer of Charlevoix and James Muench of Boyne City.

Nursery Tea Planned

Charlevoix Nursery School will hold a coffee to nominate future board members on February 26 at 9 a.m. in the public library basement.

Students Learn About Engineering

National Engineers Week, February 16-22, will have a special meaning for Charlevoix High School students this year.

The seniors will be taken on guided tours of Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering Company and the Medusa Cement Company on February 18 and 19.

Alvin Ranger, a local engineer, says approximately 20 senior are expected to make the tour.

All have indicated an interest in college engineering studies after high school graduation.

In addition to the tours, Ranger said the group will be shown a film and discuss college engineering entrance requirements.

Ranger is vice president of the Petoskey Chapter of the Michigan Society of Professional Engineers.

The Chapter has set up an exhibit in the Charlevoix Public Library displaying books designed to give young people an introduction to the engineering profession.

One book describes the engineering contributions of George Washington, who was a noted civil and military engineer long before he became president.

"Engineering...Exploring New Energy Frontiers" has been selected as the theme for the 1975 National Engineers Week.

The annual observance is sponsored nationally be the National Society of Professional Engineers through its 535 local chapters.

Ranger said the theme was based on the fact that engineers are aware that the energy crisis in the United States could disrupt and change the American way of life more than any other ongoing domestic problem confronting the nation, today.

The engineering profession also recognizes its role and responsibility of meeting the challenge to research and develop new sources of energy.

The Michigan Society of Professional Engineers is composed of 22 chapters, each representing a geographical area of the state.

The officers of the Petoskey Chapter are Lum Doyle of Cheboygan, president; Dr. Alvin Ranger of Charlevoix, vice president; and Art Lennox of Bellaire.

Independent Basketball Competition

Two Big Upsets in League

By CHUCK WRIGHT
Two big upsets highlighted this week's independent basketball league action.

In the A league, Swansons K&D upended the Town House 77-59.

The loss knocked the Town House out of a first place tie with Freedman's. In the Lake Charlevoix division of the B league, Village Milkhouse moved into a first place tie with Kenney's Excavating by clipping them 53-49.

Swansons finally lived up to their potential in their relatively easy win over Town House. After trailing throughout most of the first half, Swansons came charging back in the third quarter.

Led by Doug Winnel, who played his best game of the year, and Bruce Meggison, Swansons outscored the Town House 24-14 to take a seven point lead into the fourth quarter. Winnel scored 10 and Meggison 8 during that streak.

The Town House was unable to close the gap in the fourth as Swansons' superior rebounding, in the forms of Dave and Kevin Swanson, dominated the action.

Winnel paced the winners with 22, while Meggison followed with 20, Randy DeYoung threw in seven of his long bombs for 14 points, and Dave Swanson added 10. For the Town House, Joe Beaudoin hit for 18, Spook Colernan was held to 14, and Dave Strawbridge collected 11.

Village Milkhouse came out smoking against Kenney's and never trailed during the contest although Kenney's made the going mighty tough late in the game. Both teams were extremely cautious during this battle for first place. Only ninteen fouls were called.

After the first quarter, when the Milkhouse led 19-10, the game was extremely even. Kenney's made their final bid in the fourth quarter. Trailing 39-33, Kenney's led by Rick Van Stedum's 12 fourth quarter points, came to within two points. It was not enough.

Denny Way had 16 for the winners and Dale Boss added 12. For the losers, Wes Graham hit for 19 while Terry DeVries had 12.

In other action, Bob's Sunoco crushed the Coast Guard 104-31. Bob's was merciless as Hud Drenth led the slaughter with 44 points, a new league high this season. Ron Boss had his personal high of the season with 29 while Harold DeYoung hit for 16. Marty Richardson had 14 for the Coast Guard. Bob's 104 points was also the team high for this season.

Freedman Aireraft ran to a 27-4 first quarter lead and coasted to a 64-42 win over Haggards. Freedman's now leads the A league by a full game over the Town House. Roger Crain led Freedman's with 14 (is that all Roger). Rich Kelly and Terry Blissett each contributed 12. Andy Peters paced Haggards with 22 points.

Charlevoix County State Bank maintained their two game lead in the Lake Michigan division of the B league with a 77-43 romp over Medusa. The bankers led by 13 at halftime and were never threaghtened after that. Steve Martinis was high scorer with 23. Paul Donnely followed with 15 and Dennis LaCroix had 13. Charlie Borths had 19 for Medusa.

In a close battle, Jim's Clark held of Russell's Shell 66-58 to remain in sole possession of second place. After leading by one in the first quarter, Jim's was sparked by Vince Left's 8 second quarter points 34-23 at the half.

Russell's battled back, however. They closed the gap to three points before fading

Rayder Matmen Place Third

The Charlevoix Rayder mat team, with a total of 84½ points, placed third in the Michigan-Huron Shores conference wrestling tournament held at Petoskey Saturday.

The Rayders captured three first places; one second place; two third places and five fourth places, according to Coach Norm Probert.

Rogers City captured the league title with 113 points. The host team, Petoskey, came in second with 107 points. Behind third place Charlevoix were Grayling with 67½ points; Boyne City 29 and Gaylord 14. St. Ignace and Cheboygan do not have wrestling teams.

Winning first places in their respective weight classes were Tim DeYoung (112) who upset defending state champion, Jeff Schlanack of Grayling 3-2 in a fast moving encounter; co-captain Terry Mol (145) who swept through with a second period pin over John Bellmore of Rogers City and Phil Christ (185) who came through with a pin though he had a little trouble downing Tom Vargo of Petoskey.

Point winners for the Rayders were Dane Whitley (155), who placed second; Pat DeYoung (132) and Jim Sladek (heavyweight), third place; Mike Kitely (98), Ron Hilton (165), Rob Hilton (126), Terry Drew (132) and Gary Probert (167), fourth place and Dan Key (119) who did not place but who did win team points.

DeYoung's defeat of Schlanack of Grayling and Grayling's Don Vollmer's 6-5 defeat of Don Martinics of Rogers City marked the two big upsets of the meet.

Martenies had a 30-0 record going into the conference meet.

Charlevoix will be among the area teams traveling to the Class C district tournament at Grayling Saturday.

Library notes

Fans of Emily Kimbrough will remember the delightful travel books she has written in the past. There was Our Hearts Were Young and Gay, Water, Water, Everywhere, Floating Island, and a host of others.

Now she has brought out a new title - Time Enough. As the eight passengers hurried to board a converted barge at Shannon, the owner said: "Time enough," and that's just what the passengers had. No clocks, no calendars, just the quiet constant beauty of the passing scene. This light, pleasant book offers enjoyment for every reader.

Candles in the Wind by Alexandra Manners is a Gothic novel in the best tradition. Abandoned by her mother and with a father who is a convicted felon who has been deported to Australia, little Comyn dreams of the time when she might live in the castle of Gallowmerry.

Norman Lewis wrote The Honored Society which is considered the best book in English on the Sicilian Mafia. He has recently come out with The Sicilian, a vivid novel about organized crime on an international scale. The book is based on hard fact. Many of its characters will be vaguely or clearly recognized to the knowledgeable reader, and episode after episode is a wellknown or little noted part of the history of the last thirty years. If you enjoyed The Odessa File, you will enjoy this new book by an absorbing storyteller.

Worried About Death? Try This

Being able to cope with thoughts of dentli and dying are difficult for many people.

To help people with the problem, the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix is sponsoring a series of four seminurs on death and dying beginning February 19.

Each of the public session will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the churches fellowship hall.

The first session will be led by the Rev. Robert Cueni, First Christian Church, Petoskey, on the theology of life and death, ministry to the dying and beraved, and funeral practices.

Miss Amelia Barbus, Director of Nursing at Little Traverse Hospital, will lead the Feb. 26 meeting on the medical definition of death, artificial prolongntion of life, and the relationship between medical personnel and the dying patient and his family.

Saginaw Savings Expects Good Year

Following the annual meeting of the Saginaw Savings and Loan Association, Fred G. Theuer, Chairman of the Board, announced that the Board of Directors had approved the annual statement with record assets of $195,151,213.08.

Savings deposits at the end of 1974 were $179,298,925.04 compared with $164,266,316.48 at the end of 1973.

According to Theuer, mortgage and installment loan volume for the first half of 1974 was very heavy.

However, with tight monetary policies dictoted by the federal government, loan demand decreased in the second half of the year.

At the close of the year, murtgage and installment funds were available and at rates which should be ottractive to the public. Theuer added.

The year 1974 also saw the Association add it's thirteenth and fourteenth offices at Rogers City and Charlevoix, and a new office has been opened in early 1975 in Mt. Pleasant with further office locations being studied and evaluated.

Among the Association's expanded services during the year was a Check-A-Month Plan and a Transmatic System of automatic payments and deposits. A Keugh Retirement Plan for the self-employed was introduced and an Individual Retirement Account is planned as soon as arrangements and approval can be made with the Internal Revenue Service, according to Theuer. The American Express Financial Institution Money Order system was introduced in the fall of 1974 under the name of Courtesy Check.

Looking ahead to 1975, Theuer said that prospects are hopeful but depended on certain key factors in the economy including the government's monetary and fiscal policy, the rate of inflation and all the important amount of employment available.

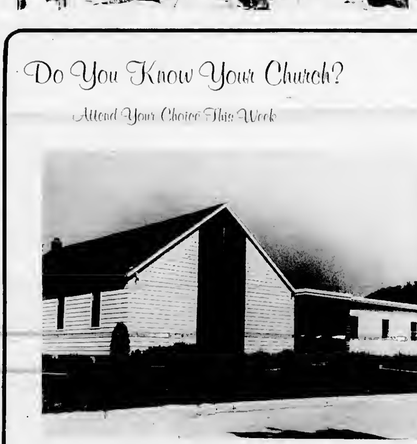
Do You Know Your Church?
Attend Your Choice This Week



ASSEMBLY OF GOD CHURCH
203 E. Upright Street, Charlevoix
Don Shorsch, Pastor Jim Sorum, Minister of Youth

Activities begin at 10:00 A.M. every Sunday morning with Sunday School classes for all ages. Adults have a choice of two classes. An attended nursery is provided for those too small to attend class.
Worship Service is at 11:00 a.m. The Sunday evening service is at 7:00 and is an informal time of singing and worship followed by a message from the pastor. The first Sunday of each month, communion is a part of this service.
Midweek activities include a youth oriented service under the direction of the minister of youth. Designed to develop Christian character and commitment, it is conducted in a variety of locations including the church fellowship hall, private homes and parks. Prayer and praise services are held Wednesday evenings. Following a message by the pastor, attention is given to prayer requests.
Once each month the church meets for a time of fellowship. This is to help meet the social needs of the church. Done on an alternating basis, one month is designated for the entire family and the following month as "couples club" night.
WE BELIEVE that the Bible is the inspired Word of God...in the deity of our Lord Jesus Christ...in His virgin birth, in His vicarious and atoning death, in His bodily resurrection and in His personal future return to the earth in power and glory to rule and reign a thousand years...in regeneration by the Holy Spirit and this being absolutely essential for personal salvation...in the redemptive work of Christ on the cross to provide healing of the human body in answer to believing prayer...the baptism of the Holy Spirit according to Acts 2:4 is given to believers who ask for it...in the sanctifying power of the Holy Spirit by whose indwelling Tha Christian is enabled to live a holy life.
Guests are always welcome at the Charlevoix Assembly of God and are encouraged to participate in the worship and fellowship of the church.

Many Jobs Created By CETA Funding

To date Charlevoix County has been allotted $254,684 to hire people under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

The allocation has been made to the county because of its high unemployment rate and the money is to be used in hiring persons who have exhausted their unemployment benefits, those ineligible for benefits and persons unemployed for long periods of time.

The first $174,846 has been allocated to the following units of county government. Many of the jobs have already been filled, but persons interested in any of them should apply direct to the employing agency.

Feds Propose Penn Central Abandonment

Charlevoix County stands to lose its entire Penn Central service in a federal railway plan recommending abandoning a large number of services for Michigan.

At the same time, the preliminary plan of the United States Railway Association (USRA) for the Midwest and Northeast calls for the retention of C & O trackage through Charlevoix to Petoskey.

The recommendations for Charlevoix County are expected to be released Wednesday in a preliminary plan of the United States Railway Association, the Charlevoix Courier has learned.

Under the proposed reorganization of bankrupt railroads, the Lower Peninsula would be virtually cut in half, with the lower portion receiving service from the new Consolidated Rail Corporation (ConRail) and the northern portion having rail lines designated as "available for subsidy" (AVS).

Rail lines marked as AVS could be kept open if either the state or local community wanted to pay for 30 percent of the operating costs, with the federal government making up the difference.

Hearings Scheduled

The Interstate Commerce Commission will hold hearings beginning March 17 in Lansing on the Michigan phase of the 17-state railroad reorganization plan.

Special day-long hearings have also been scheduled for March 24, 25 and 26 in Traverse City.

They will be held in the Michigan Room at the Park Place Motor Inn.

Congressman Philip Ruppe, who was one of many legislators furnished copies of the plan last week, said he will insist further studies be made on data used in the report.

A Congressional aide said Ruppe plans to testify, but that no statements have been prepared yet.

The Penn Central trackage, known as the old G.R. & I., extends some 128 miles from Cadillac to Mackinaw City and is reported to generate an annual excess burden of $901,136 or $669 per carload.

In order for the line to recover costs the federal report indicated there would have to be a 350 percent increase in traffic or 170 percent rate increase over 1970 levels.

Congressman Approves

Congressman Richard F. VanderVeen, R-Grand Rapids, said in the Grand Rapids Press last week that he approved of USR's basic approach and the 70-30 subsidy basis seems reasonable.

"But I'm keenly aware of the need to take a hard look at saving and improving our rail system," he said.

"I hope the state will come up with the 30 percent, maybe from mass transit funds."

VanderVeen said he has been working with Gov. William G. Milliken in an effort to use Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) funds for improving railbeds, although there is a legal snag in that CETA funds may not he used on private property.

The federal railroad reorganization plan for Charlevoix County runs in direct contradiction to a $155,000 planning study by the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation.

State Plan

The state plan, which recommended Penn Central instead of C & O trackage be kept open, came under attack at a public hearing in Traverse City last week.

Those testifying charged that the plan was inconclusive, uninformative and a waste of money.

The USRA report slates the following rail facilities in the AVS classification: Ferry service across the Straits of Mackinac from Mackinaw City to St. Ignace, and Ann Arbor Railroad carferry service from Frankfort to Manitowoc and Kewaunee, Wis.; 202 miles of Penn Central track from Cedar Springs to Mackinaw City; 188 miles of Ann Arbor Railroad track from Owosso to Frankfort; Penn Central from Bay City to Gaylord and to Mackinaw City; Penn Central from Grand Rapids to Rives Junction in Jackson County and from Traverse City to Walton Junction and Ann Arbor track for Owosso to Oundee.

Charlevoix Public Schools Face Financial Problems

By FRAN MARTIN

If the state doesn't lob off any more state funds, Charlevoix will be able to get through the current school year without going in the red, Supt. James A. McKimmy told the Charlevoix Board of Education at its special meeting Monday night.

He said the austerity budget adopted last fall has topped all possible sources of income.

The budget for the current year was only 1.6 per cent over the 1973-74 budget.

However, he said when the state trimmed $11,300 in state revenue Charlevoix was in trouble.

The board made adjustments by eliminating publishing and printing costs, reducing conferences, cutting back on capital outlay for Vocational Education, and in cutting participation in invitational track meets.

McKimmy said that legislators seem to think schools have contingency and other funds they can draw on which isn't our situation.

Administrators and representatives of the Charlevoix Teachers Association are meeting regularly in an effort to find ways of keeping the school district in the black.

The problem, in addition to getting through this school year, is what can be done for another year, he said.

Since legislation does not permit a deficit budget, the board has indicated their next move is to assure a balanced budget.

The board voted Monday night to ask voters for 2 3/4 mills for a period of three years. This would result in approximately $195,000 in tax monies which, combined with an estimated $47,000 in state monies would leave the school district $242,000 to meet its needs for the 1975-76 budget.

This would represent a 13.9 increase in the budget over this year austerity budget.

In addition to asking for operational millage, the school board will be asking for permission to bond for $200,000 for the purpose of acquiring land for site purposes and $1.2 million for the purpose of building and equipping an addition to the high school and remodeling and re-equipping the Middle School.

This would be done through the sale of general obligation unlimited tax bonds over a 16-

Cross Country Ski Outing Planned

Ski enthusiasts will want to take advantage of Charlevoix's first Cross Country rendezvous Sunday, March 9.

The afternoon family activity will take place on marked trails near Charlevoix.

"We're trying to design the event so people of all ages can participate and have fun," says Curt Kipke of Charlevoix's Recreation Department.

"Cross country skiing is so popular here we felt it would be good to have an organized event for people to get together."

The Charlevoix Recreation Director says people from all over Michigan are being encouraged to come.

Maps of the trail will be sent to those who register through the Charlevoix Recreation Department.

The event will cost $2.00 per person. This includes a lunch that will be served on the trail.

Co-Sponsoring the rendezvous with the Charlevoix Recreation Department are Portside Sports and the Charlevoix Courier.

Commissioner Says Accurate

Islanders Rap Courier Coverage

ST JAMES—Some 15 Benver Island residents sharply criticized the Charlevoix Courier for its reporting last week of incidents relating to island's emergency plane.

The group charged during a Thursday meeting with Editor Ken Winter on the island that newspaper was irresponsible in its coverage of the story and slanted it against Beaver Island.

However, the county official quoted in the story reporting the county's difficulty in securing the information about the plane contends the story was accurate.

"As far as I can see, what you wrote is the way it was," Charlevoix County Commissioner Ralph Richardson told the Courier after hearing about charges made against the newspaper.

"I have photostats of two logs for the plane. Each of them is a single page of paper. The first one covers the period from May 20, 1974 to September 1, 1974, and the second one covers the period from September 17, 1974 to February 14, 1975."

Log Book

The Courier reported last week that Richardson, in an earlier commissioner's meeting, said the Sheriff's Department (which has jurisdiction over the plane) had not received a log book on the plane's operation since last October.

Part of the agreement in connection with the plane was that a monthly log book be sent to the Sheriff's Department by part-time Deputy Sheriff William Welke, who resides on the Island. Welke is one of three certified pilots of the plane.

Jim Chanda, another one of the three certified pilots, said last Thursday: "It's been here and it's been available."

Chanda said the story failed to mention the hours of volunteer time that many Islanders have been into the plane, as well as the uses the U-6A DeHaviland Beaver Aircraft has been available for.

He cited the plane has assisted in Cnast Guard calls, in addition to numerous emergency runs made for medical assistance.

"The entire program has been a volunteer program from beginning to end," he said.

Chanda said the Courier story was based on second-hand information and the newspaper should have checked with people on the island.

"If Mr. Richardson wants to know anything about the plane, all he has to do is ask," Chanda said.

Mrs. Betty Welke added that she had been sending an end of the month report since September to the county.

"Nothing was asked previous to that," she said.

Vivian Visscher, St. James Township clerk and a registered nurse, said the Courier story could have stressed the importance the plane played in providing access to medical facilities on the mainland.

Others attending the Thursday afternoon meeting charged that the Courier misled its readers regarding construction of a hangar which was delayed because of difficulty in shipping a hangar door from an Iowa-based firm.

City Council Looks at Old Buildings

Charlevoix's unsightly and dangerous buildings may be the target of a new city ordinance.

City Councilmen indicated Monday they would study a local ordinance that would give them clout to remove buildings deemed hazardous to public welfare.

The problem sparked council's interest after they learned from City Attorney Don Berlage there presently was no ordinance covering unsightly buildings.

Berlage told council that the State Housing Code had provisions under 1969 amendments that they could adopt into a local ordinance.

If adopted, the city would have a criteria to determine what constitutes an unsafe building.

He said the code provides for not only an investigator and hearing for complaints, but allows for a person to appeal the decision to city council.

Councilman Ralph McRae suggested the city consider using provisions already established in the state building code, however, Berlage said the code lacks in providing a method for appeal.

Berlage said the city might also be leaving itself open for suits from building owners who have their buildings torn down by the city because the building code was not elaborate enough.

Mayor Ed Hansen said that in past history the city had the State fire marshall make a determination, but it was easy to get around.

The matter was referred to the city council's ordinance committee.

In other action, council:

Our Vanishing Land

An icy wind off Lake Michigan adds to the stillness and sterility to an abandoned quarry just outside of Charlevoix. There has been no activity in the pit for some years.

A deserted powerhouse, crumbling docks, several thousand acres of scarred terrain, and piles of waste rock are part of the legacy of strip-mining in Charlevoix County—and a stark reminder of the state's failure to regulate exploitation of its resources.

Unknown to most people, the strip-mining industry in Michigan is growing and the state is now fourth in the nation in the value of mining materials.

Yet there is no guarantee that ugliness and destruction from mining of gravel and sand will be repaired.

Many mining companies say that devastation is temporary and that when mining is completed—perhaps in 100 years or more—the land will be reclaimed.

State officials say they have no ammunition to insure that will be the case.

In Charlevoix County, there are presently 14 mining operations actively engaged in extracting sand, gravel or limestone, according to the U.S. Bureau of Mines.

The new Charlevoix County Soil Survey shows there are nearly 15,000 acres available for good mining operations.

There are no legislative guarantees that any reclamation will take place when miners leave. The state Mine Reclamation Act passed in 1970, was only recently amended to include limestone and gypsum, and still does not cover mining of sand and gravel.

Robert Reed, supervisor of the Department of Natural Resources' mining and environmental geology section, said they are presently working on administrative rules for enforcing the legislation, but sand and gravel are not included.

"There has been a bill in the Senate to include sand and gravel and another proposed bill for dune mining," he said, adding that nothing concrete has been done.

Reed said state officials are anticipating new federal legislation that will set minimum guidelines for land reclamation.

"In the meantime, we are looking at the sand and gravel for inclusion in the state act," he said.

"We realize how unsightly these things are."

The DNR officials say hopefully the state will eventually be able to require companies to submit reclamation plans that will have to be updated periodically.

Reclamation of open pit mines is new, Reed says.

Only a few years ago, coal producing states began regulating mining areas. Michigan first began regulating metalic iron ore pits and stone quarries.

"One of the things with open pits is that they are mined for money and then they get out," adds a feceral soil expert.

"There's nothing I know that says they have to stabilize it."

Too often, he says, mining companies dig their pits at such a steep grade, it is nearly impossible to stabilize them by growing trees and shrubs.

Of the operations in Charlevoix County, the federal official says the Hodgkiss and Douma operation near Bay Shore makes the greatest attempt to use gradual slopes for stabilization purposes.

Medusa Cement, which mines limestone, was also cited for their efforts in attempting to screen their operation from public view.

"One thing I'm concerned about is a lot of these pits are made and they're left on such a steep grade they could be dangerous to children, let alone to adults," he said.

"However, it is up to the individual to do it himself."

The state's new Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Act also exempts mining, as well as logging and farming, from new regulations concerning earth removal.

About the only control local residents have is through local zoning ordinances, and those have no effect on already existing mines.

"I think we realize we have to have these minerals," says William Mercer, Charlevoix County Planner.

"However, we do not need the negative things that traditionally go with them."

He said through zoning, governmental units can focus on three major areas of concern—safety, future land use and esthetics. Most local ordinances attempt to insure that property being mined is not left in an unstable condition, Mercer said.

Portions of the county having particular problems with mining include Norwood, Eveline, Boyne Valley and Hudson Townships.

The Charlevoix County planner said most local ordinances are written so that mining companies are required to reclaim the property so that it can be used for any purpose under the zoned districts it was intended for.

The concert will include comedy routines and over 50 songs. Tickets in Charlevoix are available at the Weathervane, Grey Gables, Village Graphics and Capelli Salon.

Charlevoix's Economy: Some Good News

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

The worst is over, here and in the nation.

That is the unanimous opinion of Charlevoix's two bank presidents and the local manager of a savings and loan concern.

Gordon Wellman, Charlevoix County State Bank President; Louis Hollow, First State Bank of Charlevoix President; and Gary Bailey Saginaw Savings and Loan Office Manager referred primarily to the decreasing interest rates as the major hopeful economic sign.

However, none thought Charlevoix would see an instaneous economic recovery.

Unemployment figures are the most often quoted indicators of economic health. In December, 1974, the unemployment rate for Charlevoix was 19.2 percent, more than twice the national rate of around 8 percent, and considerably above the statewide rate of about 11 percent.

Michigan's unemployment rate, highest in the nation, is tied to the massive automobile factory lay-offs, Bailey pointed out. As a recent Wall Street Journal article stated, there are 50,000 different businesses across the nation that produce various components for a single automobile. With several such automotive component manufacturers located in Charlevoix County, local unemployment is bound to reflect the auto industry sickness.

Worst Over

Wellman thought even for the auto industry, the worst is over. He asserted that local component parts factories usually go back into production before the auto factories themselves.

Hollow and Wellman, whose banks are involved directly in local economics, see relief coming to Charlevoix. There is some interest in locating in Charlevoix by at least two retail outlets and new contracts are being negotiated by local industry.

Pressed for a real recovery date, the three men said, "late summer." Right now change will come slowly, if at all, they said.

Mortgage foreclosures are not up dramatically, nor are loan delinquencies at any of the institutions, although people are having problems meeting financial obligations, indicative of the lay-offs and inflationary times.

–"Payments are a little slow," Hollow said, "But banks are really making an effort to forebear. We don't want to foreclose. We are not in the real estate business."

Fear Not

Wellman stressed the theme, "People shouldn't be afraid to talk to their bankers. We understand the situation and 99 percent of the time we can work out solutions."

Bailey suggested some people may have to make the decision to sell such items as snowmobiles or other recreational vehicles to meet their obligations.

He too stressed, "If someone is having financial problems, he should talk to his lender. It shows concern and he'll work with you."

A growth in savings accounts at all three institutions reflects both the falling interest rates in such money markets as U.S. Treasury bonds and bills, and a reluctance on the part of those with cash to either invest or spend. As recently as last October an investor with $1,000 could receive as high as 10 percent from U.S. Treasury bills, while private savings institutions were limited to top rates of around 7 percent on money committed for several years. At that time the Treasury bills matured in 60, 90 and 180 days.

Since then, these so-called "short term money markets" interest rates have declined, as Bailey explained, to a point where savings institutions can again compete.

On one hand Bailey pointed out, the switch of money back into savings accounts in Charlevoix, as well as nationally, means these institutions have more money to loan, at lower interest rates. Yet it can also mean that because of lack of confidence in the economic situation, people are squirreling their money into safe savings accounts and not going further into debt. Therefore there are fewer loan requests. Which all means the economy is not recovering very rapidly.

Cosumer Problem

"Now the problem is the consumer," Bailey said.

Wellman agreed, "When people go back to work and consumer confidence is restored, people will begin to be less cautious about buying."

The three men described the current situation as somewhat stagnate: savings are growing; interest rates on loans and mortgages have declined significantly, from 12 percent in the fall of '74 to 9½ percent now; yet there are fewer loans and mortgages.

In other words, even in Charlevoix, while there is more money available at more attractive interest rates, people are not taking advantage of the situation because they lack of confidence in the economy.

Lack of Demand

Bailey predicted the lack of demand will push interest rates down still further.

Hollow suggested this may be the ideal time for people to consider building, if they can meet the financing. Not only are interest rates down; but construction costs are lower than in two years.

Asked for predictions for summer and Charlevoix's vital tourism industry, Hollow said, "I don't expect the resort industry will see much decline. The winter ski business is greater than ever, the local motels are jammed and local restaurant business is up 40 percent over last January."

Wellman said he has changed his hopes for summer in the past three months. In late fall he would have been pessimistic for coming summer; but now, based on observing the ski season, "I am hopeful for summer. People will come even if out of work."

The banks and the savings and loan expect their own profits to reflect the local economic situation. Profits for 1974 were not as great as 1973 and they are projecting a similar "profit squeeze" for 1975.

Guardedly Optimistic

Yet they remain, "guardedly optimistic", according to Hollow. As for economic advice to Charlevoixians: if currently employed, Hollow recommended watching for some good buys in forthcoming appliance sales and in land, which may be available at a good price. "Be opportunistic," he said.

Bailey advised, "Spread your money out between savings and investments."

And for the unemployed, with financial problems "talk to your banker, work things out," Wellman stressed.

Charlevoix is unique in the opinion of these men: there is simultaneously very high unemployment and wealth.

Bailey said it is also unique because the people are more sophisticated, not afraid to ask questions, and their credit is very strong, as compared to elsewhere in the state.

The concensus amougst three of Charlevoix's economic experts is that while unemployment figures are dramatic, the economic situation is not as dire, and while they don't expect great recovery until summer or fall, things won't get worse. They may even begin improving slowly soon.

Charlevoix Gets Lighthouse

By TOM DAMMANN

CHARLEVOIX–As of this past week it appears that the Charlevoix Public Schools system will become the new owner of the historic lighthouse and its surrounding grounds, on the south end of Beaver Island, a development which is embarassing the school administration, which is seeking a tax levy in a millage election April 21st.

The amount being sought totals 24.45 mills, representing an increase of 2.75 mills over 9.2 allocated and 12.5 voted. Sources close to the administration have worried privately that the chronic opposition to school millage will benefit from the argument that the lighthouse property acquisition will inenr new and questionable expenses.

But on the Federal and State level the game of "Lighthouse, lighthouse, who's got the lighthouse," is drawing to an end, with the Charlevoix Public School system declared the winner.

After serving as a warning beacon for ships and sailors plying the upper reaches of Lake Michigan for almost a century and a quarter, the Beaver Island light was abandoned by the U.S. Coastguard in favor of a modern automated blinker.

It was declared surplus government property to be disposed of by the General Services Administration, GSA.

Two federal agencies are involved. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), responsible for facilitating its sale to an institution or group for educational purposes; and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR), Department of Interior.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) applied for it as a possible historic preservation or public park, chiefly in order to insure against its going into private ownership, Theodore R. Tucker, of the DNR's land division said in a telephone interview Friday.

The main rivalry, developed between a Chicago Hospital group, a consortium of Michigan Community Colleges and the Charlevoix Public School System, each of which filed applications with HEW's Surplus Property Utilization Office in Chicago.

The hospital group dropped out early in the game and last summer it appeared that the college group had won out.

Led by ,Macomb County Community College the consortium was composed of 13 other colleges, including Grand Rapids Junior College, Muskegon, Kalamazoo and Jackson Community Colleges.

The consortium had developed an attractive program utilizing the site for biological and ecological studies, Robert Prager, director of Surplus Property Utilization, HEW, Chicago said Friday, but it finally decided the costs were too high and withdrew.

"The Charlevoix Public Schools System has reiterated its interest and its willingness to share the property with other educational institutions," Prager said Friday, "so we have gone back to GSA, requesting concurrance with the transfer of the property to Charlevoix."

Prager expects the GSA green light within a few weeks.

Meanwhile, the DNR, is maintaining a wait and see attitude, keeping its application in a dormant state with the Ann Arbor BOR regional office.

"Our concern is that the property not pass to private use," Tucker explained. "If Charlevoix can develop a fundable and viable plan for it. God Bless it."

According to Charlevoix Superintendent James McKimmy, the system will receive 61.41 acres, less 6.4 acres, surrounding a 300 foot communications tower, which the Coast Guard will retain, together with easements for access to it.

"If the property is assigned to us, we will have to provide a survey and an appraisal of its value, at a cost of about $500, McKimmy said Friday.

In addition to the Lighthouse itself, there are a dwelling and four store houses and garages. The land is largely wooded dunes.

McKimmy says the property will be used initially for self-supporting camping in summer and other times of the year when the weather permits. Students in the building trades courses of the system will help in the improvement and maintenance of the building.

At the very least the property will serve as a good investment, the school superintendent feels, because each year it will obtain three and a third percent of the equity.

"In 30 years the system will receive full title," McKimmy explained. "If the property is disposed of in the interim, we will be paid our share of the equity. As it grows in value that alone will make it worth while."

Ballet Visiting

"Adventures in Dance, North" will bring the touring troupe of the Christopher Ballet of Rochester, Michigan to Charlevoix Middle School in a lecture-demonstration for the middle and elementary students.

Charlevoix parents are invited to attend March 4.

A grant from the Michigan Counell for the Arts and local sponsorship of the Crooked Tree Arts Council brings this outstanding educational program to the area.

Coordinating this program for the Crooked Tree Arts Council are Mrs. Robert Tollas of Charlevoix and Mrs. Bret Riley of East Jordan.

Press Responsibility

A test of newspaper responsibility took place in Charlevoix County last week and the outcome will probably never be known.

In question was a story appearing in last week's Courier regarding Beaver Island's emergency plane.

The story related how Charlevoix County Commissioners and several other county officials knew very little about the county plane turned over to Beaver Island for emergency use.

After numerous telephone calls to this newspaper, the editor decided to fly over immediately to St. James and hear the islanders' complaints.

Following an hour of discussion in the St. James Township Hall, the Courier learned that residents were unhappy because they were not contacted for their views about what was said at the County Commission meeting about the plane.

The oversight of contacting just a deputy sheriff on the island and not several other residents was unfortunate on our part because there was more to the story.

We learned, as you can read on today's front page, that versions of what the county officials reported and Beaver Islanders say are different.

You'll also notice that Commissioner Ralph Richardson stands behind what was reported in the Courier.

Yet, several Beaver Islanders disagree with the report.

We are not in a position to sit as judge and jury, nor are we attempting to create a continued serial between the two groups over the plane.

Our point is to show how difficult it is for a newspaper to report an event, especially one that involves personalities.

In this case, residents of Beaver Island were upset because the story was read by them as being negative towards the island.

After hearing their complaints, we can understand how they looked at the story that way.

It was not our intention to make anyone look had, but rather to report an incident of misunderstanding over a public plane.

Understandably, islanders were mad with us about the article because they say we didn't get the whole story.

We failed to report how Ed Wojan of Beaver Island donated $4,000 to build a hangar for the plane, although it was reported earlier as well as the hundred of man hours that went into building the hangar.

We also neglected to relate how islanders felt the plane benefited their health care by giving them a life line to major hospitals on the mainland.

These two oversights were unfortunate and would have added more depth to the original story.

But these two angles don't take away from the original story! Apparently the County Commission had a communication breakdown over log reports of what took place with the plane.

The stories from each party still seem to conflict.

We feel a newspaper has the responsibility to point these types of misunderstanding when they involve any public monies.

Hopefully, exposure to problems of this nature draw attention and direct interest in correcting them.

In this specific case, Beaver Island and the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners may now work towards correcting a communication problem of reporting the plane's activities.

Recently, the Charlevoix Courier reported that traces of PBB, a chemical fire retardant, had been discovered in human beings, as well as cows.

The story drew national attention in many newspapers and network television.

The end result was forcing the state health department to reveal that they had known about it for eight months and not reported it to the public.

Now the health department has placed the problem to the top of its priority list and is launching a full-scale investigation to the effects of PBB on humans.

In addition, thousands of people across the state are aware of the problem and now may be able to help the health department do something about it.

Before, nothing may have been done.

We are pleased that Beaver Island residents felt they could contact us concerning the plane and relate their side of the story.

Newpapers are not infalliable and like any other institution are subject to error, either factually or in judgement.

The true test of a newspaper's responsibility is when it can sit down with parties in disagreement and discuss their views.

Like anything else, newspapers will continue to make unintentional errors. At the same time it is important that readers can feel there is an open channel to point out these errors through either letters to the Editor or through a direct meeting with its management.

We appreciate the concerns expressed by the Beaver Island residents and hope we have presented some of their feelings, if not corrected any shortcomings that appeared in our previous story.

Letters to the editor

Good Hospital

I have been a patient in large and in small hospitals. Having been a recent patient for a few days in our local Charlevoix Hospital, I would like to send a large bouquet of thanks.

The hospital was busier than usual with flu cases as well as the usual broken bones, babies and other ailments. However the atmosphere was never tense, terse, or rushed.

My doctors did not hurry the diagnosis ur rush into unnecessary surgery but kept careful check at all times. The nurses came whenever they were called and frequently stuck their head in for a cheery word and offer of help. There was a good natured kidding and conversation among the staff and with the patients.

I have been in other hospitals whose staff make you feel you are a nuisance and a bother they would rather do without. I think we are fortunate to have Charlevoix Hospital serving our community.

"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

On February 17, the Boyne City Bicentenial Committee met to elect a chairman and to discuss the direction and progress of the Heritage, Horizon, and Festival Committees.

Catherine Jessup was elected as the Bicentennial Committee chairman. Anyone wishing to participate in the bicentennial in any way should contact her.

The Heritage '76 Committee is working hand in hand with Boyne City's new Historical Society. Mike Fulkerson has been elected president of both. The development of the Historical Society is the Heritage Committee's project. Any projects that the Historical Society should complete will receive bicentennial credit. Right now, they are in the process of selecting the by laws and a name for the Society.

The Festival Committee has not been established yet. The Jaycees are tentatively thinking of assuming the responsibility. Hopefully, this committee can be definitely established by next month.

Nancy Holland is president of the Horizons '76 Committee. They are very excited about the possible development of a park uff M 75. They have sent in plans, developed by the Soil Conservation District in 1970, for state approval. Baseball diamonds, tennis courts, and nature trails are some of the ideas they hope to incorporate in the park.

Boyne Falls is a very industrious community and has been working hard on the bicentennial.

On February 15, they gave their "All You Can Eat" dinner as their February fund raising project. The dinner was quite a success. People attended from all over the area to enjoy the good food. And, I heard they were passing out Rolaid's as they left! The profit of $315.52 will be put into their bicentennial fund and used to publish the historical pamphlet they have been working on.

Jim Everest, a Boyne Falls teacher, has been working with his sophomores and juniors to help gather the material needed for their pamphlet. Eventually he hopes to put a slide tape program together much like Rob Morgridge's of Boyne City. He would like to coordinate a tape with the slides using the voices of the "old timers" as the narrative.

Art Hutchings, a Boyne Falls resident, has been involved in film making for the last fifteen years. He has produced for Four Season Films, films on travel, scenery, wildlife, fishing, huntiog, and ecology from all over the world. Some of his films have even been shown on the Michigan Sportsmen, All Outdoors, and The Great Outdoors television programs.

For their March fund raising project, Art has agreed to have a showing of some of his ski films. He was fortunate enough to capture Jean Claude Killy and Spider Savage on film when they were at Boyne Mountain a few years ago. They feel that many of the skiers would be interested in viewing these. He will also show a wildlife or an ecology film with the ski film. The program should last about two hours. The time and place have not been determined yet, but there will be ample publicity once they have done so.

Art Hutchings is also active in coordinating the festival celebration of the bicentennial. He has many good ideas, but my favorite one is his plan to re-enact the Battle of Concord. This pageant will take place on the bridge in Boyne Falls and will relive Paul Revere's infamous ride and the battle between the 7 and 700 British soldiers in canoes. This sure sounds like it promises to be a lot of fun!

Boyne Falls has also received word that they have been recognized as a National Bicentennial Community. My congratulations! A ceremony is being planned in April sometime to receive their certificate and a Bicentennial flag. I hope all the other communities will look at Boyne Falls and Chandler Township as outstanding examples to be followed.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

I made a bad mistake when I reported in last week's column that the six Clocks are surviving on about $30 worth of groceries a week.

This week our total grocery hill — less soaps, detergents and paper products – came to $25.52. And I don't think we're going to starve.

Last week's column, by the way, probably did more to contribute to marital unhappiness in Charlevoix than anything I've written in quite some time. One friend told me he had cut it out and pasted it on his wife's forehead- just as a reminder when she goes shopping.

A highly agitated woman conceded that a grocery bill of $30 n week might be possible when your kids are small.

"But you can't feed teenagers on so little," she warned.

Our oldest is still two years away from teenhood so I wouldn't know. But I can't imagine the circus fat lady eating any more than our four urchins. On weekends they eat breakfast without interruption from 8 a.m. until noon. Ten minutes after they finish they start inquiring about lunch.

All in all, the column was better received by men who read it with an "I told you so" attitude. Women were chagrined that I would have the audacity to suggest they are spending too much for groceries.

And I was surprised Saturday to see how many husbands accompanied their wives to the supermarket, men who had never darkened the door to Oleson's Food Store before in their lives. I suspect some of them tagged along to see how the little lady is handling the grocery money.

Admittedly, we didn't have too many major purchases Saturday, but we did "buy ahead" on many items, including a month's supply of flour, enough jam and orange juice for two weeks, enough oatmeal for about three weeks and enough low-fat milk to last us until next Saturday.

So what are the Clock's eating this week?

Breakfast is pretty standard: Juice, cereal (hot or cold) and / or toast, jam, eggs and coffee or milk. Sometimes the six of us eat six different breakfasts. It looks like lunches also will be pretty standard this week. Since we had meatloaf Sunday, there probably will be meatloaf sandwiches aplenty if we want them. If not, there's still some of last week's bologna left and plenty of peanut butter. We also bought a peck of Macintosh apples which will go into lunches, along with pickles, cole slaw, hard boiled eggs and whatever else strikes our fancy.

The main meals also appear pretty ample:

SATURDAY: Homemade beef-barley-vegetable soup (it steeped all day and smelled delicious); homemade bread fresh from oven; hard-boiled eggs and Canadian cheddar cheese, corn meal muffins with strawberry jam. Tea all around.

SUNDAY: Meatloaf (all beef and pork, no bread crumbs or oatmeal to help it s-t-r-e-t-c-h.), mashed potatoes, Harvard beets and homemade sour-cream raisin pie (made with buttermilk to cut down on calories.)

MONDAY: Macaroni baked with a cheese-oolon sauce, buttered brussels sprouts, homemade cloverleaf rolls.

TUESDAY: Pre-fried shrimp pieces for the adults, scrambled eggs for kids who don't like shrimp (I hope they never learn), potatoes O'Brien, cole slaw.

WEDNESDAY: Homemade chili con carne over mashed potatoes and tossed salad with Thuusand Island dressing.

THURSDAY: Corn fritters, sausage patties and applesauce, (canned or homemade, depending on how the Mac's last.)

Friday is still open, but there's fish in the freezer.

Weekdays we usually skip dessert, unless it's something left over from the weekend or if we are able to find a "special" on ice cream, which we didn't this week. Oddly enough, the kids aren't that nutty about desserts, which is certainly a plus when it comes to grocery shopping. They don't expect dessert every night so they're never disappointed.

You probably notice that the Clocks are not dining on prime rib ur filet mignon this week and they probably won't until the economy straightens itself out. But we are managing to have fairly interesting, nutritious meals without going broke at the grocery store.

And that's the name of the game in 1975.

Writer Argues About Taxes

Mr. Ken Wintёr, Editor
The Charlevoix Courier
111 Bridge Street
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Editor:

Income Tax doldrums, plus the recent questionnaire from our Senator soliciting our preferences on raising money (such as: upping taxes on items already taxed and re-taxed–Income, Gasoline, Cigarets) reminded me of an idea I've had for some time.

It is so simple I woodered why no one else had thought of it. (Later, I find someone has.)

Why not limit Income Tax Exemptions for family additions, to three?

In other words: For the first three children a couple has, there would be the usual exemption of $750 each (total of $2250).

This amendment (if such it should be called) would autonatically channel millions of $$ into the U.S. Treasury.

There would be no difficulty in implementation: simply the elimination of several pages of Income Tax tables frum next year's forms (or whatever year after the law went into effect).

Anticipating immediate reaction from alarmed parents, let me make the following clear:

1. The law would be worded to not affect any children already born. Families with 12 kids now would still get 12 exemptions.

2. No one could holler "Discrimination!" The law would apply tu every American family, irrespective of race, creed, or color.

3. We love kids. We love not only ours, and yours, but all the children in the world. We love them enough to not want them to starve or die of disease because of over-population. However, parents could still keep on having more kids if they so desire and feel they can afford them. Those who could not afford more might figure more earefully in advance, instead of waiting till they're born and then going on relief, A.D.C. or letting the kids undergo neglect or malnutrition.

4. The law would not be retroactive: rather, it would go into effect one year after passage. This would allow ample time for blessed events going over the usual nine-month gestation period, as occasiooally happens.

5. If the third child – conceived prior to passage of the law – turned out to be a multiple birth, each of the twins, triplets or whatever would still count as an exemption.

I thought this plan was original with me. But on February 1st, the day after I mailed the Senator's questionnaire back to him including it, WJML's "J. Alexander" suggested the same thing! Only difference: he said, "no exemptions for over two children."

Fine: all the more money saved for Uncle Sam. But my thought was: Often a couple wants one boy and one girl; but the first two are buth boys, or both girls; so they want to try once more. And three children, after all, makes a nice round number for a family unit.

What do you think of the overall plan? (I'm not seeking publicity, so just sign me

"Over-taxed Taxpayer"

If it Fitz — Jeb is no real crook

By JIM FITZGERALD

Jeb Magruder, the first Watergate crook to serve time, was on the Mike Douglas show. And one fanny-kissing guest looked admiringly at handsome Jeb and said how brave and marvelous it was that he would admit on national TV that he had been a bad boy.

Mrs. Magruder was there and she beamed at her husband. Jeb looked humbly at his shoes. I yelled for my wife to bring my TV throw-up pot, the one with "Gabor Sisters," lettered on the outside (on the inside it says "Let's Make a Deal").

And then I helped a friend write this letter to Mike Douglas...

Dear Mike:

I think it is wonderful how you are willing to help reformed lawbreakers get back on their feet. You paid Mr. and Mrs. Magruder to come on your show to advertise his hook and his lecture tour. It was a nice thing to do, but you can do nicer.

Magruder is a small-timer. All he did was OK a chintzy burglary and then lie about it. When you mensure his crime by his punishment – 6 months in a Ramada Inn – it becomes obvious that his evil is hardly worthy of national attention. A pansy like that could be corrupted by being locked up in the same cell with a guy who spit on the sidewalk.

Let's face it, Mike. People don't care what happened in Magruder because not enough happened. He was a bum guest because he's not a big enough bum. Most importantly, Magruder is not bad enough to make you look good enough.

I understand why the TV brains want crooks on talk shows. It goes all the way back to Jesus Christ. He forgave the thief on the neat cross and people are still talking about it. Mike Douglas could use the same kind of sympathetic exposure. But you are not going to get it by holding hands with the likes of Jeb Magruder. His hands are not dirty enough.

You need a really evil man on your show, Mike. Someone who really has something to be sorry about. That's why I am writing to you.

I too was blinded by power. I too thought my high position would allow me to get away with anything. I too used "national security" as an excuse for foul deeds. I too got caught and have repented, in that order.

But that's where my similarity to Magruder, Dean, Colson and their like ends. I was really bad. When I appear on your show your Nielsen rating will top the Super Bowl. When you tell the world how great it is that I am willing to admit my guilt on TV, the world will look for the spike holes in your plams.

Mike, for the past 30 years I have been secluded in a monastery basement, praying (no Ramada Inn for my kind of evil. Gottenhimmel!) I have shaved off my moustache but I will let it grow back for your show. All I ask is that you don't have Zsa Zsa Gabor on the same day.

Meet Charlevoix

...Harry Griffin

HARRY GRIFFIN OF WALLOON LAKE IS THIS YEAR'S CHAIRMAN OF THE CHARLEVOIX COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS. HE REPRESENTS MELROSE AND CHANDLER TOWNSHIPS AND IS BEGINNING HIS SEVENTH YEAR ON THE BOARD.

THE COURIER RECENTLY ASKED HIM SOME QUESTIONS ABOUT PROBLEMS FACING THE COUNTY AND WHAT HE THINKS THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS CAN DO ABOUT THEM.

COURIER: In light of today's revolt against high property taxes, do you see any way to reduce next year's county budget?

GRIFFIN: I can't point out one special thing but we definitely are going to have to cut the budget. We may have to lay off some employees. It looks like the schools are going to ask for more millage. We have to do something. We haven't really gotten into the matter yet. Schools are about 85 percent of our real estate taxes. Since our valuations have gotten so high, our schools have lost most of their State Aid. This means more tax money has to be raised in property taxes. One reason for this is that we have so much resort property with no children going to school and State Aid is based on amount of valuation per student.

COURIER: What do you see as the greatest problem facing the Board of Commissioners this year:

GRIFFIN: The budget is really our biggest problem – the high cost of materials and labor and other overhead. We had to come under the Michigan Unemployment Act so we have to pay out money for unemployment benefits. We are setting aside money for this purpose rather than paying it direct to the Unemployment Commission and hope this will be less costly to the county.

COURIER: What financial pusition do the new state laws such as the Building Code and Soil Erosion and Sedimentation Act and others of a similar nature put the county in?

GRIFFIN: They put us in a very bad situation. The bills are enacted and they become law and we must comply with them. At the same time the state provides no financial help. If we ever have to enforce the solid waste program as set up by the state it is going to be very costly to the county. I was on the Health Committee for several years, and we have had trouble keeping up with the things the Health Department requires of the county, with no provisions to pay for them.

COURIER: Tell us something about how the Board of Commissioners operates, your committee system, etc.

GRIFFIN: There are 15 members un the Board of Commissioners. We have four permanent committees and the Statutory Audit Committee which is required by law. The committees are made up of either three or four members. Each committee member is in charge of one or more departments of county government. When a department chairman has a request, it goes to the commissioner in charge, then to the committee as a whole, and finally to the Board of Commissioners. The committee has no authority to act on its own. The whole Board of Commissioners must act on each request. We have just started this.

COURIER: What consideration is the Board of Commissioners giving tu hiring a county manager?

GRIFFIN: There has been a little talk about it, but nuthing definite. We have to decide whether or not the county is big enough. With all these new departments we may sometime need a county manager or comptroller.

COURIER: How does the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) work as far as the Board of Commissioners is concerned?

GRIFFIN: All the county does is allot the money to the various governmental agencies that have jobs to fill. If we don't spend the money we don't get it. However, we realize this is not free money. It is money collected fur us through federal taxes, and therefore is part of our money coming back to us.

COURIER: What is your feeling about Commissioners' salaries. Are they too high or too low?

GRIFFIN: According to other counties of our size, we are about in the middle of the range for commissioners' salaries. If a man has to take off from work to attend meetings, he is really sacrificing his time. I feel we have a very dedicated Board of Commissioners who are concerned about the people's welfare. A lot of them have spent a lot of time that they didn't get paid for.

Letters to the editor — Debaters Say Thanks

Dear Editor:

As the debate season draws to a close, we, the members of the C.H.S. varsity debate team, would again like to express our sincerest thanks to the many individuals and organizations in this city who so staunchly supported our efforts and played a considerable role in the achievement of our state championship title.

Last summer we began to seek funds to send our varsity members to a two week debate workshop at Northern Michigan University in Marquette. Summer workshop is crucial to the production of a high quality- team. Competition begins early in September. To be prepared for the early meets as well as to receive specialized individual attention, a summer session is a must. The response from both individuals and interest groups was overwhelming. With such a stroog demonstration of community support, we vowed as a team to live up to that support in every way possible.

The summer sessinn at N.M.U. was rewarding in itself. But once home that knowledge had to be applied in the debate tournaments we entered. The ultimate applicatiun came on Feb. 15th in Ypsilanti when the Charlevoix High School debate team became the number one team in Michigan in class C-D.

It has been a memorable and rewarding season. It feels great to be number one! But we wouldn't be number one if it weren't for the public support we've had behind us. As the state championship team we are more than proud to represent this community and all those within it who believed in us.

Thank you so much,
The C.H.S. Varisty Debate Team:

Charlevoix High School Holds 2nd Conference

The second in a series of Parent Teacher conferences will be held at the Charlevoix public schools Tuesday evening and all day Wednesday, Roy Fortin, assistant principal in charge of scheduling for the event, has announced.

Conferences will begin at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and continue until 9:30 p.m.

On Wednesday, schools will be closed all day for conferences that will begin at 8:30 a.m. and continue until 9:30 p.m. with breaks for lunch at 12 noon and dinner at 5:30 p.m.

Fortin said that approximately 1800 conferences were scheduled during that period. Parents should have received their conferences in the mail either Saturday or Monday.

"We have tried to give everyone the time and teacher requested. However, with so many this has not always been possible. In some instances minor changes in time and a second choice of teacher has had to be made" Fortin said.

He urged parents to keep appointments. "We feel that this is the best possible way for parents to meet their children's teachers and to become acquainted with the school."

State Hears About Penn Central

Attorney General Says He Will Investigate Rail Abandonment

TRAVERSE CITY — A Michigan Assistant Attorney General said his office would investigate charges made Tuesday of illegal railroad abandonment between Petoskey and Mackinaw City by Penn Central.

Several Northern Michigan industrialists told the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation in public hearings here that Penn Central is no longer servicing some 40 miles of trackage between the two communities.

The state Transportation was holding its first of five public hearings on the State Rail Needs Plan.

Assistant Attorney General Robert Taube said he first learned about Penn Central's move Tuesday when several Northern Michigan businessmen testified about the lack of service.

Gerald Smith, president of Michigan Maple Block Company in Petoskey, told the state there has been no railroad service to Mackinaw City since late last year.

Instead, he said cars are being rerouted through Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Jackson and Bay City before it could be taken to Mackinaw City.

"They're just out to discourage operation," he charged.

"You just can't talk to them. It's almost a clean case of sabotage."

James F. Schoufman, Dearborn attorney for Frigid Food Products in Suttons Bay said in his personal opinion that move is illegal.

"It occurs to me they are in direct violation of a federal court ruling," Schoufman said.

Schoufman was referring to an injunction order signed by Federal Court Judge Noel Fox in 1966 that prohibits Penn Central along with several railroad companies from abandoning operations without a certificate of public convenience and necessity from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Taube said he was not aware of Penn Central applying for any discontinuance of service between Petoskey and Mackinaw City.

"Once providing service to an area, they're not suppose to end service without petitioning the ICC," he said.

The Petoskey manufacturer of maple chopping blocks estimated some 89 rail cars travel through Petoskey a year.

Without rail service, Smith said his company will be forced to leave Petoskey.

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Woodbury spent several days over the past weekend with their brothers and sister-in-laws Lynn and Leigh Woodbury in Montrose.

Several of our local residents attended the Snowmobile Races in East Jordan this last Sunday.

Diane Alexander and Carol Penee, students at Grand Valley are spending this weekend with their families.

With all our research and plans being made for the Bi Centennial of our country, few know what happened to the Mayflower that brought some of our ancestors and Pilgrim Fathers to New England.

Tradition traces the Pilgrim Ship to the little village of Jordans in the English County of Buckinghamshire some twenty miles northwest of London.

In 1624, Old Jordans Farm needed a barn. The owner had some friends in a shipyard who were breaking up a ship called the Mayflower. He thought the ships hull would make a good roof for his barn. He bought it and built the roof with the timbers. Today the timbers are little changed. One of the center beams shows a crack that had been damaged during its famous voyage and was repaired. A door on the barn bears a flower design used on the cabin doors of the Mayflower.

A portion of one of the barns timbers was removed and taken to Blaine, Washington where it was included in the United States-Canadian border monument commemorating a century of Peace between the two countries and a Tablet has been placed in the missing portion of the barns timber to record the fact.

The farm which the English Society of Friends bought in 1911, is now called Old Jordans Hostel and is used for conferences and guest accommodations.

The Barn attracts many tourists who come to the peaceful little village of Jordans to see this link between the New and Old England.

This would mean an estimated two mills for 15 years rather than the conventional 29 years thus resulting in a sizable savings in interest, officials claim.

The special election is scheduled for Apr. 21.

In other action the board:

–Approved the hiring of Gary L. Stutzman to succeed C.A. Odnark who is retiring in June after 28 years as head of the music program in the Charlevoix schools.

Wojan Upset

Islander Ed Wojan said the story made Beaver Islander look like fools.

"Don't protect the Courier," he said.

Wojan said when the Courier ran the story about the Islander's reaction it should also run a retraction.

"It's gossip and nothing else."

Wojan added that he felt the Island was in almost entire agreement about having the plane and that other people don't have a right to complain since the Island is paying for its operation and maintenance out of its own pocket.

Although not attending the meeting, Barbara Becker who runs the Shamrock Bar said the plane is worth having just so people know they can be taken to the hospital immediately during an emergency.

"The only time we have ever seen our Commissioner was last fall," she said.

"Because of our small population, we will probably never have a Commissioner from the Island.

"He probably didn't speak up about the plane at the Board meeting because he didn't know anything about it."

Independent Basketball League

Charlevoix State Bank Takes Division

By CHUCK WRIGHT

The Lake Michigan Division of the B league has this season's first champion.

Charlevoix County State Bank recorded a convincing 70-55 win over second place Jim's Clark to clinch first place. The Bankers have a three game lead with only one week of action left.

The victory also was sweet revenge. In their last encounter, State Bank lost a heartbreaker to Jim's.

Charlevoix County State Bank was led by Larry Skippergosh and Steve Martinis, their season-long leaders. Skippergosh scored all 15 of his points in the first three quarters while Martinis hit for 12 of his 14 before the fourth quarter. During this time, the Bankers built up a 10 point lead.

The Bankers were able to hold off Jim's in the fourth quarter mainly because Denny LaCroix scored on all five of his foul shots and scored seven points during the quarter.

Pat Donnely added 13 for the Bankers while Rick Richardson had 10. For Jim's, former Charlevoix High players Jerry Skippergosh and Steve McClellan led the way with 18 and 16 points respectively.

In the Lake Charlevoix Division, both leaders, Kenney's Excavating and Village Milkhouse were upset in thrilling games. The two teams are still tied for first with 10-3 marks.

The Kenney's loss was a FOUR overtime affair with John Deere. This longest game in years was a "heart-stopper" in which both teams had their chances to win. Led by Dave Moyer, Gary Stutzman and new recruit Gale Sheldon, John Deere played its most effective game of the year.

It was a brutal game in which 49 fouls were called. The game was finally won in the fourth overtime when Sheldon scored a field goal and Sheldon and Moyer canned two foul shots to offset two foul shots by Rick Van Stedum and Terry Devries.

Stutzman led all scorers with 20. Moyer followed with 18 while Sheldon added 10. For Kenney's Devries paced the attack with 19, Van Stedum contributed 15, and Max Bolser had 4.

The Village Milkhouse loss came at the hands of First State Bank. The Milkhouse coasted with a 10 point lead throughout the first half, but First State Bank really started clicking in the second. Down 30-22 at the half, First State Bank got six third quarter points from Dale Burge to lead 37-35.

Team balance enabled First State Bank to hold off the Milkhouse in the fourth quarter. Five players scored at least 3 points in the quarter.

Burge paced the offensive with 15. Roger Gowell had 13 and Sam Washburn 10. For the Milkhouse, Denny Way led all scorers with 17, Rob Castelline added 11 and Gary Sandahl 10.

In other B league games, Wojan Aluminum downed slumping Muma's 53-37 as Wojan's jumped out to an 18-0 lead and were never challenged. Don Ward scored 16, Don Smith 15, and Dean Milkulski 10. For Muma's Butch Klooster had 16 and Bill Gengle 13.

Russell's Shell clipped Andy's Tire World 63-56 as Mike Crain and Jim Potter combined with 43 points. Crain scored 23 and Potter 20. Larry Brock helped out with 14.

It was an incredible comeback as Russell's was behind by 11 points going into the fourth quarter, but outscored Andy's 23-5 to come away with the victory. For Andy's Steve and Kevin Johnnechek each had 16 while Stu Cunningham and Dick Metzger followed with 12 apiece.

The Alray Cottages - Medusa game was postponed.

In the A league, The Townhouse ran by Bob's Sunoco 74-62 after trailing for the first quarter. The win kept the Townhouse within one game of Freedman Arteraft for the A league championship.

Spook Coleman hit for 21 and Danny McKenzie chipped in 20. Joe Beaudoin and Dave Strawbridge each had 11. For Bob's, Hud Drenth rammed home 29 and Harold DeYoung found the range for 25.

Freedman's, meanwhile, was crushing the Coast Guard 94-27 as Roger Crain tied the season's high mark with 44 points. Bernie Devries added 13, Terry Blissett 12, and Denny Crain 10.

Swanson's K&D clobbered Haggards 109-44. The 109 points is the highest for a team this year. Stocky Joe Jones led the barrage with 37 big points. Bruce Meggison added 22, Doug Winnell 20, Kevin Swanson 18, and Dave Swanson 12. For Haggard's, Dave Gunther collected 20, Andy Peters 12, and Dave Fershee 10.

High scorers for the week: In the A league Roger Crain tied the season's high with 44. In the B league, Mike Crain had 23.

Rayders Drop Last Game

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Rayders closed out their 1974-75 schedule Friday night with a 79-59 loss to the Cheboygan Chiefs.

The Rayders' next appearance on the court will be against Lincoln-Alcona in the District Tournament at Onaway on Wednesday.

The Rayders ended the season with a 5-9 record in Michigan-Huron Shores League play and a 6-13 overall record.

In Friday's game the Rayders trailed throughout the game as a determined Cheboygan quintet went ahead 19-11 at the first quarter; increased the margin to 41-24 at halftime and held on 55-44 going into the last period.

Mike Streeter and Randy Faust had 11 points each for the Rayders who had a total of 25 field goals, only nine of 28 free throw attempts and 19 personal fouls. Bob Alger and Matt Doan had nine points each; Dan Greene, eight; Kevin Stokes, and Bud Klooster, five each and Kevin Martin one.

Dave Lange paced the game with 21 points for Cheboygan. Dave Lindsay had 14 and Jerry Gowell and Don Heiss, 13 each. Cheboygan had 32 field goals, 15 of 28 free throws and 23 personal fouls.

The game marked the last scheduled game, other than those of the forthcoming tourney, for seven Varsity players including Streeter, the team's top scorer with 131 in league play and 292 total making him the third top scorer in the loop; Dave Martinchek, Chuck Faust, Dan Greene, Kevin Stokes, Kevin Martin and Jim Donaldson, senior members of the squad.

Junior Varsity Loses to Cheboygan

The Charlevoix Junior Varsity team ended its season Friday with a record of eight wins and six losses in league play and a 10-5 overall record after dropping the last game of the schedule to Cheboygan 53-46.

A red hot third period in which they were outscored 20-12 cost the young Raiders their final game. They had jumped to a 15-11 first period lead and trailed by only one point, 28-24 at halftime before the young Chiefs started to find the range. The Raiders came back to outscore Cheboygan 10-8 in the final eight minutes but too late to recover from the deficit.

The locals had 17 field goals, 12 of 28 free throws and 24 personal fouls. Cheboygan had 21 field goals, 11 of 33 free throws and 19 personal fouls.

Scott Boss paced the game with 15 points followed by Dave Tollas with nine; Mike Way with eight; Brian Williams and Pat Shaefer with four each; Tom Fowler, three and Steve Herlage, one.

Don Lange had 14 points, Art Schmidt 13 and Don Newman 12 for Cheboygan.

Boys Ski Team Takes First Place

The Charlevoix high school boys ski team took first place in the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference meet at Sylvan Knob near Gaylord Wednesday.

At the same meet the Rayder Girls team came in second behind Petoskey with a combined score of 375.654. Petoskey was first with a total of 368.456.

In winning the conference title in the boys division, Charlevoix had a combined score of 321.998. Petoskey came in second with a combined score of 324.582.

In the boys division, Jeff Bergmann placed first in the giant slalom with Marc Malpell taking fourth and Lee Begrow, fifth.

In the slalom, Chris Begrow placed third and Jeff Bergmann sixth.

In the giant slalom, Camille Malpell took a second; Sandy Hufford sixth and Pam Boss 19th.

The victory marked the first major one for the boys team. This is the second year the girls have finished in second place. Both teams are coached by Bill Murray.

In the regional meet held earlier in the week the boys team took eighth place with Jeff Bergmann winning a fifth place medal, Lee Begrow ninth and Chris Begrow, tenth place medals.

In girls competition, Charlevoix placed seventh. However, no one was among the top ten winners so did not receive medals.

Coach Murray said he would be losing only four boys, Jeff Bergmann, Chris Begrow, Del Wood and Jim Marshall and two girls, Sandy Hufford and Nancy Berg, all of whom will graduate in June.

Charlevoix High School Band Earns Top Festival Rating

The Charlevoix High School Symphony Band directed by C. A. Odmark, one of 16 bands uppearing in the MSBO District 11 Qualifying Festival here Saturday, received a top I rating and a chance for state competition later in the spring.

Charlevoix's second entry in the festival, The Charlevoix Concert band appearing in Class D competition under the direction of Mr. Odmark, received a II rating.

The Symphony band played in Class B one grade above its normal Class C, and came through with the blue ribbon rating with three I's in concert play and II in sight reading. No Class A or B band received a I in sight reading because of the difficulty of the material, Odmark said.

The Charlevoix Symphony band will play in the State MSBOA Festival at Traverse City May 3 marking the first time a section of the state festival has been held outside a metropolitan area.

In making this announcement, Odmark said that this will eliminate a long and costly trip to a downstate site and overnight housing for the band and accompanying adults.

Saturday's District Festival which was hosted by the Charlevoix high school and C.A. Odmark and Gary L. Stutzman of the music department marked the final district event for Odmark who has announced his retirement in June after 29 years as head of the music department here.

Other bands and their ratings include: Class B, Rogers City, Steven Bergmann and Gaylord Symphony, Gary Waldo, II ratings; Class C Gaylord Senior, Ralph Schweigert and Onaway Senior Karan Pregitzer, II rating; East Jordan, Juhl Kaufman, III rating; Class D, Charlevoix Concert, Odmark; Petoskey Ninth grade, Dietz; Central Lake, Mike Ringgenberg, II ratings; Onaway Freshman, Pregitzer; Cheboygan Freshman, Smith, and Johannesburg-Lewiston wind ensemble, Thomas Gray, III ratings.

Middle School Goes to Grayling

The Charlevoix Middle School Eighth Grade band, directed by Gary L. Stotzman, will participate in the District 11 Junior High band and orchestra festival at Grayling Saturday.

The 86-member band is scheduled to play in the high school auditorium at Grayling at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, Stutzman said, adding that the format would be the same as for the district festival held here Saturday. Each band will play three concert numbers and one sight-reading number.

Try-outs for Chorale

A special performing group, a chorale and chamber orchestra, is being formed in Charlevoix under the direction of Ken Jewell, chorale director of the National Music Camp.

Try-outs for the chorale will be held by Jewell next Tuesday, March 4, at the Congregational church. Appointments for the try-outs may be made with Fran Tollas, phone 547-9479, or with June Zoerhof, phone 347-6497.

The new group plans to give concerts throughout the area.

P.B.B. Continues to Hit

By PEG OHLE

While local farmers who have known for months that their cattle were contaminated with polybrominate biphenyl (P.B.B.) impatiently wait for some kind of insurance settlement, another Charlevoix County dairy man has just learned that his herd is suffering from the poison.

LaVern Hart, whose farm is located in South Arm Township, had biopsies of his cattle taken after noticing a marked drop in milk production. The tests showed a contamination rate of over .3 parts of P.B.B. in the fat, but less than that amount in the milk. Three-tenths of a part in a million is the dangerous contamination standard set by the Department of Agriculture. Meat and milk testing above that standard cannot be sold.

Hart had not fed his cattle the animal feed which was mistakenly mixed with poisonous P.B.B. since last May.

Hart's problem and that of untold numbers of other farmers in the state started over a year ago when P.B.B., a fire retardant sold under the name Flame-Master, was shipped by the Michigan Chemical Company to Michigan Farm Bureau Services instead of Nutro-Master, an animal food supplement. The Flame-Master was then mixed with animal feed and distributed in various parts of the state.

Animals eating the feed lose their breeding capacity or the young are stillborn or deformed. Some animals die and cows produce less milk.

Thousands of animals contaminated with P.B.B. have been slaughtered and buried and thousands of others are quarantined awaiting destruction.

But many farmers whose animals have been slaughtered have not received any benefits from insurance companies carrying Michigan Farm Bureau or Michigan Chemical Company policies. Recently the insurance companies and Michigan Farm Bureau set up a pool of over $15.5 million to help cover claims.

State Representative Ralph Ostling and State Senator John Wellborn have both introduced bills in the state legislature calling for two percent loans to affected farmers. They are now in committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Grace of South Arm Township, whose herd of cattle was removed for slaughter early in November, are waiting for some kind of settlement covering the loss of 20 animals, cost of steam cleaning the barns and pens, and lack of breeding.

"We are on dead center," Mrs. Grace told the Courier last week. "We have not heard anything from anybody. The apathy of people bothers me most."

Mrs. Grace also said she had been told by u truck driver that the cattle auction in Traverse City would not accept any Holstein cattle because of possible P.B.B. contamination.

Paul Burks of Wilson Township has been waiting since early December for his 120 head herd to be taken for slaughter and burial. Although told twice they would be destroyed, he says that they now inay have to be re-tested.

Mrs. Carl Conant of Central Lake reports that their 130 cattle are still quarantined and that most of their calves have died. The Conants have also been told that they may have to have their cattle re-tested.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Warner of Norwood Township, whose herd of over 200 dairy cattle was buried last fall, have been advised that they are number 21 on the list for settlement. Warner learned recently that he has traces of P.B.B. in his system, and Mrs. Warner has been trying to get her physician to perform a biopsy on herself to determine if she is affected with the contamination. She has also written a letter to one uf Ralph Nader's "Raiders" detailing the problems her family has faced as a result of P.B.B.

Dale Ball, Director of the State Department of Agriculture, said he went to Washington last week to find our what research federal agencies had completed on P.B.B.

The state official said he had been misquoted by a Traverse City news media indicating his trip wns an attempt to get the U.S. Department of Agriculture to forbid the sale of any meat or milk with any trace of P.B.B.

Ball said the present level of .3 parts per million isn't a guideline based on safety, but rather a level a chemist could use to testify in court that the animal had traces of P.B.B.

Legally, Ball said there can be no traces of P.B.B. in food.

Charlevoix City Councilmen Look Favorably at Athletic Club Site

Charlevoix City Council indicated informally Monday they would probably approve a zoning request for Charlevoix's first athletic club on Stover Road.

Meeting in committee, the council discussed a request to rezone the property from Agriculture to Commercial-2 to make way for four indoor tennis courts, handball courts and a competition swimming pool.

William R. Schleman of Stream-Eze and a Charlevoix resident is seeking the zoning for the complex on Stover Road, west of Wojan Aluminum.

The properties were originally sold to Stream-Eze, Inc., an Indiana corporation, from the City of Charlevoix for slightly over $3,500 in 1953.

Sold By City

According to city records, the properties were sold to the South Bend-based firm for the purposes of locating a manufacturing plant on the property.

The properties, which includes 300 feet of Lake Charlevoix frontage, were sold on conition that the city maintained perpetual right of way for utilities and that within one year of the sale, Stream-Eze cnnstruct a building or buildings of steel or masonry construction suitable for manufacturing purposes of not less than 8,000 square feet.

Failure to do so, according to city records, would enuse the property to revert back to the city for the purchase price.

In addition, the company was required to maintain the property and keep it free of debris and junk.

At Monday night's meeting, City Attorney Don Berlage indicated the conditions of the sale had been met and questioned if the deed conditions were actually a reverter clause.

"If he plans to spend $1½ million in the city, it won't be all that bad," Councilman Ralph McRae said.

Good Use

Mayor Ed Hansen added that he thought it was a good use for the land.

It is expected council will consider rezoning another part of properties from Agriculture to Residential-4 to allow for proposed rental apartments.

While indicating they would probably go along with zoning changes, Council members said they probably would not allow several of the variances that are being asked for.

City Assessor's records show the property adjacent to Wojan Aluminum assessed for $19,000, while another portion between that parcel and the C & O Railroad tracks on the tax rolls for $6,500. The remaining portiun on Lake Charlevoix is shown at $25,000.

Former Saw Mill

If council approves the change, they indicated it would probably grant a conditional rezoning for the Athletic Club that would revert back to its original zoning status if not constructed within a time specified by city fathers.

In other discussion, council:

–Referred the matter of a new city ordinance to handle the city's unsightly buildings back to the city attorney for furtlier investigatinn to see whether or not the state building code would cover the removal of such buildings.

–Discussed adding Taylor and Airport Roads to the city's street system.

–Heard a request to establish an art and handicraft store at the corner of Bridge and Huribut.

And Still No Wind

He Huffed and Puffed...

Only two days after one of the fiercest blizzards this year paralyzed portions of the Upper Peninsula, Dan Farmer of Charlevoix couldn't find enough wind to sail with.

The driving winds had pushed the snow as far south as Grand Rapids, causing drifts up to two and three feet and closing Charlevoix Public Schools for two days.

While there was no local damage reported, average wind speed was 29 miles an hour with gusts averaging 40 in some portions of the state, according to the National Weather Service.

The storm, labeled in advance as "dangerous," pelted the state with a driving torrent of snow. More than ¼ inches fell at Marquette in 24 hours, leaving it with 28 inches on the ground, deepest in the nation except for mountain areas.

It still didn't help Farmer, an Electrician at American Mold, try to sail during his three-week vacation. Thursday was supposed to have some of the best ice conditions so far this year.

While residents in Sault Ste. Marie were still trying to dig out of the 21 inches of snow that covered them, farmer stood and watched his 67 sq. feet of white sail droop on the mast for lack of wind.

The Charlevoix resident had been hoping to show his father and two sons the thrill of quickly gliding across the ice.

All he needed was a wind uf 15 miles an hour, but he couldn't get even that after two earlier days of not being able to stay on his feet in downtown Charlevoix because of the high gusts.

"You've got to have a good hard surface," he said about the ice conditions, while standing next to his boat near Ferry Avenue Beach.

Next to his feet, was the long slender red sailboat with its two extended runners holding it upright.

The one-man vessel commands a 17-foot mast and was made by Farmer two years ago as an evening hobby project.

Now he is one of a dozen around the area who streak across the slick Ice during the end of February and early March sailing season.

These months, he says, are best because the snow has blown off and the ice partially melts during the day and freezes again in the evening.

It doesn't take much to learn how to sail–all one needs is experience.

"When I first started, my front runner came off," he said.

"It was my own fault and after that I learned quick."

Charlevoix Hosts Two Big Weekend Outings

Two big outdnor events are planned for next Sunday in Charlevoix.

One is the annual Charlevoix Lions Club Winter Outing and the other is the Charlevoix Recreation Department's first Crnss Country Ski Rendezvous. The public is invited to both of them.

The Lions Club Outing will feature snowmobile races, including sprint races according to age and class, and a powder puff race. There will also be cross country skiing and hockey.

Prizes and trophies will-be awarded in all events, and a color television set and snownobile suit will be given as door prizes.

Refreshments will consist of hot dogs, hamburgs, Don Meggison's pasties and Sam Kauffman's bean soup.

The Outing strarts at noon at the Ferry Avenue Beach, and it's all free except the food.

The Recreation Department's Ski Rendezvnus will take place on marked trails near Charlevoix. Maps of the trail will be sent to those who register through the Recreation Department. There will be a charge of $2 per person for the Rendezvous, which includes a chili luncheon.

The lunch will be served at 2 p.m. on the trail, as indicated on the registration map.

The event is designed so that people of all ages can participate and have fun, according to Curt Kipke of the Recreation Department. "We hope to have people from all over Michigan."

Portside Sports and the Charlevoix Courier are co-sponsoring the Ski Rendezvous with the Recreation Department.

Councilman Ralph McRae Won't Say He's Mayor Until April Election

Councilman Ralph McRae won't come out and say he'll be Charlevoix's next mayor even though he took the city primary two weeks ago.

The Charlevoix construction company owner says he'll wait until the city's spring election is over with.

The political newcomer upset incumbent Mayor Edward P. Hansen by a vote of 440 to 396 in the Republican primary, but he says it still isn't locked up.

While no one ran in the Democrat slot, there is speculation by some that Hansen who has served as Charlevoix's mayor for nearly three years will run as a sticker candidate in the April 7 election.

McRae, who has served as councilman for less than a year, was able to pull his surprise strength at the polls from some 101 absentee voter ballots. Hansen ont-polled him in two of the city's three wards.

The Charlevoix Councilman credits his victory to a heavy newspaper and radio campaign, some 1,500 letters, over 80 personal telephone calls and a work force of nearly 20 women.

"Woman power is much more effective than man power," he said about his campaign workers.

"I think I surprised a lot of people.

"It simply comes from work."

In an interview at the Courier office, McRae fielded a variety of questions regarding his primary victury and what Charlevoix residents could expect if he takes the general election.

"I'm going to get more people involved in government," he said.

"Council isn't enough, they don't have all the know-how to cope with problems.

"They don't have all the answers."

McRae won't say how old he is other than that he is in his early sixties. He believes age should make no difference.

"I heard on the radio that age doesn't make any difference," he said.

"I believe that."

The Charlevoix City Councilman says he knows a lot of people in the community who could be doing the same thing. McRae, who faces retirement himself in the next few years, can't imagine what retired people do if they're not active in their community.

"They tave a lot of experience," he said.

McRae says he will stick to his original platform and attempt to learn as much as he can about the condition of the city. One of his prime targets will be getting into the city's electrical department.

"If it is in order, I want to be the first to know about it," he continued.

Throughout the year, several have complained that the city-owned system has not been updated and managed efficiently.

He said he's also interested in securing more grants for the city.

"We're missing out on the CETA (Comprehensive Employment nnd Training Act) because people downtown didn't cooperate."

McRae said the city should attempt to get all they can, especially more funds for recreation.

"Of course this charter thing is important, too," he said.

"We need someone else to do some of the work."

The councilmnn said someone is needed to mail letters and get more information out about the need to become a home-rule city.

Charlevoix presently operates under the State's Fourth Class City Act.

When asked whether his lack of experience in city government would be a detriment to his ability, he said: "Who has experience to be a mayor, except a mayor."

McRae said that's why a city has a manager–to handle the day-to-day activities, while the mnyor and council point out the general direction to go.

"I don't know what Mayor Hansen did, but I think I'm smart enough to know right from wrong."

He also said there is a need for some long range planning and without it, he fears what will happen in Charlevoix.

McRae said the city could continue to grow as long as it was controlled growth.

The Charlevoix resident said he was also looking for the establishment of groups like the League of Women Voters to help distribute information and keep the city residents informed of issues.

Campaign Starts

The annual Easter Seal campaign has been launched to raise funds to aid crippled children and adults in Charlevoix county, Mrs. Arthur Thompson of East Jordan, president of the Charlevoix county Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., has announced.

More than 2,000 letters bearing the colorful stamps were delivered to homes in the county last Friday and Saturday, Mrs. Thompson said.

The goal for this year's campaign is $2,500, an increase of $500 over the amount received in 1974 Mrs. Thompson reported.

Funds last year were used to purchase supplies for a loan closet that loans hospital beds, wheel chairs, commodes, hoists and other sick-room equipment to those who need it, Mrs. Thompson said more than 5,000 hours of loans had been recorded.

The society recently underwrote the cost of taking 157 crippled children and adults to the Shrine Circus in Grand Rapids. While Emmet county Easter Seal Society financed the cost of taking the children from the Conway and Ottawa schools, the Charlevoix County Society financed the trip for those in Charlevoix County.

Tickets to the circus are provided by Shriners.

Contributions to the Special Olympics, the Trainable School at Ironton, inedication funds raised in the county are used in the county to assist crippled children and adults.

A MONEY MESSAGE FROM THE PEOPLE AT SAGINAW SAVINGS...

Why it can pay you to choose Now from our half-a-dozen "highest interest" savings plans.

If you follow the financial news you know that interest rates can drop. Just as the prices of stocks, gold, or other investment vehicles can drop.

But when you deposit funds in one of our Savings Certificates the interest rate specified is guaranteed for the full length of the certificate — from one year to a full six years. And you are also guaranteed, by insurance, that every dollar you deposit — up to $40,000 will be returned to you.

So this could be a good time to take advantage of our guaranteed rates — the highest available on insured savings. And it could also be a good time to move money from lower interest rate accounts elsewhere into a Saginaw Savings "high rate" regular passbook account which permits complete flexibility as to deposits and withdrawals with insured safety.

A New Lease on Life

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

This is the story of one of the boats that Ted built.

First there's the wooden sail boat, AH SO, that Bill and Janet Paige bought from Bob Hamilton, eight years ago.

Then there's the mold that Bob and five others made under Ted's direction, last month made from the hull of the boat that the Paiges bought.

Then there's the fiberglass hull made in the mold, made from the hull of the wooden boat, which is now u "plug"; that the Paiges bought.

From these there'll be a new 35-foot ketch, AH SO II, that the Paiges will launch in May.

In a fiberglass shell, that's the history of one of the original Mariner 35's and the first of its progeny – a fiberglass Mariner 35, under way at C.T. "Ted" McCutcheon's Boat Works in Charlevoix.

Some eight years ago Bob Hamilton sold the Paiges, of Midland, the first Mariner ketch Hamilton had brought to Charlevoix. It was a 35 feet long, wooden hull, sail boat, made in Japan by Far East Boat Company, designed by William Garden of British Columbia.

The Mariner design became immensely popular and several Mariners of different lengths are still sparking the imaginations of sailors and landlubbers as they sail in and out of Round Lake.

Hamilton sold about 25 Mariners, from 30 to 40 feet long, out of his boat yard, Hamilton & Sons, now the site of Le Havre condominium. He sold all the Mariners sailing the Great Lakes, of which some 20 are still around.

Last summer, the Paiges, who live on their boat each sailing season, decided she needed considerable wood work. Bill Paige and a crew at Irish's Boat Shop began tearing out the boards, until the Paiges decided the process was more than they could handle.

Next, they considered fiberglassing over the hull, an alternative quickly rejected, because existing rot would spread under the fiberglass.

McCutcheon and the Paiges determined the best solution to their problem, since the Paiges wanted to continue sailing a Mariner 35, which are no longer being made, was to create a fiberglass replica of AH SO.

The original AH SO was hauled out of the water and turned upside down at the public parking lot adjacent to Irish's. Then it was moved to McCutcheon's where the hull was sawed lengthwise in half.

These two halves served as a "plug" around which a fiberglass mold was constructed, also in two halves. Once the mold was formed the two halves of the AHSO's original hull were removed, and now sit upside down outside McCutcheon's buildings.

The next step was to bolt the two halves of the mold together, right side up, thus forming the hull shape of a Mariner 35, inside of which the new hull is being formed, also in fiberglass.

In order to remove both the mold from the original hull, "plug", and the new hull from the mold, each is polished and waxed so that the fiberglass can be easily broken away.

The process of making the mold and breaking it away from the plug took six men a month. The next step, creating the new hull inside the mold, McCutcheon predicts will take about a week and a half.

Any subsequent hulls only require the second part of the process – building the hull inside the mold. McCutcheon says that should take a week.

McCutcheon will store the mold, at his shop. Both McCutcheon and the Paiges, who will maintain ownership of the mold, hope to stimulate interest in creating more fiberglass Mariner 35s. As of now, none exist, and according to Bob Hamilton, no Mariners are being built elsewhere.

Once the hull is complete McCutcheon's shop will build a plywood deck and cabin for AH SO II. The new plywood deck and cabin will also serve as "plugs" from which molds will be made so that future Mariner 35s will be all fiberglass.

"This is a great savings for the Paiges," McCutcheon explains. "They can use all the sails and rigging from the original boat.

"They will even put the original AH SO's keel, 5,400 lbs., on the new boat.

McCutcheon estimates, "A new Mariner 35 completely built and ready to sail, would cost somewhere between $30,000 and $35,000. However, one of the advantages we offer is we can build a boat just as far as the buyer wants. Some may want just a hull and finish it themselves. Other may want the whole boat, sails and all. So a person can save a lot, depending on how much work he wants to do himself."

Gas masked workers climb in and out of the mold, measuring fiberglass cloth and disappearing back into the depths of the boat to lay it on.

Two different types of fiberglass cloth are used, a plain cloth and a fabricated cloth, which has more strength. The thickness of the fiberglass hull will vary from 3/8 inch at the top of the hull to an inch around the keel, where additional strength is important.

McCutcheon pointed out, "Fiberglass has the same tensil strength as steel. The crucial factor in building a fiberglass boat is good resin saturation and to get all the air bubbles out of it."

For McCutcheon, the process is not new, only the size and design of the Mariner 35 are unique.

The Elk 30, a sail boat of which McCutcheon is the exclusive builder, began the same way – wood hull to plug the mold to new fiberglass hull. He has built 12 fiberglass Elk 30s. He has also produced a fiberglass version of a 17 square meter boat (a 25-foot long sloop), of which he built 25 versions.

The happy irony which brings the story full circle, from Bob Hamilton's sale of AH SO to the Paiges, to the creations of AH SO II, is that Hamilton is working with the building crew, under the direction of foreman Tom Meggison, learning, and hoping to continue help creating the boat for which he has continuing enthusiasm.

AH SO was the first Mariner Hamilton owned. He sailed and chartered her for a year before selling her.

"WE Christened AH SO at the end of Hamilton & Sons docks in 1968, with a bottle of champagne. And I'm confident that AH SO II will be a well-built boat. Breaking champagne on her bow will present no problems," Hamilton laughed.

Ted McCutcheon examines boat.

Chorale Group Holding Special Audition

A new professional singing organization is to be formed that will recruit its members from the Northern part of the Lower Peninsula.

The Choral group will be composed of singers chosen through audition, and will be a select group capable of performing the most challenging choral compositions.

Qualifications for membership will be based on voice quality and musicianship.

All men and women interested in auditioning should be prepared to perform a solo of his or her choice and read at sight a passage chosen by the conductor.

In order to audition on March 9 at the Charlevoix Congregational Church, you must contact either Mrs. Fran Tollas in Charlevoix (547-9479) or Mrs. June Zoerhof (347-6497).

The Chorale will be conducted by Dr. Kenneth Jewell who is currently conductor of the Kenneth Jewell Chorale of Detroit, Michigan and Director of Choral Activities at the Interlochen Arts Academy, Interlochen, Michigan.

It's Time to Complain About Taxes

Charlevoix County residents will have an opportunity to protest their real estate evaluations when the Boards of Review of the townships and cities meet next month.

The Charlevoix City and East Jordan Boards of Review will meet March 10, 11, 12 and 13 in the City Hall in each city. The Boyne City Board of Review will meet March 19 and 20 in Boyne City Hall.

All township Boards of Review will meet in the township halls for six hours each on March 10 and 11, with the exact hours set by the individual township.

Members of each Board of Review are appointed by township boards or city councils. Their duties are to hear any complaints and to answer questions from any taxpayer in their political unit. They also help taxpayers file petitions for reassessment with the State Tax Commission if the taxpayer is not satisfied with information given him by the Board of Review.

George Light, Sr., who served on the Norwood Township Board of Review for approximately 30 years, says that sometimes they can help a complaining taxpayer and sometimes they can't. "We have power over the assessor but unless we find a big mistake we don't over-rule him," Light said.

Some taxpayers go to the Board of Review to compare their taxes with those of their neighbors, according to Light.

"If a taxpayer is really upset and we can't help him we advise him to go to the State Tax Commission for reassessment. However in all my years I remember only one or two cases where the Commission made changes, and these were for $500 or less."

As an example of how land evaluations in the area have increased the last few years, Light said that when he started on the Board of Review, all Norwood Township property was valued at about $235,000. Now the value is over $4 million.

Marvin Sugden, who has served on the Charlevoix Township Board for some time, says that the Board of Review spends much time listing the valuation of each piece of property in the township. These figures are then sent to the state.

"Some years we have several protests and other years none," Sugden says. He points out that land evaluations are raised when one piece of property in an area sells at an inflated price. It is then assumed that all nearby property is worth as much as that which was sold.

Joan Blanchard, County Equalization Director, will hold a meeting for all members of Boards of Review in the county this Friday at 1 o'clock in the County Courtroom to explain county equalization.

Spring is Here! Well Almost

Seed catalogs, those colorful harbingers of spring, have been coming in the mails lately and garden seeds are appearing in stores around town.

Seed catalogs are a daydreamer's delight in mid-winter, even for those whose "gardens" consist of a collection of African violets, hut seeds are for real.

It's fun to pick up each individual packet and read about when they should be planted, how much sun they need and what yield can be expected. Then it's fun to put them in a handy drawer so they can be checked with the calendar frequently.

Of course, many seeds can be planted in peat blocks or flats for an early start so the waiting period isn't so long.

If you didn't plot this year's garden after cleaning up after last year's planting, it's a good time to do that, and it makes gardening time seem nearer.

Racks of vegetable and flower seeds are now for sale along Bridge Street at Harbor Hardware, Staley's Hardware and Dahlquist's. They will soon be available at Olesen's, Edwards IGA and Frank's Flowers. Sears Roebuck sells them through their catalog store.

Rumors are that this summer, like last summer, will be a big year for home gardens. This is borne out by the rush of seed orders Sears has received from their catalog advertisements.

Robert Elliot of Frank's Flowers says that they usually begin selling garden plants such as tomatoes, peppers and cabbage about the middle of May, and that most of them are sold between June 1 and 15.

So you won't be able to do anything about plants for a while.

Home gardens lead to thoughts of canning, and canning leads to thoughts of canning jars and lids.

Last year there was a severe shortage, and it appears there might be this year also.

Most sellers of these items have placed their orders for this year, and some have received at least part of their order. Olesen's has already sold a large supply, still have some in stock, and expect more within the coming weeks. Edwards also has a supply at the present time.

A Helpful Citizen

Charlevoix could look like a desert in the next 10 years.

Sound impossible?

Not at all, says John Campbell, a Charlevoix Landseape arehitect at a reeent eity eouneil meeting.

His eoneern that many of Charlevoix's trees are reaching maturity and will not live another 10 years is a eoneern we share.

Charlevoix is fortunate to have so many green trees within its eorporate limit and it is imperative we keep it that way.

One of the major problems Charlevoix apparently faees is with the type of trees that presently border our city streets.

Campbell says the sugar Maple, whieh has stood for so many years, eannot take the salt we use to melt the iee and snow.

As a result, the trees are slowly dying off and should be replaeed with a better speeies.

While this poses a problem to local Kiwanians who take advantage of trees for their annual Maple syrup harvest, we agree with Campbell that another species should be found.

Campbell also told eouneil that the eity needs to establish a system of earing for existing trees so we ean retain the ones we have.

His suggestion is simple and should not eost taxpayers very mueh money.

Campbell says the eity eould use its present work foree during slower times of the year, to trim, replaee and eare for the trees under management program.

He said it won't require any special management experts, just some simple training of our eity erews.

We appreciate the interest Campbell has taken in the eity in the past, spending hundreds of hours on the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission.

The information he has given our eity fathers is just another demonstration of his generosity to us.

He is one of many Charlevoixans who have made Charlevoix the place it is and will continue to be for many years to eome.

His help and suggestions should be taken very seriously by City Council to ensure Charlevoix the Beautiful remains just what the name implies.

Rails: Who Cares

The United States Railroad Assoeiation preliminary plan for railroad abandonment in the Midwest made public last week, hardly eomes as good news,

In faet for Miehigan, the news is disasterous.

If the proposed reorganization plan of bankrupt railroads is approved by Congress, we stand to lose more than the public is aware of at this time.

Charlevoix County alone will lose its Penn Central service, while the Upper Peninsula stands to lose its rail eonneetion to the Lower Peninsula.

We ean understand that people are getting tired of hearing about railroads and their potential abandonment, but not enough ean be said.

Fairly soon, there will be little to be said.

If residents thought they were paying high prices now, we shutter to think what will happen onee rail serviee is no longer available to handle long distanee bulk hauls and we have to depend entirely on the trueking industry.

We ean safely assume priees will skyrocket faster than in the past.

Worse yet, what happens if our eurrent petroleum priees continue to elimb and the onee plentiful product evaporates?

In light of eurrent eeonomie times, we think it would be only a fool's dream that we ean depend only on one mode of transportation without other transportation systems available.

Gov. William G. Milliken in his Miehigan State of the State Message said he would "fight vigorously against wholesale abandonments sinee Miehigan agrieulture is dependent on the eontinuation of adequate, efficient serviee."

We are still looking for that fight. We are also looking to Congressman Philip E. Ruppe for some national leadership.

Time is running out and we are eoneerned that when it runs out we will be too late.

Hearings on the federal plan will take plaee in Traverse City on Mareh 24, 25 and 26.

We eneourage everyone to testify. If you are a rail user, we will especially look for your testimony.

This will be one of the last few times the public ean testify on the proposal before it goes to Congress, and it shouldn't be slighted.

Thank-you

Many Helped Plane

"The Beaver," the evaeuation plane, is now in its hanger at the Beaver Island Airport. The move was made on Sunday afternoon, February 16, 1975. That there is a hanger at all is a credit to many people who spent hours on this project. Robert Gillespie, the Airport Manager, did much to coordinate the efforts of the workers, as well as acting the liaison person between the Island and the Miehigan Aeronautics Commission. He also put in hours of work in the actual construction of the building. Ed and Connie Wojan gave a sizable portion of Ed's winnings from the State Lottery for the purchase of materials. Wojan Construction drew up the speeifications, located the needed materials and provided them to the project at cost. The specifications were approved by Zak Gerganoff. When the supplies arrived, many of the men on the Island spent hours of their "spare time" in constructing the hanger. And, do not forget the women who arranged for and cooked the food that was taken out to the Airport for the workers while the construction was going on!.

Beaver Island is most fortunate, indeed, to have three pilots qualified to fly "The Beaver." Their interest in being of service by being available to fly at a moment's notice and the constant maintenance of the plane can not be commended too highly..

It should be known what all of these people have done and are doing. It should be understood that none of this would have been possible except as these persons have given of themselves.

Thanks for Helping

"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

Some people say that you can't teach an old dog new tricks. Untrue! You're never too old to learn – especially when it eomes to clearing up childhood misconceptions.

From younger days on, there are some things that you have "always understood" and, as such, were never questioned. This also includes certain words in your vocabulary.

For many years and through my college education, I thought I knew the definition of the word "infamous". It's a word that is used to describe some event or something so famous that it has become commonplace, right? Wrong!

Now, I have found out through the usual manner of error and experience, the real definition. I only hope the damage hasn't been too great.

Last week in my column, I described Paul Revere's "infamous ride". Perhaps the Tories might consider it so, but certainly not the Revolutionaries or the American people.

Since then, I have born the brunt of many jests from my friends and fellow co-workers, and must now apologize to the public.

I formally submit this article as a public retraction of the word "infamous" and would like to substitute the phrase "famous ride" in its place. I promise I will be more careful in the selection of my words in future articles.

I would especially like to apologize to Paul Revere and impress upon him that I meant no real harm and would appreciate eancellation of any thoughts about sueing me for libel!

"It's funny how boring a person is when you want him to listen."

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

A friend in Charlevoix who has been a life-long Republican made an interesting observation about former President Franklin D. Roosevelt the other day.

Contrary to the traditional Republican contention that FDR shoved the nation along the road to ruin with his socialistic programs, our friend maintains that Roosevelt was the best friend the American monied class ever had.

"During the Depression years of the 1930's, the country was ripe for a socialist revolution," our friend points out. "Roosevelt was able to postpone it with his rudimentary social legislation – including Social Security. He did just enough to put off an upheaval which would have stripped the upper crust of its wealth and power."

A very interesting viewpoint — and one which would explain to us curmudgeons why the well-heeled and high-families FDR should have dabbled in social legislation at all. By everything that's holy, FDR should have been on the other side of the fence, championing the cause of laissez-faire and individual responsibility.

In other words, my friend believes FDR was a Republican posing as a Democrat in order to protect the rich, the well-born and the able from the wrath of the rabble. If he is right, FDR certainly is one of the most badly misunderstood men in history. Furthermore, we are going to have to look at Social Security more as a "sop to the dog" than as a constructive social welfare program.

Poor old Social Security is under fire from all quarters nowadays. One day you read that the whole program is going broke and that the days of Social Security are numbered. Next we are told that Social Security is alive and well, a shining beacon waiting for us at the end of our days of toil like a pot of gold.

The truth of the matter is that Social Security is not all it's cracked up to be; but it's better than nothing.

The basic problem with Social Security is that it can and will become a meaningless dole unless provision is made to keep payments abreast of the inflated cost-of-living. With the purchasing power of the dollar on the skids, only the most frugal today can make ends meet on Social Security alone.

It is no secret that all of the monies paid into Social Security over the years are practically depleted and that the program today couldn't operate without daily infusions of tax dollars. If the money had been invested properly it might be a different story, but government is a notoriously poor money handler.

Compileating the Social Security picture is the fact we are living longer than we are supposed to, making unexpected demands on the program. And liberals over the years have expanded Social Security to include payments to disabled contributors, and the survivors of deceased contributors. Social Security has become a shelter for literally millions of people who certainly wouldn't have been eligible under the original provisions promulgated by FDR.

Don't get me wrong. I think our liberalized Social Security is a beautiful thing. No nation as rich as the United States should ignore the sufferings of the poor and unfortunate.

The main problem appears to be arbitrary cut-off on wages falling under the Social Security tax. Today it is something like $13,000. Everything you make over $13,000 is exempt from Social Security taxes. This means that the poor fellow at the lower end of the income scale pays a greater proportion of his salary in Social Security than does a fellow at the top of the scale.

Broadening the base would make it easier for all of us to pay our SS taxes without hardship.

Social Security might have started out as a "sop to the dog," but it has turned into a full-course dinner and the costs are starting to hurt.

Citizen Urges Everyone to Write

To the Editor:

On February 4, Governor Carey of the State of New York stated that he had, in effect, imposed a moratorium on the construction of nuclear plants in his state until he was convinced they were safe and that their radioactive wastes could be disposed of safely.

I would urge every citizen to write Governor Milliken to do the same in this state. In addition, cite the extraordinary economic loss of power to the ratepayers of this state from our nuclear program and the impending shortfalls of power that we can expect as a result.

By using available capital for unreliable, non-productive nuclear facilities, both Consumers Power Company and Detroit Edison have closed out their options for reliable coal plants which would have provided electricity. This has, in turn, destroyed the potential for jobs in the state of Michigan. It has left our state in an inferior position in respect for available energy compared to those states where utilities are using clean coal technology for power.

Instead of waiting for utilities to solve their energy problems, various states and municipalities are taking creative action in solving them themselves. The Energy Director of the State of Maine is contemplating establishing a corporation to develop the use of its vast tracts of timber and forest waste products for producing methanol. This product can be used as a fuel in automobiles to reduce the amount of gasoline needed. A ten percent mixture can be used in cars without any alterations.

The city of Seattle is also expecting to build a plant to convert municipal wastes into either methanol for fuel or ammonia, which can be used to make fertilizer which is in short supply. Mayor Wes Uhlman of Seattle, says he expects EPA will condemn land fill as a means of garbage disposal in five years.

The city of Santa Clara is establishing a municipal, non-profit solar energy utility to provide solar heating and cooling of buildings at cost with funds raised by municipal bonds. San Diego County will convert 200 tons of municipal waste a day into synthetic fuel oil using a new process developed in Japan.

In a recent talk in Bay City, A.H. Aymond, Chairman of the Board of Consumers Power Company, threatened ratepayers with blackouts if they did not continue to support the utility's energy policies in nuclear development. Perhaps it is time for citizens of this area and all of Michigan to begin to think in terms of energy solutions for their own communities or regions.

We need a productive return on our energy investments. We need to get people back to work and to solve our energy problems. No amount of handwringing, calling for new rate increases and tax money from Washington will produce power and solve the problems of an inherently dangerous, costly and unreliable technology in the hands of inflexible and unimaginative management control.

If it Fitz — Baby, light my fire

By JIM FITZGERALD

It was a snowed-in Sunday. One of those days when a poet looks out the window and sees the meaning of life in a snowflake. One of those days when people of good character yearn to take long strides and deep breaths in the woods.

The sun bounced off the snow and sparkled through the window, dancing dazzingly into every corner of the room. I could not help but say to my wife:

"For God's sake close the drapes. I'm trying to watch TV."

"A fire would be nice," she said.

That's what she always says on snowed-in Sundays when the lousy weather prevents my escape.

Years ago we had a smaller home with a fireplace in the living room but we never had a fire in it because I never had a match. Then we had a couple of more kids and it was deemed necessary to add a second bathroom as I was sick of going 2 blocks to the nearest gas stotion in my bathrobe.

"As long as we're adding a bathroom we might as well add a family room and 2 bedrooms," my wife said. She said it to the builder while I was at the gas station. Thus the $10,000 deal was made while I was turning the crank on a paper towel dispenser and nothing was coming out. It was an omen.

A few weeks later I returned from an inquisition with my friendly banker who would soon have the legal right to keep me waiting outside the new bathroom for 20 years. My wife was pondering the plans for the family room.

"A fireplace would look nice at the east end of the room," she said.

"So would Elizabeth Taylor," I said with my customary wit. This was before she started dating used car salesmen, of course.

My opposition resulted in a lot of impassioned pleading, tears and deep sobs. All mine. We soon had 2 fireplaces.

"Now I suppose you want a fire," I said.

"Look in the backyard," she said.

"Which way is it?" I asked.

She guided me to the site of a recent disaster. "Did Abe Lincoln's boyhood home collapse against our porch?" I asked.

This was my introduction to a pile of wood. People sneak out of forests during the day and dump these piles in the yards of innocent breadwinners who are off tending the wheels of commerce, little suspecting what evil lurks in the hearts and minds of wives and woodchoppers (unless they've read Lady Chatterly's Lover).

Since that awful day there have been 16 billion piles of wood burned in our fireplaces. My only respite from fire duty is a couple of days in July and when we run out of wood before my wife can yell TIMBER! to the woodchopper.

That's why I wasn't worried this particular snowed-in Sunday. A few weeks earlier I had put 2 empty cardboard cartons at the end of the woodpile and covered them with snow. She thought there was wood under the snow but I knew better, heh, heh, heh.

"Sorry, no fire today," I said, "we are out of wood."

"There is plenty of wood and if you ever took any interest in your yard, you'd know it," she said. "The Detroit Edison cut down those 2 dead trees yesterday and cut up the wood for you. There are 2 big piles out there."

This was the same week Edison asked for another rate hike.

The meaning of life, as seen in a snowflake, is that husbands never make it Onward and Upwnrd because they melt too fast.

Meet Charlevoix

...Meet Michele Janisse

Michele Janisse was reeently appointed County Historian to coordinate aetivities for eelebration of the American Revolution Bieentennial.

Miss Janisse is a reeent graduate of the University of Michigan with a major in anthropology. She has partieipated in an arcbeological survey of South Manitou Island and has two years' experience in museum techniques.

This week she tells the Courier what the Bieentenoial is all about and how some of the local communities are planning to celebrate it.

COURIER: What is the purpose of the American Revolution Bicentennial celebration?

JANISSE: To revive the national spirit and celebrate our 200th birthday in preparation for the third century. One theme is Heritage 76 in which we will collect and record our history from 1976 to the present. We will also arrange to preserve our local artifacts and history before they are destroyed. Horizons '76, another part of the celebration, is oriented toward local community improvement programs such as establishing parks and cultural art centers and planting trees. The Festival is the actual celebration after the hard work is done.

COURIER: Where is the money for these projects coming from?

JANISSE: There is federal, regional and state funding. For instance, the state of Michigan has appropriated $400,000 for the purpose. It is a multi-million dollar undertaking. Most of the money is granted on a matching dollar basis.

COURIER: How does a community apply for these funds?

JANISSE: They set up their program, then present the plans first to the state, then to the regional and finally to the national committee.

COURIER: Have any county communities applied for funds?

JANISSE: Yes, Chandler Township has already received $500 and Boyne Falls is waiting to hear about theirs.

COURIER: What are some of the projects being planned by local communities?

JANISSE: Among other things, Chandler Township people are going to make a "history" quilt depicting such things as old land contracts and names of early settlers. Boyne Falls recently had an "All you can eat" dinner and the $315.52 profit from that, will go toward publishing an historical pamphlet. They also plan on making a slide tape using the voices of "old timers" to narrate it. Another Boyne Falls project is the reenactment of the Battle of Concord on the bridge in Boyne Falls. Boyne City is working on the possible development of a park including baseball diamonds, tennis courts and nature trails. Charlevoix would like to establish a museum to house all the old artifacts and records pertaining to the city. Beaver Island hopes to be able to restore their old Mormon buildings and collect their historic documents for preservation.

COURIER: How are you working with these communities in setting up their plans?

JANISSE: I have been attending meetings of historical societies and other groups who are interested in promoting the Bicentennial. I help them with ideas and tell them how to go about getting funding. I also do research and help in other ways. We need the help of all civic, professional, business and women's groups in each community as well as the schools, Scouts and others.

COURIER: How can you be reached by persons wanting to contact you?

JANISSE: My office is in the County Building and my telephone number is 547-6661.

Clinic Helps Aged

Forty-one area senior citizens recently had their blood pressures taken free of charge by District Health Department nurses.

The tests were administered by Jeanne Miles and Sue Presnell through a program sponsored by the County Commission on Aging. Similar tests were also given in Boyne City and East Jordan.

The next blood pressure screening in Charlevoix is scheduled for Monday, March 17, between 2:30 and 4:30 p.m. at the High School cafeteria, following the regular luncheon served by the Commission on Aging. However, those not desiring lunch may arrive at any time between 2:30 and 4:30.

Each person who has his blood pressure taken fills in a card indicating whether or not he has elevated blood pressure and if so what medication he is taking for it. If desired, results of the blood pressure screening is sent to the patient's personal physician.

Charlevoix Rayders Lose by 1

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Rayders, playing their finest game of the 1974-75 season, went down to a 67-66 defeat at the hands of the Boyne City Ramblers who scored the winning bucket after six tries in the final seconds of the District tournament at Onaway Saturday night.

Trailing by five points as the game went into the final 60 seconds, Bob Alger scored a bucket to trim the Rambler lead to 65-62. Boyne City took the rebound only to have the ball stolen by Bob Alger who scored a quick basket to make the score 65-64. After a scramble under the Boyne City basket that resulted in a jump ball, Charlevoix took the ball and went to score on a lay-up by Chuck Faust to put the Rayders ahead 66-65.

Boyne City then took the ball down the floor and, after six tries, Ken Gahn finally hit with the winning basket as time ran out. Gahn had entered the game in the third period and scored only four points in the game.

Overcoming a Boyne City height advantage, Charlevoix jumped to a 17-15 first period lead after going ahead as much as five points in the period as Alger led the attack with four field goals. Mike Streeter scored three points and Dan Greene, Matt Doan and Chuck Faust one bucket apiece.

As the game went into the second period Faust and Streeter chipped in three buckets apiece, Alger contributed a basket and two free throws and Doan one field goal to head the Ramblers 18-15 at halftime.

As the second half opened, the Rayders went cold, scoring only 11 points to 21 for the Ramblers to trail 51-46 as the period ended. Streeter had three buckets, Greene three points and Bud Kloester a single bucket as the Ramblers played their best quarter.

Going into the final eight minutes, the Ramblers went ahead by as much as 10 points before the Rayders whittled the advantage and went ahead 66-65 in the final seconds only to lose at the final horn.

Streeter had scored three field goals. Alger two field goals and a free throw, Greene and Faust, two charity shots and a field goal each and Doan a single free throw.

Charlevoix had 28 field goals, 10 of 15 free throws and attracted 13 personal fouls.

Mike Streeter, third among Michigan-Huron Shores scorers with 292 points in regular play, had 21 points for the game. He was followed by Alger with 17, Faust with 12, Greene with nine, Doan with five and Kloester with two.

Scott Upton, second among league scorers with 133 in loop play, had 34 for the game.

Boyne City will advance to regional play against Pine River at Grayling Wednesday.

Two Basketball Play-offs This Week

By CHUCK WRIGHT

The regular season is over but two of the three divisions in the Charlevoix Independent League still do not have a champion. Two play-off games will be held this week to break the ties.

In the A league, the Town House upended Freedman Arteraft 73-59 in a do or die game. If Freedman's had won, the A league championship would have been theirs.

Town House beat Freedman's at its own game - using the fast break. Repeatedly, Joe Beaudoin and Spook Coleman would get a rebound and throw downcourt to the breaking Danny McKenzie and Stan Martin for two easy points.

After a blistering first quarter when both teams shot extremely well, the Town House outscored Freedman's 24-10 to pull away 46-30 at the half. Freedman's never seriously threatened that lead.

Coleman had 18 for the Town House while McKenzie popped in 26 and Beaudoin 12. For Freedman's, Bernie Ward kept them in the game with 21. Mike Bade added 12.

The Lake Charlevoix division of the B league is also tied after Kenney's Excavating and Village Milkhouse both managed to win their last games.

Village Milkhouse defeated Wojan Aluminum 71-67 in a tense overtime struggle. Dale Boss, Gary Novotny and Denny Way scored all but three points for the Milkhouse. Foul shots won the game for the Milkhouse, however, as they hit for 6 of 8 during the overtime period.

Novotny had 28, Boss and Way each had 20. For Wojan's, Dean Mikulski collected 28 while consistent Don Ward added 20.

Kenney's won its last game 54-44 over First State Bank. A slow deliberate style of play employed by First State Bank kept Kenney's bottled up much of the first half. In the third quarter, however, Rick Van Stedum, Jack Danbert and Max Bolser broke away for many easy fast breaks.

Van Stedum was high point man with 20. Bolser added 12, Danbert and Dale Shooks 10 apiece. For First State Bank, Larry Roth chipped in 14.

In other contests, Haggard's stayed out of the A league's cellar by capsizing the Coast Guard 63-38. Frank Hackett's lightning moves on the fast breaks (get back on defense, Frank) resulted in 21 points as he led the way.

Dave Pershee, Mike Hamilton, and Dan Gunther all had 10. Marty Richardson had 15 for the Coast Guard.

Swanson's K&D clinched third place by clipping Bob's Sunoco 66-53. Tough Kevin Swanson came on to play one of his finest games as he led all scorers with 24. Doug Winel added 14 and Dave Swanson 13. For Bob's, Harold DeYoung scored 13, Ike Boss 12, and Ron Boss and Hud Drenth were held to 11.

Lake Michigan division champion, Charlevoix County State Bank, won their last game 52-42 over Alray Cottages. After falling behind by 6 at the end of a quarter, State Bank got it together to lead throughout the second half.

Larry Skippergosh led the way with 18 while Steve Martinis chipped in 16 and Rick Richardson added 10. For Alray, Scott Blanchard collected 12.

Second place Jim's Clark clobbered Andy's Tire World 94-69. Jerry Skippergosh paced the attack with 24, Clayton Jones canned 21, Vince Lett and Steve McClellan added 17 apiece, and Brian Van Lee had 13. For Andy's, Kevin Jonneehek bagged 28 and Stu Cunningham had 12.

Russell's Shell won big over Medusa 74-41. Mike Crain had a good night as he scored 29. Larry Brock chipped in 19 and Jim Potter 12. Charley Borths and Chuck Bascom each mustered 12.

Famous People in History

WALTER SCOTT

Walter Scott was a Scottish poet and novelist. He was born in 1771 in Edinburgh. Scott loved to read, especially ballads and romances, and learned French and Italian so that he could read the works of Dante and others. He chose law as a career and worked for a number of years in that profession. At the same time, he published many literary works. In 1806, Scott withdrew from the bar to devote his time to a literary career. He invested in a printing company and published many of his own works, including Lady of the Lake, Rob Roy, Ivanhoe, Kenilworth and The Talisman. Scott's health began to fail but he continued writing novels and poems. He was given a title by the queen in 1820. His investments in two printing companies failed and although Scott continued writing, his health and financial position got much worse. After a cruise in the Mediterranean, he became very ill and died upon his return to England in 1832.

The capital and largest city is Cairo. Alexandria, at the mouth of the Nile River and one of the oldest cities in the world, is the main seaport. Egypt is rich in ancient treasures. The famous pyramids and sphinx of the pharaohs exist today along the Nile River. The economy of Egypt is mainly agricultural but oil and mineral deposits have been discovered and are being developed. Most Egyptians speak Arabic and are either Islam or Christian.

Area Indians React to Fishing Treaties

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

While the Charlevoix Indian community unanimously wants the U.S. Supreme Court to uphold treaty granted hunting and fishing rights, only a few would take advantage of the rights to fish commercially.

The issue of Indian hunting and fishing rights, granted in 18th and 19th Century Treaties between the United States Government and Indians, has been heatedly debated for several years, even to the point of violent confrontations between angry non-Indian sports fishermen and Indians.

The State of Michigan and the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) are contesting the unlimited interpretation Michigan Indians have placed on the meaning of the treaty rights.

The State argues that it maintains the right to ban commercial fishing by Indians. The State maintains it can enforce state laws on Indians as well as non-Indians.

Uphold Treaties

Indians and their attorneys maintain that the treaties, of which there are several, are the law of the land and under the U.S. Constitution take precedence over state law.

The question of precedence and the question of which Indians may fish where, are in the process of litigation in both Federal nnd State Courts.

Attorneys for the state, for the Indians, and the United State Department of Justice, who have joined the issue on the Indian side, expect that the ultimate resolution will be in the United States Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, some Indians continue fishing, either to present more test cases or because it is their only livelihood.

Others, like John Case, an Ottawa, Charlevoix commercial fisherman, have quit until the question is resolved.

"I can't afford the hassle of getting arrested. But, you'd better believe I'd be out there if I got my rights," Case smiled.

Ultimate Decision

Other Indian people of Charlevoix express the hope that the ultimate decision will be in the Indians' favor, but don't anticipate personal involvement beyond occasionally casting a line off the pier.

Mrs. Kathy McCann, of Ottawa-Choctaw descent, a Teacher's Aide with Head Start, pointed out, "A lot of people don't stop to think of how few people fish who could, even among white people. I don't think that many Indians would fish, I don't think that many Indians would fish. I don't know how many need fishing to live.

"I think a lot of Indians in Charlevoix would sports fish, but wouldn't go commercial fishing, with maybe a couple of exceptions."

Mrs. McCann continued, "Generally Indian families in Charlevoix are in the economic mainstream. Most people are working. They don't need to fish to live.

"But even if I never hunt, and fish only occasionally, it is my right under treaty laws," she emphasized.

Should Be Honored

Echoing her sentiments, Jay Oliver, an Ottawa, Treasurer at Greensky Hill Church, said, "I strongly feel treaties should be honored and I support those who are testing the issue.

"But personally, I advise my children to buy licenses now, I want them to avoid the embarrassment of arrest."

Oliver continued, "I wouldn't be alive today if it weren't for my fishing. My father worked for a commercial fisherman. We depended on fishing.

"The earliest Indians were depended on fishing," Oliver said, explaining that fishing, even commercially, is a traditional Indians means of living.

Mrs. Helen Stainbrook, Ottawa-Chippewa, a Liaison Officer for the Charlevoix School District with the Indian community and Indian Community Health Representative, suggested she would be content "If it turned out to just allow Indian commercial fishermen to continue.

Little Fishing

"There are not that many Indian commercial fishermen left," Mrs. Stainbrook said, agreeing with others' observations, "But for them it is a job, it's better than having the taxpayers support these people," she concluded.

"I strongly feel treaties should be honored and I support those who are testing the issue."

-- Jay Oliver

A Department of Social Services spokesperson said the total monthly cost to State and Federal agencies to support a family of four on welfare could be as much as $450, not including medicaid.

Case, who quit setting his nets in September of 1971, when threatened with arrest, reports he is now receiving Aid to Dependent Children to maintain his three children.

Louis Edwards--Scoutmaster of the Year

He's Number One

There was only one thing wrong with Charlevoix's Louis Edwards being recognized as "Scoutmaster of the Year" last week--he wasn't there to get the award.

The Northern District of Scenic Trails Council recognized the 49-year-old grocer for his 17 years as Scoutmaster of Charlevoix Troop 11.

He was among several adult Scouters from Emmet, Charlevoix, Otsego and Antrim Counties that were supposed to be honored at a special recognition dinner in Petoskey.

While others were eating dinner and receiving certificates of appreciation, Louis was unknowingly in the Charlevoix Library Basement meeting with his scouts for their weekly troop meeting.

Shocked

"I was shocked," he said after learning later Wednesday evening he was supposed to receive the honor.

Several people had asked him earlier about going to dinner, Edwards said, but he had no idea he would be getting the award.

"It was our regular Scout meeting night," he said.

"Of course, if you're going to have an excuse, I guest the Scout meeting was good."

Early Thursday morning, Edwards was checking inventory for the Charlevoix grocery that he works at.

Flabbergasted

"I was flabbergasted when I heard about it," he said. "This morning one of my Scouts called and told me he had heard it on the radio."

Edwards, who was never a Boy scout himself, said he became Scoutmaster of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club-sponsored troop in a round about way.

"I walked into the gas station one night and a couple of guys told me, "There's the guy we need," he said.

Edwards said they were desperate for a Scoutmaster and that he would consider it.

"I don't know if I ever gave them an answer," he said while reflecting back on his decision.

Distinguished Service

"I guess I never came up with a reason of why I couldn't."

Since becoming Scoutmaster, Edwards has been recognized with the distinguished "Silver Beaver," the highest honor bestowed to an adult by the Boy Scouts of America.

He also has earned the Scouter's key, an award earned after completing extensive training for being a Scoutmaster.

While Edwards has been asked several times to become involved in Council-level training programs, he has turned down the opportunities in order that all of his time can be spent with his Scouts.

"I have always felt it best to stay with the troop," he said.

Asked why he has stayed with the program so long, Edwards says he can't think of a better way to spent his free time.

Enjoys Kids

"I enjoy being with the kids," he said.

"Kids don't always turn out, but a few find Scouting makes a difference."

Two Scouts that he takes pride in are Tom Mort, presently attending the Air Force Academy and Terry Mol, who recently received his Eagle.

Edwards says that the Scouting program is best thing available for a boy to grow up with.

"Scouting helps build a boy," he said.

The Charlevoix resident says he has no particular formula or advice for being a good Scoutmaster other than one has to like kids.

Board Approves $2 Million Budget

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education tentatively approved a budget that will hit the $2 million mark, but represent only a slight ucrease over last year's budget of $1.74 million.

No firm budget is possible at this date. However, the proposed budget has been set at $2,020,344 as compared to the 1973-74 budget of $1,747,446 and the 1974-75 of $1,741,109.

The proposed budget is 16.1 percent over the 1974-75 budget but, spread over a two year period and averaged out shows only an average 7.85 percent increase.

The board was forced to make cuts this year when it became necessary to adopt an austerity budget, Elementary Instruction was cut 3.9 percent over the year before; adult education, 3.1 percent; transportation, 25.9 percent; plant maintenance, 70.7 percent; capital outlay, 86.5 percent; outgoing transfers, 67.8 and transfers to other funds, 100 percent.

School officials say the proposed budget is an attempt to get some of the costs back in the proper perspective.

The proposed budget includes $415,863 for Elementary instruction; $329,893, Elementary, Middle School and Secondary, Middle School instruction; $540,131, High School instruction; $46,291, Special Education; $11,866, summer school; $3,702, Adult Education; $88,724, Administration; $5,235, Health Services; $132,635, transportation; $197,235, Operation of plant; $30,030, Maintenance of plant; $190,454, Fixed charges; $20,687, Capital Outlay; $5,000 Community Service $3,300 Outgoing transfers.

The revenue to support the proposed budget is based on the 2.75 mills the board is asking for in the April 21 election.

The present 21.7 mills levied on the State Equalized Valuation of the School District of $70 million will raise $1,557,803. The proposed 2.75 mills on which voters will vote on April 21 will add $192,500 if approved in additional $118,481 from State Sources.

In naming the areas that would be trimmed back, Supt. James A. McKimmy said this would not be a vindictive action but facing up to reality.

Max Novak, president of the board, echoed his statement, saying that if there wasn't money then the board had no choice but to cut back.

He said it would men eliminating eight teaching positions, elimination of all extra-curricular activities including all athletic programs, band activities including concerts, dropping out of the city recreation program, cutting the administrative staff by ½ a person and freezing all salaries that are not contracted for.

Even these cuts would not be enough to compensate for the loss of the revenue to be derived from the 2.75 mills for which the board is asking, it was explained.

The board offered two year contracts to all school principals but with certain stipulations. Salaries have not been set at this time.

Roy Fortin, assistant principal, was offered a contract for the 1975-76 school year with the stipulation that it could be terminated at the end of the current school year if the financial situation of the school district warrants a reduction in instructive and administrative personnel.

City Council Objects to Rail Abandonment

Charlevoix City Council stood firmly behind an earlier stand of not abandoning Northern Michigan railroads Monday night.

In fact, the council is now looking to see if they can have an advisory ballot of the abandonment question in April's general election.

The decision to ask whether or not Charlevoix residents want Northern rails abandoned came after Mayor Ed Hansen reported on a federal proposal that would virtually wipe out service in the North.

"There's considerable controversy over how this study was done," he said about the federal plan that goes to public hearing this month.

"I guess really the question is, how interested is the city and citizens."

Both Hansen and other council members urged local residents to write their congressman and senators objecting to the federal plan.

Charlevoix City Council earlier this year adopted a resolution suggesting the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation direct money assigned to improving U.S. 131 to railroads instead.

John Haggard, chairman of the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission, suggested the question of rail abandonment be on the general election ballot and the results be sent to involved federal agencies.

The matter was referred to the city attorney for further investigation.

In other action, council:

--Approved a new $9,800 for Warren Belding to maintain the city golf course.

--Amended the city's Telephone and Fire Alarm Systems Ordinance so that users of the electronic system that tics into city police and fire would be charged $30 a year.

--Referred a request from the Beaver Island Boat Company to install a radio antenna on the city water tower to committee.

--Heard objections from Councilman Ralph McRae regarding a $1,000 contract given to Northern Design and Construction Engineers of Traverse City to do a preliminary study of the city sewers and water system in portions of the city. McRae said the council was not properly informed about the contract.

--Referred a $4,000 bill from Charlevoix Township for water used last summer when the Pine River Channel water main was broken to the city's insurance company.

It's Irish Time This Weekend in the North

BY PEG OHLE

With its sign "Cead Mile Failte" (A thousand welcomes to yc) at the dock, Beaver Island is the most Irish settlement in Northern Michigan.

Just when the first Irishmen came to Beaver Island is not recorded, but it was probably about the same time, 1838, or shortly thereafter, when 100 Irish immigrants were hired to "march into the densely-forested wilderness of Saginaw County.....to begin the never-to-be completed Grand-Saginaw Canal," as related in "The People of Michigan", published by the Michigan Department of Education.

In 1839, when company funds ran out and the Irish "navvies" had dug about two miles of canal, they began drifting off into the lumber camps and other sources of employment.

In the Upper Peninsula, the Irish were railroad men, blacksmiths, machinists and firemen at the mines' boilers. They were also among the first to mine copper on the Keweenaw Peninsula.

John Forster, in his book "Life in the Copper Mines of Lake Superior", published before 1900, says, "The Irish are numerous -- many of them are miners, but they are versatile and disposed to turn their hand to any kind of surface work also, such as handling ore cars, making railroads and feeding stamps (mills).

They became good businessmen and are natural politicians, are always busy at the polls and never refuse a candidacy even for the highest office. In the schools their children are very bright and numerous."

Michigan author "John Voelker, who wrote "Anatomy of a Murder", recalls, "When I was a boy living on Barnum Street in Ishpeming, I was literally surrounded by the Irish—The whole town was pretty much the same, and every remote mining 'location' also had its quota of large Irish families, like the Thorntons of Winthrop. The rosters of the local police force and fire department read like a Dublin telephone directory; handsome silver-haired Jack Laccy and silent "Paddy the Peeler" Collins being a memorable two, interspersed with armies of Hickeys, Sullivans, Navins and many others I've long forgotten."

The 1902 plat book of Charlevoix County lists dozens of Gallaghers as land owners on Beaver Island along with others with such Irish names as McCrea, Donough, Boyle, McCauley, O'Donnell, Burke, McDonough, Kennedy, O'Grady, McGafferty, Corbett, Kerr, Farley, Dunlevy, McKay and O'Brien.

Today's Beaver Island telephone book is equally Irish in flavor, There are Burke's, Connaghan's, Donahoe's, Fitzpatrick's, three Gallagher's, Gillespie's, Lahey's, Malloy's, McCafferty's, McCanns's, McDonough's and O'Donnell's, among others.

It's almost ironic Beaver Island isn't in Antrim, Emmet or Wexford County which were named for political entities in Ireland!

Help Save Our Lands

There is now a way for property owners in the area to help preserve natural lands for the general public benefit.

The Little Traverse Conservancy was established for the purpose of acquiring land through gift or purchase with the purpose of protecting it and making it available for, appropriate use by the public.

In addition to identifying, obtaining and managing land, the Conservancy assists other organizations or governmental bodies in attaining similar goals.

Areas held by the Conservancy are supervised by a committee of volunteers. Management consists primarily of boundary identification with posts and signs, clearing and maintaining foot trails, and prevention of abuse or degradation of the property. All lands managed by the Conservancy are open to the public, but only for uses consistent with the wishes of the donor.

Operations of the Conservancy are financed by dues and donations. The Conservancy is approved to receive foundation grants, donations of land, securities, or funds to the Conservancy are deductible for income tax purposes and land held by the Conservancy is exempt from property taxes.

The Little Traverse Conservancy operates in Charlevoix, Emmet, Cheboygan and Mackinac Counties. Recently it received two parcels of land in the Harbor Springs area: the 15-acre West Wequetonsing Nature Preserve and the 20-acre Fisher Nature Preserve.

Officeers of the Conservancy are John Fischer, president; Edward Koza, vice-president; David Irish, secretary; and Wrigley Offield, treasurer. Headquarters are located at 300 Park Avenue, Petoskey.

An annual donation of $1.00 or more qualifies a person for a regular membership in the Conservancy. A donation of $100 or more secures a life membership.

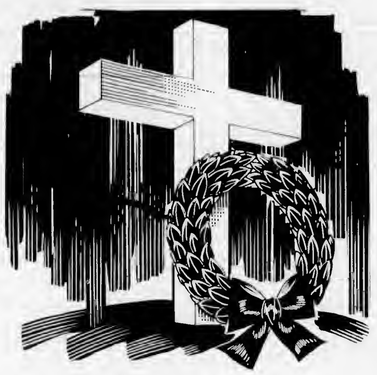
Death and Dying



By PEG OHLE

There is an old saying that goes, "There is nothing more certain than death and taxes."

While we may protest, even ignore, taxes, death is inevitable and it is something that more and more people are beginning to face in life.

Locally, a series of lectures is being held on the subject, dealing with such aspects of death as ministry to the dying and bereaved, medical definition of death, artificial prolongation of life, acceptance of one's own death, and grief therapy.

The series is being held Wednesday evenings at 7:30 in the Charlevoix Congregational Church.

On March 19 Robert Winchester of the Winchester Funeral Home will discuss laws and customs of the funeral and cremation.

According to Winchester, more and more people, especially those whose next of kin reside outside the area, are making their funeral arrangements in advance.

"Often a husband and wife will come in together," Winchester says. "We discuss the kind of funeral they would like to have and we will in pre-arrangement forms which we keep on file. Of course they can withdraw the plans at any time if they move or change their minds for other reasons."

FUNERAL DIRECTORS

The funeral director is a professional man and his duties are many. They include securing a minister or priest to conduct the services, arranging for the pallbearers and music, and filling in the many forms such as death certificates. In fact, Winchester says there is a checklist of 75 or 100 items having to do with a funeral.

Today's funeral services have evolved through the years as a result of man's wish to honor his dead. At different periods in history, in different cultures, funeral customs have developed in characteristic ways. But the funeral serves many purposes. It symbolizes the beliefs of the society, its hopes, its ideals, its religious concepts.

Most funerals are held in churches or funeral chapels today, but in the not-too-distant past they were often held in the home of the deceased. Upon determination of death the "undertaker" was called, the body embalmed, dressed and put in a rack-type structure called a "cooling board" until the day of the funeral, when it was placed in a casket.

THE CASKETS

Often the casket, sometimes a plain pine box, was built between the time of death and day of the funeral.

For many years interment has been made in the ground or vaults above the ground. Cremation, with burial or scattering of the ashes, is more popular in other places than it is in Northern Michigan, according to Winchester

A fairly recent aspect of dying is the donating of body tissues and organs from one person to another. Eye corneа, heart and kidney transplants are now possible, and some people feel that offering parts of their bodies to help those who are still living is a special way of sharing.

The funeral director is able to provide specific facts and up-to-date information on anatomical gifts. Such plans should be discussed with the family and made in advance because it is seldom possible for the surviving members to do so after death. The donation of eyes or organs from the body usually does not interfere with funeral plans.

What Kind of Sex Education Do Children Receive?

By PEG OHLE

Whether there has been a "sexual revolution" during the last decade is a matter of opinion.

Some believe there is no more promiscuousness than there was in grandmother's day – that now it is more above board, that more unwed girls are having babies because "shotgun weddings" are not considered the only way out.

Problems facing these girls are now not only a personal family matter, but schools, health authorities and social institutions are involved.

According to state law, a girl who has not completed high school may not be expelled or excluded from a public school because of being pregnant. However, a pregnant girl under the compulsory school age may withdraw from a regular public school program when her parent or legal guardian submits a consented request for withdrawal and a certificate by a physician that such a girl is pregnant and that continued attendance in school may adversely affect her health or that of her child.

Compulsory School

State law also provides that a girl who withdraws from a regular school program because of pregnancy, if within the compulsory school age, shall be required to comply with the compulsory school attendance law after the birth of her baby unless, by certification of a physician, her health would be impaired.

For those unable to attend school, school districts are entitled to receive moneys toward the payment of the salary of teachers employed by the district for an accredited alternative education program.

The Charlevoix School system has such a teacher, under the jurisdiction of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, who assists pregnant girls at home with their school work and counsels them with their problems. It is the feeling of educators that these girls need as much schooling as possible to help them not only with their own lives but with that of their newborn child.

Principal Hear First

In school, it is usually the principal or counselor to whom the girl first reveals her pregnancy. Charlevoix High School Counselors Gayle Kaczynski and Charles Bentley say it is not their job to be judges in the cases, but to be sympathetic listeners. Mrs. Kuczynski sometimes accompanies the girl to inform her parents of her condition, and in all cases makes sure she has proper medical treatment.

Vane Smith, principal of Charlevoix High School, points out that there are few choices for the unwed pregnant girl: she may marry, she may not marry and keep the baby, she may put the baby up for adoption, or she may have an abortion, but the school is not permitted to make suggestions.

The tendency in the area is for more and more unwed mothers to keep their babies with the encouragement of their own parents, according to the school and the District Health Department.

The Health Department reports that there were 18 illegitimate births out of a total of 208 in Charlevoix County through September of last year, or nine percent of all reported births.

Birth Figures

In Antrim County there were 14 illegitimate births out of a total of 166, or eight percent, for the same period of time.

The Charlevoix County figure is up slightly from the year 1973 when there were 18 illegitimate births out of a total of 221, or slightly more than eight percent. During 1973 there were 16 illegitimate births in Antrim County out of a total of 209, or eight percent.

In all, 36 teenage (19 and under) girls, married and unmarried in Charlevoix County gave birth in 1973. One girl was under 15. In Antrim County 39 teenage girls, married and unmarried, gave birth in 1973. Two of these girls were under 15.

The Health Department reports that many of these young married girls were probably married after they became pregnant.

The Health Department recognizes that births by young girls are a real health problem, both to them and their infants. There are also social and economic problems which many find insurmountable.

Family Planning

To help fight the problem, the Health Department is trying to focus its family planning program on this group of potential mothers. Federal grants are available to provide contraceptive information and examinations by physicians. They also hold classes for expectant mothers.

Gerry Chase of District 3 Health Department points out that while a program in family planning does cost money, it costs very little compared to what social welfare and for a child would cost for 18 years.

Appointments for family planning information may be made by calling the District Health Department. A clinic for teen-agers is also being set up in Petoskey in cooperation with the Planned Parenthood Association.

Sex education as such is not taught in the Charlevoix High School. There is a health education unit in both the boys' and girls' Physical Education course, which covers venereal diseases.

Teachers Toni Felter and Dave Meyer also show film strips showing physical development and discussing problems relating to adolescence. They also counsel children on an individual basis when the need arises. Reproduction is studied in the General Science classes.

Middle School Principal Vincent Chew says that it is the concern of the administration and board that more be done in this field, but they "won't go into it quickly."

Here Are Some Menu Suggestions

St. Patrick's Day

EDITOR'S NOTE: Every national group who settled in the North Country brought with them their favorite recipes for cooking the foods they had learned to eat in their homeland.

In honor of St. Patrick's Day, Eleanor Ratigan of Charlevoix tells what it was like to dine with an early Irish settler's family.

By ELEANOR RATIGAN

A visitor to an Irish cottage in the North Country was greeted by the bean-a'-tigh (woman of the house) and, with the warmth and hospitality traditional with these people, he would be served Irish griddle bread, scones and mugs of tea.

There might be a white geranium in a pot on the table and perhaps she would tell him about the beautiful embroidered linen cloth, with napkins to match, that she had brought with her from the Emerald Isle.

The cloth was her pride, kept for special occasions as a setting for "cead mile failte" (a hundred thousand welcomes) to any guest.

Supper for the guest might mean brown bread, Irish ham, sausage, two kinds of potatoes and trolleys of dessert, white puddings, little meringues or gooseberry tartlets.

The meal would start with Bridie's Broth, made by cutting a quarter of a head of cabbage and shredding it into a bowl, then pouring hot beef stock over it to stand five minutes before draining. Chicken broth was then put in a pan and the shredded cabbage added to it with salt and pepper. It simmered until the cabbage was cooked.

In the New World, the Irish learned to improve on their famous stew, made by cutting lamb (or mutton) into cubes and putting them into a deep kettle with layers of raw sliced potatoes, cabbage and sliced onions. The layers of meat and vegetables were covered with water, and the kettle bubbled on the fire during the day. At meal time, the meat was put on a steaming platter with the vegetables, and the juice from the kettle was poured over all.

Sometimes, for variation, an egg yolk was beaten into the kettle juice for thickening, and this gravy was served with dumplings.

Champ was the traditional dish the Irish brought with them from their homeland. It was made by adding finely-cut spring onions (greens as well as the white part) to milk and simmering for about ten minutes. Then mashed potatoes were added to the onions and the mixture was whipped together until it was light and creamy. At serving time, a hole was made in the middle of the champ and melted butter was poured into the hole. It was a favorite dish with children.

Potatoes, onions and cabbage were the main vegetables used by the Irish, although parsnips and turnips were grown extensively in the Old Country, because they gave variety and flavor in the winter. Parsnips were sometimes roasted over the fire, and turnips were boiled and mashed with potatoes.

If the Irish aren't considered the world's greatest cooks, they are, at least, famous for the world's greatest Soda bread, potato bread and brown bread. A proper housewife prided herself on serving at least three kinds of bread for six o'clock tea. Most of their breads were made with rich, fresh buttermilk. Their soda bread was made with sour milk. Lemon juice was added to fresh milk and it was allowed to stand on the shelf for several days. As sour milk was taken from the crock for bread making, more fresh milk was added so that the souring process never ended and the crock was never empty.

Brown bread was made from stone-ground whole wheat, and there is nothing to equal the taste and texture of genuine Irish brown bread.

Molasses is known as treacle in Ireland, and treacle bread was another favorite at teatime. Old fashioned oat cakes were made from crushed oats and browned on a griddle. They were eaten hot, with melted butter.

Every Irish lad and lassie was brought up on breakfast porridge. Similar to our present-day oatmeal, it was served with glasses of strong tea.

The main meal of the day was served at noon when the men came in hungry from the fields. There was soup or stew with thick slices of bread heavily spread with fresh butter and generally a dish of white pudding or custard for dessert.

The six o'clock tea as a light supper with cold meat or eggs and bread or buns or scones.

The Irish loved their pallid white puddings which were usually made with scalded milk, eggs, sugar, a little nutmeg and butter. They were steamed over hot water until firm and sometimes served with fruit sauces.

Bread and raisin puddings were popular because they took care of left overs. Slices of stale bread, cut thick, were buttered and put in a baking dish. A custard was poured over the bread and raisins were sprinkled on top. Then came another layer of bread, more custard and rasins until the pan was nearly full. It was baked until nicely browned and served with cream.

The Irish also made apple cake and coffee custard and peach pie and lemon pudding. They were not fancy desserts, or difficult to make, but they were nourishing and filling and inexpensive.

St. Patrick's Day was a time of great merry making and feasting. Eggs, always served for breakfast for any holiday, were cooked with flitches of bacon and pancakes dripping with hot butter. There were nugs of fresh cool buttermilk and perhaps a bowl of applesauce to celebrate the occasion.

For the main meal, there might be plump roasted chicken or a squat duck or juicy sugared ham with potatoes and onions and cabbage, and a fine Tipsy cake or jam tart for dessert.

More Irish lassies were named after Saint Bridget than any saint except St. Mary. St. Patrick is said to have baptized St. Bridget and, in Ireland, the common little dandelion is known as St. Bridget's flame, because she carried on St. Bridget's work.

So to the Irish, Bridget stands for everything that is sweet and good in womanhood. On her feast day in February, special little cakes Barinbreac or Barmbrack were served with ale. They were made with currents and caraway seeds and buttermilk and dropped on a baking sheet like cookies.

If Irish cooking has not been creative and original, it has always been simple, plain and good, and it has enriched our heritage, because we cannot think of Irish food without picturing a bright warm kitchen with red embers in the fire, a butter churn in the corner, an oaten cake crisping on the stove, and a neat row of crocks on the shelf.

And the Irish housewife? Always with an eye at the window hoping a visitor will stop by for a glass of hot tea and a bit of gossip!

Ballet for Boys--Who Says

Ask any red blooded all American boy what he thinks about ballet and he'll give you a half dozen creative gestures to express his interest.

Tell him he's going to have to watch a ballet and you'll be lucky to catch him before he dashes for a quick exit.

Worse yet, inform the youngster he's in the ballet and you'll never find him again.

Surprisingly enough, all three situations took place at Charlevoix Middle School and not one negative peep was heard from those watching the Christopher Ballet of Rochester, Michigan.

In fact, the dance troupe caused about an hour of chuckles and laughter.

Brought in by the Crooked Tree Arts Council, the touring troupe of 10 demonstrated that dancing can be fun, especially ballet.

"When you think of ballet you get an image of what ballet is like," said the dance representative introducing the group.

He said one automatically thinks of a ballerina dressed in a white skirt.

The spokesman said that was the old traditional style of ballet that began back in France.

After a brief demonstration, the dance company representative discussed the work involved with becoming a dancer.

"To become a dancer requires a lot of work," he said.

In addition to the two hours of daily classwork five days a week, he said there are four hours of rehearsal.

"Dance means the ability to do anything with your body when you want to do it," he said.

Then for the remaining 45 minutes, Charlevoix Middle School students were able to see just what was meant, with several different styles of dances performed, as well as an opportunity for several to try a few of the basic dance movements.

The lecture-demonstration was done by members of the Christopher Ballet Company who ranged in age from early teens to early twenties.

Coordinating the program for the Crooked Tree Arts Council were Mrs. Robert Tollas of Charlevoix and Mrs. Bret Riley of East Jordan.

THE DANCERS gave both demonstrations and instruction during their hour-long performance last Tuesday at the Charlevoix Middle School. The event was sponsored by the Crooked Tree Arts Council.

Trackmen Get Ready

By FRAN MARTIN

Though the cinder track and the pits at Kipke field are presently covered with more than a foot of snow, Track Coach Gary Stutzman has his lineleads working daily in preparation for the season's opening meet with Petoskey on Apr. 21.

Conditioning is a big thing in track Stutzman said. I want the boys to be in good shape when they can get outside. They are now working on the weight machine, doing calistentics and other forms of excreise to get ready for the real test when we can get on the track.

Stutzman, whose team is the defending champions in the Michigan-Huron Shores league, is looking forward to another good season. However, he was quick to add that there are a lot of key positions to be filled as the result of loses by graduation.

"There's a lot of work to be done in the areas of the high jump and pole vault. We're hurting in these two events and I'm counting on some talent from among the younger candidates for the squad. In the other field events, the shot and the long jump, and in most track events we have returnees who will form n frame work for the tenm with younger candidates filling in where needed" Stutzman said about the team.

Stutzman estimates that he will have 60 candidates for the squad when everyone reports for practice. Among the returning veterans are three of four members of the three relay teams, a trio of hurdlers, several distance runners, a half dozen sprinters, and strong candidates for the other field events. "Added to these are a promising number of freshmen plus sophomores who did well last season" Stutzman added.

In the other events, Phil Christ will again be throwing the shot with Kurt Lieberman, Jim Sladek, Tom Jones and Barry Potter as candidates for this event, Stutzman said. He also said that there are numerous candidates for the broad jump including Mike Streeter, Kevin Martin, Kevin Speer and Steve Schueh.

Streeter, Martin and Joe Kaufman are returnees for the 440 and 880 relay teams and Jim Sundberg, Chuck Faust and Ed Russell for the mile relay.

Among the candidates as distance runners are Ken Paul and Wally Drenth in the two mile event; Brian Williams in the mile and Chuck Faust in the 880 yard run.

The list of sprinters returning include George Kruskie, Speer, Ed Man, Doug Smith, Martin and Streeter.

Other candidates will come from amoig sophomore and juniors who saw limited aetion last season and from among new crop of freshmen, Stutzman said.

Independent Basketball Gets New Champ

By CHUCK WRIGHT

The City Basketball League finally has its regular season champions.

In two play-off games, the Town House edged Freedman Arteraft 74-74 and Village Milkhouse bested Kenney's Excavating 63-57. The Town House is now the A league champs while Village Milkhouse and Charlevoix County State Bank, which won their division weeks ago, share the two B League divisional titles.

Like three of their four meetings this year, the Freedman - Town House showdown was a thriller which was not decided until the last seconds of play.

Spook Coleman's spinning lay-up with nine seconds to play gave the Town House a 74-71 lead. But Terry Blissett came back on an unnolested lay-up with three seconds left to give Freedman's a last flicker of hope. The Town House completed a long in-bounds pass, however, and the game was over.

Each team had plenty of hernes. Spook Colemnn played his usual fine game as he led the Town House attaek with 21. Dave Strawbridge and Joe Beaudoin battled the big Freedman front line of Bernie Ward, Denny Crain, and Mike Bade and did a comnenidable job on the boards.

Strawbridge also managed 18 points while Beaudoin added 13.

For Freedman's, Ward dominated the backboards while hitting for 24 points. He had lots of help from Mike Bade who scored 8 of his 12 points in the first quarter. Roger Crain was hounded every step he took but popped in 20 points.

The Village Milkhouse - Kenney's game was almost as exciting, but the Milkhouse held a fairly commanding lead throughout the game. Superier size was the Milkhouse's best weapon. Even when they missed a shot (which was not all that often) they managed to get a second shot. The smaller Kenney's squad, while driving to the basket well, could not over-come the height disadvantage.

Dale Boss played a great game as he led all scorers with 27. Gary Novotny chipped in 11 mostly on long outside shots. Kenney's had a balanced attaek. Jack Danbert scored 15, Terry DeVries and Max Bolser 13, and Riek Van-Stedum 12.

Mr. and Mrs. David Heeres are proud parents of a boy, their first child. Scott David was born February 27, 1975 and weighed 9 lbs. 12 oz. and he was born on his mothers birthday. Scott David is the 3rd grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heeres and the first grandchild for Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Staley of Charlevoix.

Weekend visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Heeres and sons were Mr. and Mrs. Gary Douma & family from Byron Center, Mi.

Our school children had vacations last Tuesday and Wednesday due to the stormy weather.

Mr. and Mrs. James Kroll and 4 children of Grandville spent Friday with the Martin Rubingh family and were dinner guests of their aunt Mattie VanderArk.

Funeral services were held Thursday for Herman Vanstedum, who was 74 years old and had been a patient at Meadow Brook Medical Facilities at Bellaire for almost two years. Surviving are his widow Margaret, 3 sons Fred, Abel of Jenison, Henry of Grand Haven and a daughter Mrs. Versal Shooks (Christine) and 17 grandchildren who were all present at the funeral and 2 great grandchildren.

Maude Petterson returned home last week after a two months trip to Florida and Mexico. Her son Bill and family live in Florida and she spent a month with them. Then with her daughter Mary Jean and husband Paul Stout, she visited the Stouts daughter Paula, who teaches English in a Spanish school in Mexico City. Enroute home she visited another daughter Frances Maseho & family and her brother in Metamora and daughter Amy Lyons, who took her to Maneelona, where Mr. and Mrs. Harold Edson live. Maude was happy when they brought her home after a long and enjoyable trip.

One of our senior citizens is very loncly as for the first time in 78 years, she doesn't have a cat or dog for a pet!

Home for the weekend from Grand Rapids were Joy Drenth eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Drenth, Fred and Marcella. Children of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Vail.

In honor of her (Mattie VanderArk) birthday, the Rublngh and DeYoung side of the family, celebrated Sunday afternoon. Sunday a supper was held by the VanderArks and families. Monday afternoon the neighborhood ladies came over for coffee and cookies

We had such a varied kind of weather on March first that, did March come in like a lamb or lion? Which did you decide?

In last week's make-up games, Kenney's defeated Muma's 51-39 but had only a narrow two point lead going into the fourth quarter. Jack Dinbert scored 18 for the winners.

Wojan Aluminum won its last regular season game by blasting First State Bank 55-34. Fine outside shooting and good board work by Don Ward was the difference. Ward scored 24 while Jim McGarry collected 12 and Don Smith 11.

Jimmy Bogart Tournament action got under way also last week. Actually there are two tournaments this year. The best teams in the A and B leagues are in one while the also-rans are in the other. The idea is to make the tournaments as much fun as possible.

In the B tournament, Haggards easily got by Medusa 75-46. After a very close first quarter, Haggards got a lot of scoring from its big men. Frank Hackett collected 31 points, Dean Gunthel 25, and Mike Hamilton 15.

Charley Borths hit for 14 in Medusa's losing effort.

In the A Bogart tournament, Freedman's crushed Charlevoix County State Bank 102-36. Incredibly, Freedman's had 7 of its 8 players in double figures. Roger Crain had 19, Mike Bade 16, Terry Blissett 14, Bernie DeVries and Denny Croin 13, Rich Kelly 11, and Bernie Ward 10. Denny LaCroix managed 10 for the bankers.

Finally, Swansons K & D clipped Bob's Sunoco 51-48. After being tied at halftime, Swansons gradually polled away in the third quarter. The game was never closer than three points during the fourth.

Kevin Swanson led the way with 14. Doug Winel picked up 12 and Dave Swanson 10. Hud Drenth had 15 for Bob's while Ron Boss collected 14.

Swanson's, who have already spost the Town House this year, have been playing strong ball and could very easily be the team to beat in the Bogart tournament. Those who expect a Town House-Freedman's rematch might be very mistaken.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Parsons have been busy placing spiles in their maple trees and also getting their equipment ready for making maple syrup this spring.

Howard Woodbury caught an eight pound pike this Wednesday near the Island Philip Myner has also caught several. But not many perch or trout are caught from the point to the island and nbo not many fish shanties are on the lake which is most unusual for Ironton.

Mrs. Gordon Budden has returned home after spending several weeks visiting friends and relatives in California and southern Michigan.

When snowmobiles first became popular I thought how wonderful it must be to travel over the hills and through the woods day or night but now people are abusing the privilege of freedom and are breaking and entering homes of friends and neighbors who have gone south for the winter destroying property and taking whatever can be taken with them. It is hard catching these lawless offenders with this method of a fast get away. Why do we always have to have people take advantage and spoil everything. Several homes in our community have been entered this winter and we just can't understand or allow this to continue.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bartlett have been vacationing in Florida.

Indians Look at Fishing Treaties

for whom he has sole custody.

Case said he would be able to go completely off ADC if he could fish again.

"I fished from a 14-foot outboard, setting one box of nets in Bell's Bay," he said. "I'd set my nets at night, haul in the early morning. I could average about 100 pounds of trout per haul, which I sold for 50 cents a pound."

Average Hauls

Case figured at an average of 100 pounds of trout per haul, and about 175 days of fishing, he could clear around $7,000 after his expenses. His expenses include net repairs, gasoline for his outboard motor and his truck with which he hauls the fish to market.

Asked if he thought he'd get a bigger boat, possibly a tug," Case replied, "No this is all I can handle and all I need to live."

He began commercial fishing when he was 15.

"I know commercial fishing," he said. "I know about fish, where they are, when and how deep to set my nets. You have to understand fish. Not every Indian can go out and fish."

It was pointed out to Case that sports fishermen feel massive Indian fishing will wipe out the lake trout population which has been planted at taxpayers expense by the Federal Government and DNR.

Plenty of Trout

"If lake trout are just for sports fishermen why didn't they plant only inland lakes?" Case queried.

"Indians are not going to take all the trout. It's not possible," Case said.

Others have suggested the money saved from Indians going off welfare could be added to the trout planting program.

Mrs. McCann's reply to the depletion charge was, "Indians take what they need. A few may fish commercially, but most just take what they need to eat or share with friends."

Mrs. Stainbrook added, "There's been a great deal about sports fishermen hollering Indians will clean out all the fish. But a long time ago Indians were fishing as a living and we didn't deplete the fish."

Why Fish?

Jay Oliver agreed, "It was the white commercial fishermen who wiped out the trout before. Same thing with the passenger pigeons and buffalos.

"Who do they want to fish out there?" Oliver asked. "Just those with fancy equipment? A fish is dead no matter who catches it."

Repeatedly the Indian traditional respect for nature and ancient rules of conservation were raised by the Indians interviewed.

"Indians take what they need. So called sportsmen often don't even eat what they catch," Mr. Stainbrook said.

"When the Indians used to fish they formed rules to conserve the fish," she maintained.

"I believe Indians will conform to a reasonable solution," Oliver said, speaking about conservation problems. "But a treaty is a treaty, and it should be upheld first."

VIOLENCE

Violence, potential and past, was raised.

None of those interviewed anticipated Indian militancy, because the cases are progressing through the legal system and the Indians believe there is a good chance the decisions will be in their favor.

Mrs. Stainbrook said a group such as the American Indian Movement would only get involved if violence against Indians continued.

"The feeling now is just let the courts work it out, hassle with the legal part of it," she suggested.

Mrs. Stainbrook said she knew of only one local incidence of violence, when an unknown assailant chopped an Indian's boat full of holes.

"Indians are not going to take all the trout. It's not possible."

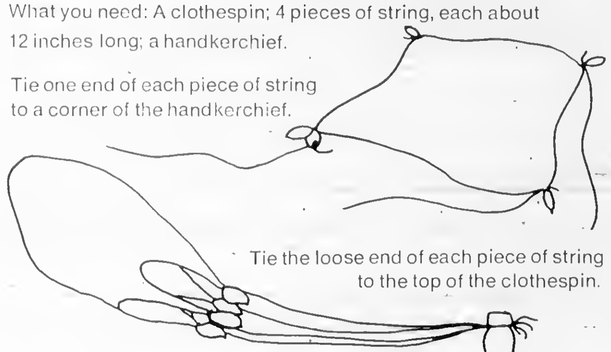
HOW TO MAKE A PARACHUTE.

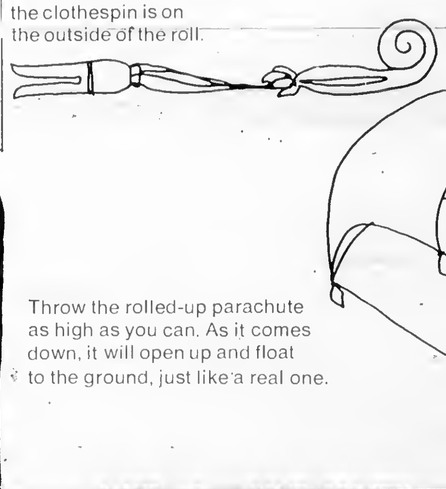
What you need: A clothespin; 4 pieces of string, each about 12 inches long; a handkerchief.

Tie one end of each piece of string to a corner of the handkerchief.



Tie the loose end of each piece of string to the top of the clothespin.

Hold the parachute in the middle of the handkerchief and roll it up so the clothespin is on the outside of the roll.



Throw the rolled-up parachute as high as you can. As it comes down, it will open up and float to the ground, just like a real one.

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE

Harriet Beecher Stowe was born in 1811 in Litchfield, Connecticut. She lived in Cincinnati, Ohio as a young woman and became a strong voice against slavery. Her first book, Uncle Tom's Cabin, became very popular and helped to bring the North together against slavery. The public sentiment raised by the book had much to do with bringing on the Civil War. She wrote many other books, most of which were as strongly against slavery as her first. She died in 1896 and was elected to the American Hall of Fame in 1910.

Much Depends on Spring Election

Charlevoix Schools Could Face Serious Cuts

Charlevoix school officials say they could face serious financial problems next year if they don't get a needed 2.75 mill increase April 21.

Suffering from high inflationary operation costs, School Supt. James McKimmy says Charlevoix Public Schools will be faced with severe cutbacks including the elimination of almost all extracurricular activities–already partially curtailed this year.

Residents will be asked to raise the operational millage in one of three ballot questions when they hit the polls next month.

In addition, taxpayers will be asked to consider a $200,000 purchase proposal for the purchase and improvement of a school site, as well as a $1.2 bond proposal to add to the existing high school and make minor improvements at the middle school.

Charlevoix presently levies 21.7 millage--12.5 voted operational and 9.2 allocated by the county.

Need 2.75 Mills

In an interview with the courier last week, McKimmy said the schools would need the additional 2.75 levy to maintain the present operational level assuming they were able to get the same county allocation, as well as state revenue.

"Next fall when these things come up, they'll all be 'ify' things," the superintendent said about the county and state funds.

McKimmy says the schools have been rocked by 10 percent inflation and three pereent less uperating revenue this year to operate schools.

For the last two years, the school official says they have been able to get by because of a budget fund equity in 1973 and budget cuts in 1974.

Budget Cuts

But now, he says the schools are faced with having to pick up sume of the things they dropped in their 1974 budget to stay above board.

In 1973, they operated schools with $1.69 million and only realized a 2.8 percent increase in 1974 to run schools with $1.7 million. Now they are seeking $2 million to operate the next two years–an increase of 19.4 percent over two years.

"What we did this year was cut the budget," McKimmy said.

"We have done it in areas that have to be maintained."

Hardest hit was a 86.5 percent cut in capital outlay along with a 25.9 percent cut in transportation, 70.7 percent decrease in plant maintenance, 3.9 percent slash in the elementary instruction budget and another 3.1 percent adult education cut.

But, many of these cuts can't be made for another year, school officials claim.

Increased Costs

Like most Charlevoix residents, school officials are getting slapped in the face with increased costs.

Charlevoix Public Schools are anticipating a 20 percent cost hike in electricity during the first eight months of this year, in addition to a 11.4 percent increase for salary scale improvements of certified personnel.

They are also expecting between a 10 and 15 percent hike in supply costs, as well as having to reinstate bus payments and add $17,400 in unemployment compensation.

"We needed some library held in the elementary and middle school, but it was cut," McKimmy said.

He said the 2.75 millage request anticipates no new programs or employment.

Staff Reductions

Asked what would happen if the school does not get the levy-request, McKimmy said they would have to reduce the current staff by eight and increase the teacher-student ratio, eliminate all extra-curricular activities except for programs like basketball that are self-supporting.

He said they would have to withdraw from the city recreation program, reduce administrative services, withhold wage and salary increases, eliminate adult education and close the buildings at night.

In addition to the millage levy increase, the schools are for $200,000 to purchase and improve a future school site.

Presently being considered are a 62-aere site across from Kit Carson Lumber Company, a parcel across from Hoskins Manufacturing on M-66 and another site to be selected on the north end of Charlevoix.

$1.2 Million Boad Issue

The third request is for a $1.2 million bond issue to add to the existing high school and make minor adjustments at the middle school.

The middle school improvements include lighting of the gym and carpeting of the hallways to make it quieter.

Additions to the high school include enclosing the area between the cafeteria building and the main classroom building for more classrooms, creation of a all-purpose room and showers, enlargement of the band storage room and enclosement of the study hall to create a art room and 80-seat small auditorium.

McKimmy said they are hoping to hold several township meetings and a large public meeting on April 14 to answer questions about the proposals.

PBB Tests Show Human Dangers

By CLARK HALLAS
(Special to the Courier)

ANN ARBOR – An independent researcher says his studies indicate that the effects on humans of a fire retardent chemical accidentally fed to livestock may be far more serious than state health officials now believe.

Dr. Thomas Corbett, a chemical investigator for the Veterans Administration Hospital and a birth defects researcher, said he began his independent research into the effects of polybrominated biphenyl (PBB) last spring after learning the state was not doing similar testing.

The results so far of his laboratory experiments, he said, have caused him to worry that the chemical may result in birth defects and, possibly, cancer in humans. Wide-ranging birth defects have been reported in the offspring of farm animals exposed to high levels of PBB.

"The fact that we have been able to produce birth defects in laboratory animals – in some cases with the same levels of PBB that people have eaten – should be a cause for concern," Corbett said.

"Probably 90 percent of the state's residents ate products at one time or another containing some quantities of PBB, including hamburgers served up by the fast-food chains. We're all part of a huge experiment."

More than a score of Michigan farm families have reported illnesses ranging from extreme fatigue to hair loss following exposure to PBB, which in 1973 accidentally got into animal feeds sold by the Michigan Farm Bureau Services.

To date, more than 11,000 state dairy and beef cattle have been destroyed because of PBB contamination along with 1.5 million chickens, 3,500 pigs, 1,200 sheep, 4.5 million eggs and large quantities of cheese and milk.

Corbett said the state should immediately:

–Begin a study to determine whether there has been an increase in the number of human birth defects in Michigan, and, if so, whether they are PBB-connected.

–Conduct autopsies on a sample of deceased Michigan residents to find out whether "the general public has been contaminated with PBB.

The researcher charged that the state Health Department and the Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) are not concerned enough about the potential human hazards of PBB to conduct adequate research.

"It looks like they're trying to sweep the whole thing under the rug," Corbett charged. "The FDA says it's the state's problem and the state says it's not their problem. But more research is definitely needed."

Corbett said he performed autopsies last year at University Hospital on three randomly selected males from different sections of the state. The bodies, all non-farm males who died of non-PBB connected illnesses, "showed traces of PBB in their systems."

The state maintains that PBB reached the general public in milk and other products in such small concentrations that no harmful effects are likely.

A spokesman for the state Health Department said statewide birth defects statistics are compiled, but that 1974 figures will not be available until summer.

Since humans did not start consuming PBB-contaminated products until the spring of 1973, possible defects would not show up earlier than January, 1974. According to state officials, only three births have been recorded in farm families being studied by the department. All three infants were normal, the spokesman said.

Corbett, 35, is a part-time anesthesiologist with University Hospital and said he conducted his laboratory tests with $2,000 in funds he managed to "wring out" of his VA research budget-which is primarily devoted to the study of possible cancer-producing anesthetics.

He and three laboratory assistants started last spring to conduct the PBB experiments on about 250 pregnant mice and rats at the VA Hospital. They mixed various concentrations of PBB with rodent food. Mice chosen for the experiment, Corbett said, were of a type proven to be "moderaely resistent to most types of birth defects."

The research showed that feed containing 1,000 parts of PBB per million (ppm) produced cleft palates in 5 percent of the mice offspring. At 100 ppm – levels eaten by many farm families – the feed resulted in exenchcphaly (protruding brains) in 2 percent of the fetuses. A control group of mice fed a normal diet showed no birth defects, Corbett said.

Corbett and another researcher, Dr. Allen R. Beaudoin, a U-M anatomy professor, also are conducting experiments on mice and rats to determine whether PBB contains cancer-causing agents.

However, rodent cancer has been reported from a similar chemical, polychlorinated biphenyls (PCB) which in 1968 poisoned at least 1,000 persons in northern and wesern Japan when it accidentally leaked into rice bran oil.

"We probably won't know if PBB causes human cancer for 20 to 30 years," Corbett said. "That's how long it took for the carcinogenic effects of vinyl chloride to show up.

"I've had farmers tell me they aren't planning on having any more children until more is known about PBB."

A Big Rapids physician says he has found 15 persons, all of whom consumed PBB-contaminated animals, with liver damage.

Dr. William Coohon, state disease control chief, said yesterday that the Health Department is relying primarily on blood tests – which are considered less reliable than fat samples – to determine PBB contamination. He said persons who want their fatty tissue tested should arrange to do it.

Clerk Offers Ballot Help

City residents wanting to know how to "write-in" a candidate on the upcoming city election ballot, April 7, can go to city hall for instruction.

The Charlevoix City Clerk's office said they are providing instruction on a voting machine located on the first floor from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. until March 28.

Clerk Ida Heise said those wanting to write-in a candidate can do so by writing the person's name in the square located above the machine levers.

"There's one above every name," the clerk said.

"It's nothing new."

Interest in write-in candidates developed earlier last month after Mayor Ed Hansen said he would run as a write-in candidate after losing to Councilman Ralph McRae in the spring primary by some 40 votes.

Hansen, a Charlevoix businessman, is seeking his fourth term as mayor. Between 1957 and 1963, he served on the city council.

McRae, a relative newcomer to city politics, is serving his first term as councilman and seeking his first term as mayor. McRae operates and owns a local construction firm.

This is Hansen's second attempt at running on stickers. In 1963, he lost to Pat Hawley in a bid for the mayoral seat.

Hansen said he decided to run April 7, as a write-in because some 300 people had called and asked him to run.

The Charlevoix mayor said people were mad about what had been said about him in the spring primary.

"I don't like this ugly mud slinging and muckraking," Hansen said.

"I just can't turn my back when so many people asked me to run."

Hansen said he would have stickers available for those who want to use them instead of writing in a name closer to the election.

Here are Charter Questions You Should Ask Before April 7

EDITOR'S NOTE: Charlevoix residents will be deciding on more than who they want to represent them on city council when they go to the polls on April 7. They will also have to decide on whether or not they want a city charter and charter commission to write a charter.

As a public service, the Courier in conjunction with the National Municipal League is providing information on some of the most asked questions about charter commissions.

1. What is a city charter?

It is the basic law that defines the organization, powers, functions and essentinl procedures of the city government. It is comparable to the state constitution and to the constitution of the United States. The charter is, therefore, the most important singie law of any city. Through change in the charter almost any desired change can be achieved in government.

2. What is a chnrter commission?

A charter commission is a body authorized by law, usually elected by the voters, that is set up for the sole function of drafting and submitting to the voters a new charter or revision of an existing charter. Like a constitutional convention at the state or national level, it investigates the existing government and charter, studies the experience of cities elsewhere under other charters and forms of government and attempts to put the best of these into a new charter.

3. What are some of the functions of a charter commission?

To summarize, the function of a charter commission is to prepare and present to the voters the best and most forward-looking basic law it can.

Specifically, this required the commission:

–To take an overview of the entire city government such as few if any officials or ordinary citizens can;

–To probe deeply into the procedures and the interrelations of the different parts of the government so as to discover weaknesses and defects;

–To look outside the city to discover the best practices that might be applied and adapted;

–To learn from all its studies how a better government can be arranged;

–Having decided upon the major elements, to set them down in clear, logical and consistent form as a proposed charter;

–To conduct its affairs in such a manner as to win the respect of the citizens and to educate and stimulate citizen groups and leaders to get the charter adopted.

4. Who is an expert on city charter making?

Generally speaking, the best charter draftsmen are men who have made a special study of municipal government against a background of the study of politics, government and public administration. Such men are to be found but there are never enough of them and their competence is not always recognized. In many cases they are teachers of political science and public administration in colleges and universities who have had experience with charter problems. In some cases they are governmental researchers. Some are engaged in various branches of public administration, some in consultant work.

5. What does the municipal government expert do?

He can perform a number of useful services for a charter commission. These include:

–Gathering, selecting and summarizing of pertinent information locally and from other places;

–Presentation of a comprehensive view of the city government as a whole and of comprable governments elsewhere which will provide a wholesome corrective of the local and particularized knowledge that commission members may have;

–Preparation of materials for discussion at meetings and participation in the discussion.

–Drafting, first, sections of the proposed charter and, finally, the complete integrated document.

The consultant is to act, in other words, as the servant and mentor of the commission. His job is to present information and ideas so that the commission may make its decisions advisedly.

6. What forms of government do most cities have?

There remain two general types of organization, the so-called strong-mayor and council plan and the county-manager plan. Both provide for broad council control over city finances, ordinances and policy, and both concentrate in the hands of one man responsibility for supervising and directing the heads of the city's principal administrative departments. In the strong-mayor plan it is the elected mayor who holds this important office. In the council-manager plan it is a manager appointed, supervised and removable by the city council.

In adopting either the strong-mayor or the council-manager type of organization a charter commission is not bound to rigid requirements of detail. Many variations are possible, although not equally desirable, within each type.

Some Fishy Stories

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

It's difficult to understand, at least for the non-fishermen, why a man who caught his last fish on February 28, is still maintaining chilly vigil over a small hole in the ice, at dusk twelve days later.

Standing in front of his fish shanty, on the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix, Howard Woodbury Sr., matter of factly explained, "retirement past time. We moved up here four years ago, bought an old house in Ironton, dated from 1884. We restored the house completely. Now fishing is a good way to pass the time."

Woodbury didn't think it odd that he's fished almost everyday this winter, even though his last fish was an 8-pound pike caught the last day of pike season, February 28.

Some men, like Woodbury fish for the relative luxury of a shanty. Others are less protected, sitting and standing around holes they've augered in the ice.

It's more than the fast action this winter, or even hunger for the taste of fish, which brings men out. But, no fisherman seems able to explain the mystique.

"Fishing is like being a wino," offered Phil Myner, another Ironton veteran angler.

"It's the same disease, an addiction. And there's not much mischief to get into out here, anyway," Myner grinned.

Myner turned to an observer. "You should've been here this morning. That's when they bite."

The observer wondered why Myner is still fishing at 5 p.m.

"Well, I hope they'll decide to bite at night."

Myner admitted to being deeply afflicted with his addiction.

"I know these waters well. I know where to fish: in summer by boat, in winter like this. But in winter I have more time. In summer I'm tied up with my construction business."

Myrl Keller, Fish Biologist in Charge of the DNR's Fisheries Station in Charlevoix, confirmed that it had been a fairly slow season.

In Lake Charlevoix's South Arm, "The Pike Season had been fair. A few guys with tip-ups have been getting brown trout from two to five pounds. Perch and smelt fishing has been spotty on the South Arm," Keller reported.

Keller's main interest is the lake trout fishery, on Lake Charlevoix proper.

"They could see the lake trout swimming below their holes, but the trout wouldn't bite consistantly. We know they are there and a few guys have done well. Hemingway Point should be the ideal place. I just don't know why they aren't biting more."

As Keller reported, others agreed, the lake trout catch just hasn't been up to expectations.

"Many people moved to Torch Lake to fish, where they've been doing well on Whitefish," Keller added.

Dave Mathews and Ray Sobleski of Boyne City, move around like many anglers. They watch others, try to figure out where the fish are biting.

They have been alternating between Hemingway Point, where they've had some luck going for lake trout, and Holy Island, where they are after perch and smelt.

Bait ranges from wrigglers, minnows and wax worms to a grug-like creature called a "mousey."

Matthews used "mouseys" on a jib called a "Swedish Pimple."

He lay stretched out on the ice by his hole, warily watching his short rod, also lieing on the ice beside him, the line disappeared into the water.

Sobleski, also intent, squatted over his fishing hole.

"Something's bumping me down there, but it won't bite," Sobleski complained.

Ten yards across the ice, completely unattended, two poles were leaning on props at angles over the holes. Further away two men were standing in conversation.

"They don't have to watch so closely using tip-ups. They'll see the tip drop if there's any action," Matthews explained.

Rapt attention or indifference, neither produced fish that evening. Sobleski and Matthews announced they were going to try elsewhere. Woodbury stashed his gear on his snowmobile:

"Won't be fishing for a day or two," he called to Myner, "Wife's birthday. Got to do some shopping."

"Get her a fish," Myner called back, laughing.

By another shanty a snowmobile and sled were being unloaded. Charles Looze, of Advance, was just beginning his evening fishing.

"I fish at night for smelt. I'm getting ready now.

"I made a third hole here, so three of us can fish together," he gestured inside his shanty. Three holes were open on each of the three walls, each under a wood bench. Looze sat on one of the benches skimming ice off the hole opposite. Then he turned to fixing lines and organizing lures.

"I've brought a 12-volt battery and a light which we'll hang in the water below the holes. Attracts the smelt," Looze held up a small spot light.

"We use these wee-tiny fellows," he pointed at a bucket swarming with minnows. "The other day I caught a smelt, bigger than any perch I got all year. It was a foot long," he held up his hands, his eyes twinkled.

"If it's good tonight we'll stay 'til midnight."

True aficianados hope for two to three more weeks on the ice.

"Two weeks by snowmobile, one by foot," Matthews predicted.

Keller is thinking Spring, expecting a "big smelt run and good steelhead fishing in the traditional spots."

Reflecting on the winter, Keller mused, "You can't get an accurate picture of how its been, anyway. The occasional fishermen might tell you how they've done; but, the regular fishermen – they just won't talk."

Rep. Ostling Takes A Welcomed Stand

State Representative Ralph Ostling (R-Roscommon) called last week for a three-pronged attack on the problems of farmers with contamination.

We are pleased to see him take such a strong stand on an issue that needs our immediate attention and offer him all our support with his plan.

Ostling urged that the Department of Public Health take immediate steps in the interest of public health to bury cattle which have died as the result of polybrominated biphenyl (PBB) poisoning.

In addition, Ostling said he will urge the Department to take the lead in checking humans for traces of PBB poisoning to see what affect this is having on people and what can he done for them.

Ostling also urged speedy passage of legislation he has introduced which would provide low interest loans to the farmers which would be paid back to the state upon payment of claims by insurance companies.

"Despite all the efforts of many people and all the publicity regarding the plight of farmers with contaminated herds, very little is being done to help them," he said in his public statement released last week.

"Frankly I am very disappointed with the way things are going, or really not going. We just can't seem to get this thing off dead center. Meanwhile farmers continue to suffer these losses.

"Farmers in many cases have dead cattle piled up on their land and can't get them buried. At the very least these dead animals should be removed and buried.

"Bills are being introduced in an effort to help," he added, "but we can't get them out of committee and get them going. We talk and wring our hands and ponder. The time has come to stop talking and take action. This issue and the plight of our farmers has been talked deader than the lost cattle.

"Meanwhile the farmers are suffering...many have lost their herds and others are forced to keep feeding their herds and milking the cows all at a loss. Others have no money. I have introduced legislation to loan money to farmers in need and I cannot get action on this much-needed legislation.

"Now, some of our citizens are showing signs of the substance in their chemistry. The Public Health Department has been very helpful in investigating cases that someone turns in to them. Now I firmly believe we should have the Public Health Department taking the lead in checking people for traces of PBB. I believe it is necessary to begin testing people to see now what affect this is having on humans and what can he done for them.

"I only pray that we don't treat our people in the same manner that we have treated our contaminated cattle and the farmers who own those cattle.

"I would urge any person interested in this problem to write to their State Senator or Representative and perhaps through a strong public outcry we may get some action. The inaction by the insurance companies involved, the Farm Bureau, the Governor, the Legislature and the State Departments involved is inexcusable." Ostling concluded.

We can only agree with Ostling and encourage everyone to put direct pressure on all elected officials to take immediate action.

Talk Positive

The Michigan State Chamber of Commerce recently came out with this editorial that we feel needs little introduction:

The melancholy storms of pessimism about the deepening depression repeated daily distorts the whole economic outlook. It is time to accent more positive aspects of the economy.

More than 85 million people are employed-3.5 million of them in Michigan. The rate of inflation is diminishing. Banks are open. The President and Congress have proposed tax rebates of 12 to $18 billion. A business investment tax credit of 10 to 12 percent seems likely as an incentive to job producing plant expansion. Auto sales are rising. Retail store sales are up. People are driving hundreds of miles to Frankenmuth, Michigan to buy 2.5 million chicken dinners a year.

Everything is not gloom and doom. Talk more about the strengths and resiliency of the free market economy to restore consumer confidence. Stop complaining about our problems. Start acclaiming our advantages.

Parents Thank Coach Probert

Editor
Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan;
Dear Sir;

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the man responsible for our son taking second place in the state finals at Middleville this past weekend.

This man is Coach Norm Probert, who from personal experience has spent considerable time past what he is required as a coach, and considerable money probably from his own pocket on not only my son but on all the members of the wrestling team.

Also for the past live years has taken quite a few lumps working out with our son.

Also would like to thank him for taking the time to honor not only our son but the rest of the seniors on the team and we would like to see more of this.

We consider it an honor to have worked and tried to help this coach and also to have known Mike Carland who has also taken quite a few lumps and I might add for no compensation besides a big thank you from us.

Thanks again, Coach Probert.

Sincerely,
Art and Agnes Christ

Sheriff Criticized for Work

AN OPEN LETTER TO:

Mr. Philo E. Sumner, Sheriff
Charlevoix County
1000 Grant Street
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Sheriff Sumner:

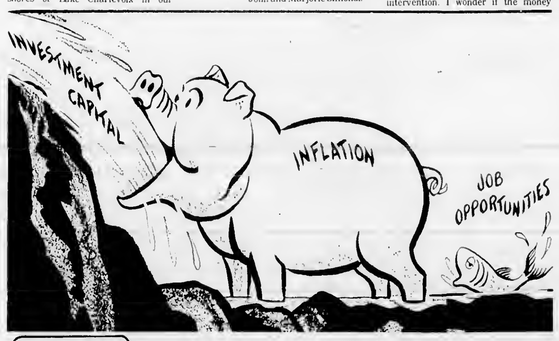
Last year our cottage and that of our neighbor were both robbed twice. No one was apprehended.

This year three additional cottages in this bay have been robbed, on one or more occasions. No one was apprehended.

We understand that around the shores of Lake Charlevoix in our general area over eighty additional break-ins have occurred within the past two months. By reports from your office, no one has been apprehended.

Since vacation properties are taxed exhorbitantly (over $1,000 annually for most cottages) and since property protection and lake safety are our only apparent tax benefits - we urge that your office acquire whatever additional staff, vehicles and equipment are necessary to stop, once and for all, this rampant theft and vandalism in our county.

Sincerely,
John and Marjorie Simonds



Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

I have finally uncovered the cause of the current penchant for chin whiskers, mustaches, sideburns and other facial foliage.

Mr. America really doesn't think he looks better hiding behind a cloud of whiskers, but he can't afford to shave them off.

Would you believe razor blades are now selling for upwards of 15 cents each?

Now razor blades are one commodity I used to buy without looking at the price. After all, if you need new blades, you buy them. There's no two ways about it.

If I remember correctly, razor blades cost about a penny apiece when I started shaving; ten double-edged "blue blades" in a package for a dime. Very fine blades they were, too. You could shave yourself for a week without so much as a scratch.

Unless I'm mistaken, my father used to buy razor blades in lots of 100 for something like 49 cents a box. That would put the price at pretty close to two for a penny.

Like I was saying, you never thought twice about the cost of razor blades because they didn't cost all that much.

But the other day I went to lay in a fresh supply and, by the prophet's beard, how prices have climbed.

I think the cheapies cost something like five for 79 cents. Packs of 10 have soared well over $1. I stood there and examined the assortment with my mouth open.

Well, I needed razor blades badly, since I was on the last one in my last package and it is getting pretty rough. But the more I thought about getting ripped off by the razor blade people, the madder I got. I left the store without razor blades.

When I got home, I announced in a loud, clear voice that I was going to grow a beard. There was a moment of silence before the girls started snickering.

"Go ahead," Judy said. "I'd like to see you in a beard."

So I started growing a beard, but it was careful to let my family know I was only doing it as a means of boycotting the razor blade people. I'm not all that nutty about whiskers.

After an hour I went into the bathroom and examined my chin in the mirror. The stubble was getting pretty bristly since I hadn't shaved since morning. I smiled wanly and tried to look like Abraham Lincoln. It didn't work.

An hour later I was back to look again. I could feel my new beard, but I still couldn't see it since it comes in pretty light.

I was about to leave the bathroom when my eye suddenly fell on a drinking glass near the washbasin. Lights of all colors began to blink on and off. I remembered back in the good days when you couldn't really spare a penny for a razor blade, you used to resharpen your old blades on the inside of a drinking glass. It was a very simple operation. You simply removed the blade from your razor, filled a drinking glass with water and moved the blade around the inside of the glass with your middle finger in a circular motion, first one side and then the other.

I fell to work in a hurry, disassembling my razor, removing the blade, sharpening it and putting it all back together again. Then I filled the basin with water, lathered my face and shaved. The blade was as smooth and sharp as--well, as a razor.

When I returned to the living room, Judy asked me how my beard was coming.

"Very slowly," I said sheepishly. I still haven't worked up enough nerve to tell her I'm sharpening old razor blades. After all, I don't want her to think I'm a skinflint.

Friske Blasts Ruppe

Congressman Phil Ruppe
House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515

Your vote on H.R. 2634 to INCREASE the debt limit by $36 billion for the next three months.

Dear Congressman:

As Congress has again spent far beyond the unbearable taxes you have put on the citizens of this nation, we see another bill to increase the debt ceiling so Congress can borrow more fiat money to spend, and can continue the enormous Foreign Aid give-away.

Congressman Young of Florida points out that: "Our economy is already reeling from the effects of federal overspending, and from government intervention. I wonder if the money market can stand up under this additional $36 billion demand. We are paying $34.4 billion annually in interest alone. We must reverse this trend toward ever greater deficit spending. To do otherwise is to hasten the fiscal disaster awaiting this nation."

Congressman Holt: "The liberal spenders (in Congress)...are destroying our currency with inflation. They are devaluing the earnings of the American people."

Congressman Ashbrook correctly said: "As federal borrowing goes up, so do interest costs. Construction and production slump while unemployment and inflation soar. Now is the time to trim the federal budget, not vote to add another $36 billion to the public debt."

Mr. Ruppe, according to Congressional Record House H601 of Feb. 5, 1975, you voted to increase the national debt limit by $36 billion for the next three months. With inflation running rampant, I would like to call your attention to the fact that it is elementary economics that only government can cause inflation. And that it (government) can cause it only by increasing the national debt to pump fiat money into the economy.

During your first campaign you made it an issue that you had voted against more big spending and had thereby saved taxpayers millions of dollars. Why did you vote to keep on playing Santa Claus to the whole world (including more taxpayer's money for yourself) and do it with MY money? Can America survive much longer as a free nation if you continue to "represent" us in this fashion?

Sincerely,
Richard Fliske

Can Ehrlichman Hit?

By JIM FITZGERALD

As spring training gets underway, I can't help thinking about a better world this might become if only John Ehrlichman could bat .390 against big-league pitching.

Ehrlichman does not want to go to jail for his Watergate crimes. He would rather do "personal penance" on a New Mexico Indian reservation. His idea is that it would be a far better thing to live in a wigwam and undo the damage done by John Wayne than to live in a prison and waste his life explaining to cellmates why it is in the best of interest of national security that John Ehlrichman sleep in the bottom bunk.

This is the "public service" theory. Vietnam war evaders know all about it. President Ford has offered them amnesty with no jail sentence if they will work 2 years at low pay for a good cause. A "good cause" job is usually something like washing windows in a mental institution or searching ADC mothers for hidden 6-packs.

There has been no great rush of evaders to accept Ford's pardon. Most of them are lined up along the Canadian border, poised and ready to return home as soon as Richard Nixon empties the first bedpan. God save the Queen.

Anyway, so far Ehrlichman's Indian plan has not gotten to 1st base (note how I cleverly reminded you this column is about baseball. Hang on; all those bases will be circled). State Rep. Lew Watchman, an Indian from Santa Fe, put it bluntly:

"We want no part of Ehrlichman. I doubt very seriously that he can do any good for us, especially with the reputation he has now."

Also, Judge Sirica refused to let Ehrlichman leave the wagon train. Not even to use his valuable experience checking for CIA bugs in the wigwam of Chief Sitting Bull's witch doctor (I also wanted to work the Washington Redskins into this paragraph which I have now done, thanks to the wonders of parenthesis).

Which brings us to the Detroit Tigers of the American Baseball League. It was recently noted that a 1968 edition of the Tigers is needed in 1975 to save the city. Amen.

Riots tore Detroit apart in the awful summer of 1967. Even worse was expected in the summer of 1968. But nothing happened because all the would-be rioters were too busy watching the Tigers win the pennant and World Series.

Once again, Detroit is in bad shape. The auto plants have laid off thousands. Hardly anyone is working except Mayor Young and he phones it in from Jamaica. There is certain to be trouble in the streets this summer. Unless...

Blood will not run in the gutters if the Tigers make another successful run for the Pennant. No true Detroiter is going to throw firebombs at police cars when Ice could be throwing beer bottles at the Yankees' right fielder.

The trouble is, the Tigers don't have a glimmer this season. As the sports writers say, the Bengals need help in all departments.

If someone would provide this help, it would indeed be a public service.

Can John Ehrlichman go to his right on grass cutters? Can he apply the lumber to the old apple when it bends? Can he go from 1st to 3rd on a bingle to right? Can he swat a round-tripper when the sacks are jammed? Can he keep his foot out of the bucket when the brushbucks shave him? Can he even understand what I am saying?

Oh well. It is probably a hopeless dream. If Ehrlichman can play ball, he'd sign with the Cleveland Indians anyway. They have Frank Robinson, big league baseball's first black manager, thus proving the baseball brass has too heard of Abraham Lincoln. Fact is, they'll probably feel terrible when they hear about Abe getting shot.

There is no denying it would be a great public service for Ehrlichman to help Robinson win the pennant, thus avoiding the first public lynching ever held in center field.

Meet Charlevoix ....Nancy Porter

Nancy Porter of Charlevoix is one of three women presently on the Charlevoix Area Hospital board of directors.

With six months experience now, the Courier has asked her to evaluate her position and role with the board.

She is presently attending North Central Michigan College with hopes of entering the community college's nursing program next fall. She already has earned an associate's degree in home economics from a Boston school.

Born and raised in St. Louis, she has lived in Charlevoix for three years and summered here several years previous to that.

Besides her role with the hospital, Mrs. Porter is vice-chairman of the Charlevoix County Chapter of the American Cancer Society.

She and her husband, Dr. Jeffrey Porter, have two children.

COURIER: Why did you decide to run for the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board last Fall?

PORTER: Mainly because I felt I had a very sincere interest in the hospital and felt I could contribute because I was successful in attracting some physicians to practice in Charlevoix. I had reservations about running because I had no experience in business, but I felt I could be useful in helping the community get more involved in the hospital like with the breast examination clinic that is going to be held. I wanted more than anything else to make people realize how lucky we are to have a hospital and that it is a good hospital. The main qualification for anyone to run for anything is to have a sincere interest. You also have to believe in it.

COURIER: How do you evaluate your first six months as a board member?

PORTER: It has certainly been a learning experience. I've been overwhelmed with all there is to learn. There is a lot of responsibility to be a board member. There is a lot of reading to do, in addition to a lot of other things to do. The board member's role has changed from when you used to be an honorary member to now where you have to be knowledgeable of the hospital and its relationship with the community. It's a responsibility you can't take lightly. The first few years will be a learning experience and I can't imagine understanding all that is discussed in board meetings.

COURIER: Have you established any goals as far as being a board member?

PORTER: I think my objective is to hopefully see the Charlevoix Hospital gain the confidence of the community by in large so that they realize they have a place to go for things that can be handled here.

COURIER: What do you feel the role of Charlevoix Hospital is in this community?

PORTER: I feel the role of the hospital is to meet the primary needs of the community and some of the general secondary needs that we are capable of handling. There are some specialized needs we shouldn't try to tackle because we do not have the required facilities.

COURIER: What type of projects are you involved with as a director?

PORTER: I'm involved with a newly organized public relations committee. The purpose of the public relations committee is to make people more aware of what's going on inside of the hospital. The community to so something for them. I would like to see the hospital go towards more public service projects. Getting people into the hospital through these programs and showing what it has to offer.

COURIER: Do you feel it is unusual for someone as yourself that has little professional background to be on the hospital board?

PORTER: Yes, I think it is unusual for anyone with my experience and age. But, I think anyone who is interested in learning and getting involved with what is entailed in that position can do it. You have to have certain interest in the responsibilities of your position. You have to attend board meetings, read publications and visit other hospitals to see that your hospital is progressing on the same high standards as other hospitals.

COURIER: Do you feel any pressure from being one of three women on the board?

PORTER: I don't feel any pressure from the other board members, but I do feel a certain amount of pressure within myself to be knowledgeable of what is going on within the hospital. I think I feel pressure to understand the problems involved with running a hospital especially today with so many regulations.

COURIER: What recent developments have you seen since you have been involved with the hospital?

PORTER: I think it would be the addition of new physicians which has certainly given a boost to the morale of the hospital. You get the impression that the hospital is moving ahead. We are also in the process of planning the construction of a new medical building which two new physicians will go into this summer. I think the future looks bright for even more physicians coming to Charlevoix.

County Officials Check Fallout Shelters

Is food rotting in Charlevoix County fallout shelters–and across the nation?

Not quite yet, but that could be the verdict if something isn't done with it in the next few years.

According to a reeent report, 136,500 tons of food stored in some 99,000 shelters scattered across the nation will rot in the next few years.

The food is part of a survival kit put in the shelters during the late '50s and early '60's during the height of the Russia war scare.

Some people think that before the food becomes entirely spoiled, it should be shipped anywhere there are hungry people.

According to a recent story in a Detroit newspaper, this has already been done to some extent where possible. But logistic problems prevent collecting countless small quantities of food stored at thousands of different sites.

In Charlevoix County, there are six shelters designated fallout shelters by Civil Defense.

They include the Boyne City Post Office, Dilworth Hotel, Boyne City; Olseon Shopping Center, Dockwide Pharmacy and Harbor Hardware, Charlevoix; Charlevoix City Hall and East Jordan High School.

"When a shelter is marked then it is available for the public," says Alice Tunison, Charlevoix County Defense Directnr.

Each public shelter has to hold at least 50 occupants and is stocked with sanitation facilities, radiological monitoring equipment and medical kits that contain bandages and dressings.

In addition, food is stored at all of the locations. Included within the food supply are shelter biscuits, a specially prepared cracker, and carbohydrate supplements or hard candies designed to provide quick energy.

Mrs. Tunison recently opened a tin can of the 12-year-old shelter biscuits and found they could still be eaten.

"They're something you certainly wouldn't use to eat and gain weight with," quipped another county employee who tried out the bland tasting crackers.

Mrs. Tunison says she checks out the shelters quarterly to see that everything is all right.

About a year ago, the government made quality checks on shelter biscuits from seven cities. A shipment of the crackers was sent to Nicaragua at the same time.

The biscuits tested, were solid, did not crumble, were not rancid and passed the taste test, the federal inspectors said.

"They're not rotting," said Mrs. Tunison about the Charlevoix County cracker supply.

"I've been hesitant about taking the stuff because they are there to be used in case of emergency."

In shelters located near grocery stores, Mrs. Tunison said they are depending on the store to be the source of supply during an actual emergency.

Other places simply have to rely on what is in the shelter, which are estimated to last about two weeks.

There are enough public shelters in Charlevoix County to house some 1,374 residents, in addition to another 10,383 home basements have been identified as safe places for people to stay based on a survey made several years ago.

"We need more shelter for people," she said, estimating that there needs to be some 5,208 spaces created to protect the estimated 16,000 residents in Charlevoix County.

In addition to the lack of shelter space, Mrs. Tunison said the county still must develop a solid alert system.

She said there is a particular with rural areas like Charlevoix County where a central alert system can only reach those in the city.

"Cut your cost of living...Live it up at home...
With new autio equipment from Puff's...The audio specialists!"

Compare this one minute test of frequency response from "Theme from Shaft" on "Scotch" low noise tape . . .

with this frequency response on new "Scotch" Special Classic Series tape. White marker bar above indicates one-third octave between 12,500 and 16,000 Hz.

Wollensak sets a new performance record in 8-track frequency response

Adding an 8-track unit to your stereo system is something you may not even be considering. Because you believe 8-track sound can't begin to compare with reel-to-reel or the finest cassette quality.

But now, the new Wollensak 8075 Dolby 8-track recorder deck is Dnt to change your way of thinking.

Example. Compare the one minute test of frequency response on the B & K Analyzer above. On the left, we used "Scotch" low noise tape in the Wollensak 8075. On the right, new "Scotch" Brand Special Classic Series tape in the 8075 brings you higher frequency response in the 16,000 Hz range. A frequency response never before reached in 8-track sound that equals the finest cassette quality and approaches reel-to-reel quality.

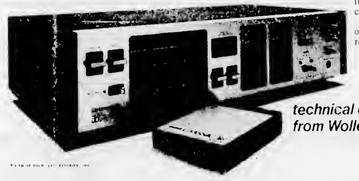
Here's how: The Wollensak 8075 features an exclusive Tape Selector Switch which optimizes the record equalization to take full advantage of "Scotch" Special Classic Series tape. Together with Dolby, you get increased frequency response and greater dynamic range.

By setting the Tape Selector Switch in the "Regular" position, you can also use standard 8-track tape and still get superior frequency response.

This new Wollensak 8075 is the first 8-track recorder to bring you the Dolby Noise Reduction System.* And it even decodes FM Dolby radio broadcasts for noise-free listening.

Other features? A Digital Time Counter keeps track of the recording and playback time. Its automatic eject system protects recorded tapes from accidental erasure while recording. Handsome styling, separate horizontal level controls, large dual illuminated VU meters, fast forward control, end-of-tape sensing, record eue, single play or repeat capabilities plus other features make this the finest 8-track you can add to your system.

Nobody knows more about sound-on-tape or has more experience in tape recording than 3M Company.



technical elegance from Wollensak.

State Bank Captures League Title

By CHUCK WRIGHT

"In a mild upset, Charlevoix County State Bank captured the overall B league title by running past the Village Milkhouse 64 to 54.

Trailing throughout the first half, County Bank blitzed the Milkhouse by outscoring them 38 to 22 in the second half. It was a wild ballgame with both teams "running and gunning."

The real key to the Bunker victory was the hot hand of Steve Martinis. After going scoreless in the first quarter, Martinis seored 21 points in the second and third quarters and ended up with a game high 27.

The County Bank also did an excellent job in cutting off high scoring Dale Boss, limiting him to just four points in the second half and 15 overall.

Other leading scorers were Denny LaCroix with 11 and Larry Skippergosh with 10. For the Milkhouse, Denny Way collected 19 and Gary Novotny had 10.

In the B league tournament, Muma's broke open a 39-39 tie and went on to defeat the Coast Guard 59-50. During the decisive fourth quarter, Bill Gengle had 6, Butch Klooster 5, and Dick Putman 4. Klooster led all scorers with 18 while Gengle hit for 14. For the Coast Guard, Bill Gainer had 17 and Marty Richardson added 11.

Wojan Aluminum had an easy time with Alray Cottages, winning 16-24. Jumping out to a 14-4 first quarter lead with some sharp passing, Wojan's were never seriously threatened.

As usual, Don Ward paced the scoring with 23. Bill Joy, hitting for double figures for the first time this season, added 14 and Don Smith 11.

Dave Moyer sank two foul shots in five seconds left to play to give John Deere a dramatic 65-63 win over Andy's Tire World. John Deere had trailed from the very beginning.

Moyer tallied 30 for the game while Hal Evans and Chuck Drury each added 10. For Andy's, Stu Cunningham hit for 22 and Steve and Kevin Johnecheck collected 14 apiece.

In the Jimmy Bogart A tournament, a double elimination affair, the Town House drubbed Kenney's Excavating 91-46. Joe Beaudoin led all scorers with 19. Spook Coleman followed with 16, Dan McKenzie and Stan Martin 14 each and player-coach Leroy Buchanan 10. For Kenney's, Jack Dunbert had 16 and Max Bolser 12.

Village Milkhouse nipped Jim's Clark 59-57 as Denny Way again led the scoring with 20. Gary Novotny had 13 and Dale Boss 11. Jerry Skippergosh paced Jim's with 25 and Clayton Jones added 14.

Bob's Sunoco eliminated Jim's the next night 86-65. Holding a slim 4 point first quarter lead, Bob's exploded for 28 second quarter points. Ron Boss had a personal season's high with 32. Hud Drenth rammed through 24 and Ike Boss added 10. For Jim's, Jerry Skippergosh had 21, Brian VanLoo and Steve McClellan 14 each, and Clayton Jones 12.

Kenney's eliminated the County Bank 49-44 by sinking an incredible 11 foul shots in the fourth quarter alone. They were behind by 5 at the end of the third quarter.

Rick Van Stedum led Kenney's with 18 while Max Bolser collected 10. For the Bankers, Denny LaCroix swished through 18 and Steve Martinis added 12.

High scorers for the week: In the A tournament, Ron Boss hit for 32. In the B tournament, Dave Moyer connected for 30.

Clinic Begins

The wrestling program in the Middle School is underway with more than 40 sixth, seventh and eighth grade students participating, Coach Norm Probert reports.

Probert said the students have been introduced to the sport in gym classes and the spring program is designed to initiate the participants in the varions moves in order to develop high proficiency in the sport.

Participation is divided into seven weight classes beginning with youngsters under 80 pounds and concluding with those over 145 pounds.

Eliminations will begin this week to select Wrestlers to participate in the invitational seventh and eighth grade tournament at Rudyard on Saturday.

ORDINANCE NO. 352

AMENDMENT TO ORDINANCE NO. 351, TO READ AS FOLLOWS:

AN ORDINANCE REGULATING AND LICENCING AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE BURGLAR AND FIRE ALARM SYSTEMS SO AS TO PREVENT INTERFERENCE WITH EMERGENCY CITY TELEPHONE NUMBERS.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person to install, operate, use or maintain any automatic telephone dialing alarm system without having first applied for a permit, and being granted same for such system by the City Administrator of the City of Charlevoix.

Section 5. At the discretion of the City Administrator of the City of Charlevoix, authorized and designated telephone numbers of the City of Charlevoix servicing such automatic dialing telephone alarm systems may be changed from time to time as circumstances warrant, and upon due notice of persons holding permits such newly authorized and designated telephone number or numbers shall be the only such municipal or city number, or numbers called by such automatic dialing telephone alarm systems.

COMMON COUNCIL

FEBRUARY 24, 1975
8:00 p.m.

The Comunon Council of the City of CHarlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Alderwoman Wallace. Absent: None.

Alderman McRae questioned his motion in the January 27, 1975 minutes in that a deadline for use of $1,000 for the Housing Commission expenses was limited to March 1, 1975, and it was not his intent. Mayor Hansen advised him to make a new motion since the new fiscal year commences March 1, 1975.

Alderman McRae offered the following motion, and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Plumm. The City agrees to pay expenses for food, travel, and supplies up to $1,000 incurred by the Senior Housing Commission and expect a progress report from the Commission on May 5, 1975. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Alderwoman Wallace. Nays: None. Absent: None.

A Public Hearing was held on the Schaekford and Rowe property and Mayor Hansen read from a communication dated February 5, 1975 of the Planning Commission, recommending that the City deny the rezoning of Lot 49 of Mason's Second Addition to the City. Richard Sutton and Gary Thorpe were present to express their reasons against the rezoning, one of them being that they felt the building should be torn down for disrepair. Barbara Schaekford was present to explain that office space would occupy the front of the building and that some repairs would be made, adding that this should discourage children from entering the building. The matter was put into committee for further study and evaluation.

Mayor Hansen read a letter dated February 5, 1975 from the Planning Commission regarding the Schleman Property recommending that before rezoning of the property for apartments from Agricultural to R-2, it is necessary for the developer to make their request to the City and provide copies of plans showing exactly what is planned for the property. The parcel which is proposed for use as an athletic and recreation club comes under the present zoning district which allows this use. The matter was disussed by Council. Because of deed restrictions covering the land or part of it, the Attorney was asked to investigate and report to the Council. The matter was put into the Committee as a Whole, meeting to be held March 3, 1975 at 8:00 p.m.

James Corbin's request to remodel a large dwelling at 102 Ainslie, into three apartments was reviewed. Attorney Berlage read from Article 4 of Section 406 of Ordinance No. 203. Mayor Hansen asked for the matter to come before the Board of Appeals since it would require a variance, and scheduled the meeting for April 7, 1975. He informed Mr. Corbin that he must apply for a building permit to cover the proposed alterations. The City Administrator was instructed to send notices to all property owners within 300 feet of the property.

Mr. Wexstaff told of the many requests he gets from citizens regarding buildings adjacent to their property which constitutes an unsightly thing and talked with the attorney about it. Mr. Berlage told Mr. Wexstaff he would comment on it at this meeting.

Mr. Berlage told Council he had checked with Lewis Andrews, who is attorney for Michigan Municipal Lengue, and that he had referred him to the State Housing Code and he found that in 1969 that Act was amended to provide for this kind of situation and the only way Council can take any action in this regard would be under the procedure established in this amendment of the State Housing Code. He said the City doesn't presently have any ordinances to give any jurisdiction, so in order to get into this he suggested that Council adopt an ordinance adopting the legislative authority contained in the State Housing Code and this amendment is a rather compliested procedure in that they have certain standards which are employed. Alderman McRae suggested that a survey be made to get rid of other unsightly buildings at the same time. Mayor Hansen suggested that the matter be put into the Ordinance Committee for further study. A meeting of the Committee was scheduled for March 3, 1975.

Mr. John Campbell was present to discuss maintaining and replacing trees in the City. He said that he would be willing to work with the Council in setting up a program, as outlined in his letter to Council January 13, 1975.

Alderwoman Wallace informed Mr. Campbell that the Committee will meet with him on a date to be set up sometime in March, and thanked him for his presentation.

Ralph Richardson, County Board Commissioner was present to request permission to erect a building for an animal shelter on the grounds of the Sheriff's department as outlined in a letter of February 17, 1975. He stated that the property is zoned R-3, and is not sure where the County stands on the proposed shelter, which will be built east of the storage building and a hedge, which would make it well screened from Grant Street housing. Their committee has been instructed to draw up plans for the fully insulated shelter and would like to start construction in a month.

Alderwoman Wallace said she would like a survey of the neighborhood made to get their opinion of the shelter being located in this area. The Council, upon recommendation by the City Attorney, asked that it be published as a Public Hearing, to consider the question of authorizing the permit to an animal shelter on the Sheriff's department grounds. The Public Hearing scheduled to be held April 7, 1975. Mr. Wexstaff was instructed to notify residents within 300 feet of the property where the shelter will be built.

Alderman McRae asked to be excused.

Mr. Wexstaff explained that some employees have approached him to have money withheld from their checks and deposited in the Charlevoix Federal Credit Union. He feels it would be an accommodation for the employees, and asked for the feelings of the Council. He was instrueted to get a "read-out" from the employees to see just how many want this done.

Correspondence from the Lions Club, dated January 27, 1975 was read expressing their appreciation to the City staff for their help in a community project.

Alderman Plumm offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Selph. THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, That this Honorable Body designate William Brodin, Jr. as the single (Street) administrator for the City of Charlevoix in all transactions with the State Highway Commission as provided in Section 13 of the Act. Resolution adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Alderwuman Wallace. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman McRae.

Mayor Hansen advised Council that William Haggard has requested to annex his property north of the Golf Course, to the City. Counellwoman Wallace suggested that Mr. Haggard come before Council to make his formal request and state his reasons for wanting to annex.

Alderman Timms commented on the storm windows. He was asked to find out if other colors are available and if there is a color that matches the present window frames.

Alderwoman Wallace inquired what progress is being made by the Aeting City Administrator in getting the legal descriptions ready on City properties to be annexed, and Mr. Wexstaff told her he is working on it.

Alderman Timms offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Selph. RESOLVED That a transfer of $50,000 be made from the Electric Fund to the General Fund.

The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Alderwoman Wallace. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman McRae.

Alderman Plumm offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Wood. RESOLVED That a transfer of $34,000 be made from the Water Fund to the General Fund. The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Alderwoman Wallace. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman McRae.

Alderman Timms offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Plumm. RESOLVED, That a transfer of $18,750 be made from the General Fund to the Sewage Fund. The Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Alderwoman Wallace. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman McRae.

Alderman Plumm offered the following Resolution and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Selph. RESOLVED That a transfer of $5,500 be made from the General Fund to the Local Street Fund. The Resolution was adopted by the following yea aad nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Plumm, Selph, Timms and Alderwoman Wallace. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman McRae.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $314,411.53 find them correct and recommend the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Timms that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Aldermen Wood, Plumm, Selph, Timms, and Alderwoman Wallace. Nays: None. Absent: Alderman McRae.

Council adjourned.

Area Correspondent Tells History

Ironton: A One-Time Boom Town

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Ross Alexander has been a correspondeat for the Charlevoix Courier since 1932. During this time, she has observed many changes in the Ironton area, where she has been handling our local news. This is the first of two stories, the 76-year-old writer is offering to Courier readers on the history of Ironton.
By MRS. ROSS ALEXANDER

My knowledge of the history of Ironton goes back to 1878 when the Old Iron Furnace made it a boom town. It was founded by the Cherrie Family and employed about fifty men at the furnace not counting the laborers in the woods or un the barges and docks. Some were white and some were Indians.

The town consisted of several streets un the hill and by the lake with wooden side walks. They had a Church , a Company Store that sold dry goods, clothing, groceries and also a Company Post Office.

The furnace made Pig Iron from iron ore that was brought in by boat from Escanaba and perhaps other places.

They lumbered off all hardwnod south of the furnace past Holy Island. Small cars on tracks were loaded with four foot slab wood and taken to the docks along the waters edge and then loaded on barges that took it to the empany dock. From there it was taken to the kilns and burned to make charcoal.

The charcoal was then taken to the furnace and burned to make pig iron from the iron ore that had been shipped in and the wood was also piled in the field adjacent in the present location of the church. Several old timers remember seeing it campletely filled with cord wood. The Woodcutters were paid by Script and it had to be traded out at the company sture by the lake. The reason for this, most of the woodcutters were drifters passing through and would work just long enough to earn some money and then move on.

There were also two Saloons one near the lake next to the ferry house where there were known to he some remembered brawls and one worker was killed during a bloody battle.

Everything was working fine until the presidential year of 1893 which resulted in a panic from labor troubles and strikes that began to get nation wide attention in the business world and also with the laborers. In fact that political campaign went down in our countries history as America's Dirtiest Election.

Mr. Cherrie was a staunch Republican and said if the Democrats won the election he would shut the furnace down and get out of business.

And that is what happened. Grover Cleveland won over his opponent James Blaine nf Maine and was president again from 1893 to 1897. Mr. Cherrie kept his word when the election returns came through he closed the furnace and blew it all up with dynamite and returned to Chicago.

A spur from the railroad in Charlevoix had been laid in the furnace and the train came through once. It was then all taken up by the railroad and discontinued. One can still see where the railroad bed was going through the Sequanota Woods through Washington Street to Sweet Brier Lane.

Houses were sold and moved to East Jordan. But several of the houses are still used today and are homes of several of our local residents. All this ruined Ironton which might have been a small city today or another Gary, Indiana.

But all this did not discourage the ladies. Eva Adams, her mother and aunt Miss Cherrie who had been large stockholders in the company decided to stay and pool their broken fortunes by take summer paying guests which all resulted in a happy thought for many in the years that followed. Eva Adams gave up a successful career of Art in Chicago and also music, came tu help her mother and aunt and for more than thirty years made a success of the little resort Sweet Brier Farm and is remembered by many that spent their summers there with their children.

Prof. and Mrs. J. Rawleigh Nelson of Ann Arbor who was the English professnr and also had charge of foreign students at the University were their first guests and later owning their own cottage near the Adams home and many others followed. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson and family of Akron, Ohio, who was vice president of the Goodyear Tire Company and Mr. Edward Holden and sister Margaret of Chicago and Clara Clemons, Mark Twain's daughter spent one summer. Guests came on the train to Charlevoix and then by boat that carried passengers daily between the three towns. A local resident Henry Webb owned a Model-T Ford and would take them to Charlevoix shopping. Mr. Holden always said that a corner looked to Mr. Webb like a red flag to a mad bull as he always speeded up when he came to one.

But for Eva Adams winters were lonely as she had the solitary task of caring for her bedridden mother. Winter after winter she spent alone in the big old house buried under snow drifts for weeks and months seeing no one.

Obituary

MICHAEL LANNEN

Funeral services for Michael Joseph Lannen, 22, were held Saturday at the Rush Funeral Home in Mt. Pleasant. Interment was in a Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

Death was self-inflicted by hanging according to Dr. Robert G. Martin, Charlevoix county medical examiner.

Lannen's body was discovered at 11:15 a.m. Thursday at the rear of 214 Bridge st. by workmen for the Charlevoix Garbage Service.

The youth, who had an apartment on the second floor of the building at 214 Bridge st., apparently hanged himself from a metal hook in the side of the building next door. The body had fallen to the ground after breaking the rope according to Byron Stockwell, assistant police chief, who investigated. An autopsy was ordered.

Lannen had come here from his home in Mt. Pleasant in August and had been employed since Oct. 1 as a driver and aide for Bergmann Center, a work activity center for mentally handicapped adults.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. JoAnne Fabrizno of Mt. Pleasant; his father, Jude Thaddeus Lannen of Lansing; a brother, Robert, 17, who lived here with him and attended the Charlevoix high school and several other brothers and sisters.

An Open Letter to the Citizens of Charlevoix

The REASONS I decided to run for the Mayor's office.

(1) Mayor Hansen would not graciously accept the decision of the council to give the voters the opportunity of permitting the study of charters. An opportunity that 243 other cities took advantage of years ago. He apparently never made an effort in studying or comparing our antiquated 1895 State written charter to the exciting possibilities of a more workable 1975 Charlevoix written charter.

(2) Mayor Hansen did not actively or whole-heartly support and take some initiative for the creating of a Housing Commission. This Housing Commission is absolutely necessary if Charlevoix is ever to have a Senior Citizen's center. It seems his policies do not include using subsidies for the betterment of human conditions.

(3) It was the intention and the wishes of most of the council to select a experienced qualified and professional Public administrator to manage the day to day operations of our city. Mayor Hansen would not accept this sensible recommendation.

So the three above negative turn of events are totally against my conception of good government. Had Mayor Hansen been receptive and could have accepted these reasonable changes there would have been no cause for me to run for the Major's office. In fact he himself gave me the motive to unseat him.

Meeting Held Last Week

County Commissioners Approve Sheriff's Contract

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, at its regular meeting Wednesday, ratified its union contract with the Charlevoix County deputies.

The union also has a copy of the contract and is expected to give its approval to the two-year contract which has been negotiated since Jan. 1.

Details of the contract will not be available until both parties have ratified it.

The board, by a vote of 15-0, gave its approval after studying the contract made available to them.

After ratifying the contract, the board adjusted the salaries of the sheriff, under sheriff and matron to compensate for the new salaries of the deputies.

The sheriff's salary was increased to $13,000; the under sheriff to $12,000 and the matron's to $2,000. The latter is a part-time position.

This was done after it was explained that a deputy, at the top of the pay scale, will receive $9,800 plus fringe benefits which would bring the total to $10,500.

When a member complained about the increases, Ralph Richardson, chairman of the public safety committee, said the deputies had bargained themselves an increase which you approved. As a result, the non-negotiated salaries must be adjusted to be comparable.

At the same time the board put a ceiling on the number of employees at the sheriff's department. They are to be the sheriff, under-sheriff, matron, janitor, 9½ deputies including the animal control deputy, snowmobile and marine deputies and six full time non-certified personnel.

At the same meeting, Richardson presented figures on the cost of an animal shelter to be constructed on county-owned property adjacent to the county jail. After hearing the figures, Oscar Ward declared the plans 'too lavish'. An 11-4 vote turned down the proposal, which has been under discussion for two years. However, before the meeting was adjourned, Richardson was advised to bring in complete figures on a 24 x 60 ft. and 24 x 30 ft. building. A metal structure with a minimum of 10 cages is proposed. The cost for a 24 x 60 ft. building would be approximately $18,000 with the cost decreasing to $13,500 for a 24 x 30 ft. building.

An ordinance to regulate the uses of burglar and other alarm systems which have been programmed into the regular sheriff's department telephone number was adopted and forwarded to the governor for approval. Under the ordinance a special number of a phone at the sheriff's department will be used and a fee charged for the service.

In other action, the board entered into an agreement with the Building Authority for the new jail, deeding the property to the building authority which, in turn, will return it to the county when the bonds are paid off. This was a formality that should have been done earlier.

Entered into an agreement with Ms. Barbara Fels to continue to act at the board's rental agent for apartments in county-owned buildings on Mason st. She will receive 50 percent of the first month's rent in compensation for the service. There are four rental units in the two buildings. Henceforth, rents will be paid at the county treasurer's office.

Voted to reconsider the building code fee scale approved at the Feb. 11 meeting and then sent it back to committee for re-appraisal.

Was advised that Joseph Martin of St. James had been named by Peaine and St. James township boards as liaison officer in any communications regarding the medical evacuation plane located on Beaver Island. It was also reported that the plane had been moved to its new hangar at the township airport and that monthly logs were up to date. There was some discussion regarding liability insurance which was turned over to committee for study.

Heard a request from Circuit Judge Martin Breighner regarding the court recorder, assignment clerk and a supplement for the judge's salary. The request was made at a joint meeting of the Charlevoix and Emmet counties personnel committees. The requests were $14,500 for the court recorder with Charlevoix county's share $6,000; assignment clerk, $7,900 with the county's share $3,200 and a supplement of $10,000 with the county paying $4,000. These people serve three counties, Charlevoix, Emmet and Mackinaw with the three sharing the costs.

Heard in a communication from the DNR that the sheriff's department could expect a cut in the department's request of $8,533 for Marine Safety.

Famous People in History

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT

Cornelius Vanderbilt was born in 1794 on Staten Island, New York. As a young man, he founded a freight and passenger ferry service between Staten Island and New York City. After selling his ferry boats and serving as a captain on another ferry line, Vanderbilt started a shipping service on the Hudson River, successfully competing with established lines. He then turned his attention to railroads and bought controlling interest in the New York and Harlem, the Hudson River, the New York Central and the Erie railroads. He merged these railroads to form the New York Central and provided service all the way to Chicago. Vanderbilt was known as "Commodore Vanderbilt" and by the time he died in 1877, the Vanderbilt fortune was among the largest in the country.

ANGOLA

Angola is not really a country but a province. It is located on the western coast of central Africa on the South Atlantic Ocean. Angola is a little smaller than the state of Alaska. The capital and largest city is Luanda. Angola is a colony of Portugal and is ruled by a Governor General who is appointed by the Portuguese government. The country is rich in undeveloped mineral resources like iron, gold and diamonds. Angola also has large oil deposits and the first wells began producing in 1969.

Race for Mayor

Charlevoix residents face a tough decision to make when they head for the polls April 7.

They must decide whether to retain Mayor Edward Hansen or elect Councilman Ralph McRae as their mayor.

Although McRae has won the spring primary by some 40 votes in an upset victory over Hansen, the incumbent mayor announced he is running on stickers in the upcoming April general election.

Ever since February's primary, the two contenders have been battling it out in the heavy campaigning for the one-year seat.

McRae, owner and operator of a local construction company, is a political newcomer having served on city council for one year.

Hansen, a Charlevoix businessman, is seeking his fourth term as mayor and has served between 1957 and 1963.

Following an intensive interview of both candidates by Courier Editor, Ken Winter, the Charlevoix Courier reveals in separate stories the city's future, as well as some of its current problems.

Each candidate was asked identical questions and expected to answer them impromptu.

The Courier asked each candidate why they are running for mayor and what they felt their qualifications were.

They were also questioned about what they thought Charlevoix's immediate needs were and what goals they had for long-term growth.

Included among other questions were whether or not the present city administrator should be retained and if Charlevoix should still consider merging with Charlevoix Township.

The questions of whether or not Charlevoix should have a home-rule charter and city assessments were raised by the Courier staff.

Finally, each candidate was given an opportunity to expound on any other issue they felt important to the campaign.

Ed Hansen

Mayor Ed Hansen says he's running as a "write-in" candidate to keep his job for a fourth year because a lot of people have asked him to run.

"I'm running at the request of community leaders who asked me to run," Hansen said about his decision to run following a narrow defeat in the February primary.

"I'm running now because for the last three years we've been very busy catching up on projects that for some reason have been delayed for many years."

Hansen sat back in a chair in the Courier editorial offices and began to list a half dozen projects that the city is attempting to complete.

He cited the sewer crossing at the bridge and the near completion of the May Street sewer project. In addition, Hansen said the city was in the process of putting in new heavy electrical service through the downtown area and across the bridge.

Hansen said his administration also saw the completion of deep water service in Boulder Park so residents could use their homes on a year 'round basis.

"These projects are in motion and some of them are completed," he said.

"It is important that they are completed."

Hansen cites a variety of qualifications for being able to retain his position as Charlevoix mayor.

"My qualifications for running a city stem from formal education in business, six years as a councilman, three years as mayor and eight years on the county tax allocation board," he said.

"My understanding of government comes from having known county commissioners at an early age and a broad experience in mechanics and engineering."

The Charlevoix mayor says he had formal training in physics, mathematics and government at the University of Wichita, Kansas.

"Probably the most important is that I care about the City of Charlevoix and the people in it, evidenced by the hundreds of hours spent in their behalf."

Hansen sees Charlevoix's most immediate need as satisfying the State Health Department and Federal Environmental Protection Agency requirements to have back-up power for the sewage treatment plant and lift station in the sewage collection system.

"One long term objective is the implimentation of an updated water supply system with modern pumps and replacement of an inoperative alarm system to tell when pressure is low along with an automatic started emergency pump," he continued.

The mayor said several streets need attention and the city is making plans for an overall program for all of the streets that need work.

In 1975-76, he said improvements projects have been set for Antrim, East Dixon and River Street.

Regarding whether or not Charlevoix needs a new city administrator, Hansen says he is standing behind present Acting City Administrator Robert Wexstaff.

"Mr. Wexstaff was appointed in an acting capacity with certain council members and townspeople against him," Hansen said.

"Why, I don't know. Mr. McRae has stated at least six times in my presence and the presence of the council that Mr. Wexstaff is doing a very good job."

Hansen said he attempted in 1973 to offer City Council another person for the city administrator's post who was a professional engineer and was responsible for a system comparable to Charlevoix.

"Mr. McRae advertised on his own initiative for a professional engineer to be city administrator for the City of Charlevoix.

Hansen said, The city has interviewed three candidates who responded to the ad and none of them were qualified to run the electrical system.

As far as Wexstaff, Hansen said, the acting administrator is willing to step down in a lesser role if it develops that another city administrator would be an improvement to the city.

In regards to merging with Charlevoix Township, Hansen says only time will tell what is the best thing to do.

"The only justification of government is when people working together can do better collectively, something that can be done as well by the private sector," he said.

"In as much as the Township of Charlevoix has indicated on numerous occasions the desire to have an expansion of city services in their area, they aresubject to the most logical method of implementing and adminstering, and blending together the two areas would be under one government."

Looking at the city operating under the present Four Class City Act, Hansen says the city has suffered no undo restrictions.

"The charter so widely claimed to be old...age itself does not really disqualify a document," he said.

"It's not half as old as the Constitution of the United States,"

At the same time, Hansen says the present city government

A RECENT contribution by the Women's Guild of the Charlevoix Area Hospital has launched a campaign to purchase a fetal monitor for use in the maternity department of the hospital.

Mrs. Darrell Dinwiddie, vice president of the Guild, is pictured presenting a check for $2,000 to Richard Krueger, hospital administrator.

Hospital Buys Fetal Monitor

The purchase of a fetal monitor for use in the maternity department of the Charlevoix Area Hospital became a reality this week with a contribution of $2,000 from the Women's Guild of the hospital.

The gift was made by Mrs. Darrell Dinwiddie in behalf of the Guild, a volunteer organization which raises money through various projects to aid in underwriting the cost of such purchases.

In accpeting the check, Krueger said he was hopeful that industry, service clubs and other would join the fund drive to raise the $6,000 needed to purchase this equipment so important to the welfare of the unborn infant and the mother.

He went on to explain that the fetal monitor is designed to allow the doctor to check the heart beat of the unborn child throughout the labor period of the mother, even during contractions. Thus, anything unusual would be detected at once. Its use provides detailed information about the fetal heart beat and labor contractions which are simultaneously recorded on graph paper where it is always available to the doctor or nurse. This is especially important in a long and difficult labor.

Listening the the baby's heart beat is an important source of information for the attending physician for the more he knows about the mother and baby, the better able he is to treat both, Krueger continued. In the past this was done with a stethescope.

However, during contractions, the tiny heart beat becomes most difficult to hear, even with this instrument. The development of the fetal monitor, after years of research, makes it possible to follow the fetal heart beat throughout all stages of delivery.

The fetal monitor fits on a table beside the bed in the labor room where it records the fetal heart beat and the mother's contractions. As a result, any irregularity or change from the normal is detected at once and necessary action taken.

Two methods of monitoring are possible. The first is indirect or external monitoring by use of a lightweight sensor usually positioned low on the abdomen and gently held in place with an elastic belt. The labor contractions are detected by a second sensor. The second method is the direct, internal monitor on which the fetal heart beat is recorded from a tiny electrode inserted vaginally and attached to the baby.

The doctor determines when or if the expectant mother should be monitored.

School Will Lay Off 12 Teachers

Twelve probationary teachers in the Charlevoix public school system will be advised that they will be laid off and their services terminated at the close of the present school year; six others will be given tenure and 64 tenure teachers will be offered contracts as the result of action taken Monday by the Charlevoix Board of Education.

At the same time, the resignation of Robert W. Bogart, business manager of the schools for the past two years, was accepted by a vote of 4-1 with two members absent and five non-certified employees granted permission to continue employment beyond the mandatory retirement age.

In approving the lay-off of probationary teachers in the school system, Supt. James A. McKinuny emphasized that the lay-offs were in no way reflections on their performances as teachers. Max Novak, president of the board, echoed his sentiments and added that it is "just a matter of economics".

Teachers who will be notified in writing of the pending lay-off are Charles Bentley, Carol Elliott, Roger Gowell, Van Greene, JoAnn Kravutske, Frances May, Plas Presnell, Larry Roth, Thomas Sothard, Frances Tollis, Jennifer Wright and James Wyns.

The lay-offs are the result of a lack of anticipated revenue. Under the law, probationary teachers must be advised 60 days prior to the end of the school year of the lay-off. Whether they will be re-hired is dependent on the forthcoming millage election.

Teachers who have served a satisfactory period of probation in the Charlevoix school system or have been offered tenure in other districts who were granted tenure by action of the board are Sally Drost, John Houting, Gayle Kaczynski, Linda Liebold, David Moyer and Yvonne Wendt.

Contracts were given to the 64 teachers who currently have tenure in the Charlevoix school district.

The extension of manditory retirement for three members of the custodial staff was approved after being tabled at the March 10 meeting. They are Ms. Lois Williams, Ms. Rose Hilton and Willis Keiser. The fourth extension was approved for Ms. Ellen Copeland of the cafeteria staff who was granted a second extension so she could qualify for state retirement benefits. Albert H. Smith, a bus driver, was also granted the extension. He will be driver for the noon kindergarten run and serve as a substitute on the morning and afternoon runs.

After a 75 minute recess during which the board went into executive session, the resignation of Bogart was accepted by a vote of 4-1 with two members absent. Ms. Ardeth Wieland cast the one nay vote. Bogart, whose contract runs until July 1, resigned for "personal reasons".

Ralph McRae

Councilman Ralph McRae credits Mayor Ed Hansen as the motivating force behind his going after the Mayor's seat.

In a recent political advertisement appearing in the Charlevoix Courier, McRae said there were three basic reasons why he was convinced to run.

He says Hansen would not accept the decision of the council to give voters the opportunity of permitting the study of charters.

"An opportunity that 243 other cities took advantage of years ago," McRae continued in his letter.

"He apparently never made an effort in studying or comparing our antiquated 1895 written charter to the exciting possibilities of a more workable 1975 Charlevoix written charter."

McRae, from his one-year tenure on the city council, says his opponent has not actively supported a Housing Commission to develop a Senior Citizen's center.

Finally, McRae says the Mayor Hansen has not excepted council's recommendations for a new city administrator.

"Had Mayor Hansen been receptive and could have accepted these reason changes there would have been no cause for me to run for the Mayor's office," McRae said.

In his interview with the Courier, McRae said he was running because he has a platform and is interested in a new charter, as well as a new city administrator and senior citizen housing.

"In my short time on the council, I realize that there are better ways to run the city and I wasn't satisfied or I wouldn't have run," McRae said.

McRae said as far as his qualifications, his short time on council plus his business background have given enough experience and contact with other people to run for mayor.

"I would like to see the city ran on a business basis," he said.

One of the most immediate needs of Charlevoix, McRae says, is the establishment of some development plans and priorities.

"I think we should have more street improvement and better waterfront improvements," he said.

"We need to beautify the city."

More specifically, McRae said there is a need to update utility maps, some of which go back to 1960.

In the long range, McRae says he would like to see each ward develop their own set of priorities.

For instance, McRae said in the winter it is almost impossible to walk along Bridge Street once one gets beyond Garfield. He says a similar problem exists on the north side.

"It's all right for the local streets, but for the main highway its a dangerous situation," he said.

"We should have special equipment to keep those roads open."

McRae said he would also like to see the municipal docks worked on and kept in better shape than they have in the past.

"I would like to see the electrical system and see if we're doing all right, I don't know if it is," he said.

"It may be ok, I would like to study it and see if the system is what it should be up to."

In the long range, McRae said the city should have storm sewers and there is a need to revitalize the water system.

"It seems that the Health Department is on our back because we are not meeting their requirements," he said.

McRae said he is also interested in seeing Charlevoix's old and unusable buildings being torn down.

"We have a lot of old buildings that are very bad to look at in our city," he said.

"We should give them some incentive, like a tax credit for a few years, to improve them."

McRae cited the conditions of several buildings along Ferry Avenue that are in particularly bad credit.

When asked about the city administrator, McRae said he wasn't satisfied.

"I want a better qualified man with at least five to ten years experience in other cities with at least some kind of experience in public administration," he said.

Actually experience with more than one city would be nice."

McRae says he doesn't want anyone just because he's local, but rather would like to see someone that has professional experience.

"The council did have someone picked out," McRae continued. "We wouldn't have worked on one so long if we had known the Mayor had no intentions of getting rid of the one we have now."

The Charlevoix City Councilman said he would like to see the city and township get together to discuss merger, as long as the interest of both were protected.

"I want to make sure the city doesn't give away its birth right," he continued.

"It takes a long time to build a city up and they should make sure they keep up their investment."

McRae said it is a loss to the city that so many of the downtown businessmen live in the township and as a result,

Need Some Help?

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Understanding, not condemnation, an awareness of the complexities of chemical addiction – alcohol or other drugs – must be recognized before help can be effective.

This is the approach advocated by the six-weeks old Tri-County Substance Abuse Center, here, and by its Director, Dick Phillips.

"If people would recognize chemical addiction as a disease," Phillips says "...not condemn...not preuch about it..."

Phillips leaned back in his chair, then he leaned forward, searching for words.

"You don't change attitudes over night.

"We are going to move slowly in the community. We don't want to rush it.

Increase Awareness

"On a slow basis, we want to increase awareness and involve the community in helping the problem of chemical addiction."

Phillips acknowledged that attitudes are changing. There is more publicity and more effort to understand drug and alcohol abuse without reinforcing the already low self-esteem of the abuser.

"Alcohol abuse is the number one drug problem notionally," Phillips explained. "But here we deal with all chemical addictions – alcohol, which is a drug, uppers, downers, whatever, to hard drugs."

The problem is becoming a polydrug situation, particularly in larger cities, Phillips observed while attending a recent workshop in Toronto, Canada. People are taking several chemicals at a time.

Counselor Helps

In her work with people under 25-years-old, Irene Richardson, a counselor at the Center, deals with polychemical abuse among younger people in northern Michigan.

"More and more are getting into alcohol, to get high, as opposed to just drinking for social reasons. They mix alcohol with another drug to alter the effect of the first drug. Alcohol has become incorporated into the drug culture," Mrs. Richardson reported.

Area doctors have observed the disastrous effects of mixing drugs. Alcohol with quaalodes, for instance, can cause severe and dangerous depression.

The Center, located above Liebermans' at 215½ Bridge Street (547-4434), employs three counselors and a secretary, in addition to Phillips. Phillips is 34, and the other counselors, men and women are both younger and older. The Center serves Charlevoix, Antrim and Emmet Counties.

Pilot Project

Mrs. Richardson's work is currently focused in Antrim County, as a pilot project, hopefully to be expanded throughout the Center's area.

"Most of our people come as referrals, from courts, hospitals and other social service agencies," Phillips explained.

"But, we hope people will come in off the street, seeking help for themselves or someone else."

Mrs. Richardson is concerned that the Center reach young people, particularly "before the kids are in the public view"--courts and hospitals, etc.

Both Mrs. Richardson and Phillips are acutely sensitive to current public attitudes. Their mutually expressed concern is to not turn off the people who could use their ability to help and not inflame existing prejudices about chemical abuse.

Establish Rapport

"When someone comes for help," Phillips explained, "Our first step is finding a counselor with whom he can relate, establish good rapport, on a one-to-one basis.

"Then we work from there. We will have group sessions, whatever is helpful."

Asked if his group was a temperance organization, Phillips laughed. "We are concerned with abuse. The majority of the population can drink without bad effect. They do not become alcoholics."

Referring to drugs, specifically marijuana, Phillips answered, "The evidence is not all in. But, we are concerned about substance abuse, misuse."

Involving the whole community is a goal for the Center. But, Phillips is quick to erase any misconceptions: "We are not going out to drag in people. We are here to help people recognize a problem and learn to deal with it."

As he talked, Phillips returned to the theme of not condemning, not making judgements.

Bring Problem

bginging problems out in the open is the Center's concern.

"There's a film whose title really hits at the problem – 'The Conspiracy of Silence.'

"Chemical addiction, alcoholism, have been hidden. The family tends to protect the member with the problem.

"Alcoholism costs the nation, conservatively, $25 billion a year. And that's only money. That is not counting the hurt to people – ones self, the family."

In Charlevoix and the other counties, the Center is looking to concerned individuals, groups and businesses for support in its attempts to educate, make people aware of the nature of the abuse problem.

"Too often people think they can solve the problem themselves, and therefore keep it hidden," Phillips reflected.

Worried Parent

"Recently a parent called up, worried that her child was into alcohol and drugs. I suggested she come in and learn about the problem, before approaching her child. She never appeared.

"My advice to parents or family is to learn, get help, before going after the individual."

The stigma of addiction is a terrific hurdle to overcome, Phillips pointed out.

The common attitude that the chemically addicted person is willfully doing something to hurt others or himself is erroneous and harmful, according to the Center's literature.

In the case of an alcoholic, for instance, it is not only mistaken but counterproductive for a spouse to yell, "You'd stop drinking if you loved me."

It's equally wasteful for a parent to admonish a child, "You quit smoking marijuana or you'll end up a junkie."

Addiction Complex

Addiction is complex. There are no simple answers, which is Phillips reason for urging concerned people to make themselves aware of the nature of the problem before taking action.

In most cases the problem of getting off the chemical – drying out, going cold turkey, whatever -- is minor. Alcoholics can be dried out in 72 hours to five days.

Experience has shown that most people need continuing support after they have stopped taking the chemical.

The individual's self-esteem, whether on alcoholic or person suffering other drug problems, is very low. Just quitting doesn't help the person get at this self-image problem, help him see himself as a good person, Phillips explained.

He suggested perhaps the general stigma and the self-esteem problem are interrelated, a vicious circle.

Attached Stigma

Even the individual attaches a stigma to his problem. So if he admitted he had a problem, openly, he would feel publicly exposed to misunderstanding, re-inforcing his own low opinion of himself. Therefore he takes another drink, pops another pill, buys more quaaludes.

Admitting to oneself that a problem exists, is hard for all abusers no matter what the substance.

"Kids today are raised in a drug culture," Mrs. Richardson said, referring to TV drug ads:

"They are told to take a pill to be happy, a spray to be sexy, something else to change their life.

"They see their parents drink. Many don't see themselves as having any problem," Mrs. Richardson said.

Phillips added, "An alcoholic's defensives are elaborate."

Changing attitudes of the substance abuser as well as the general public are vital.

Therefore, all groups, from the Center to Alcoholics Anonymous, feel support, once a person has quit a chemical is essential for recovery. With help of others, many of whom have shared and successfully overcome their own addiction, the individual can openly and thoroughly work out his own problem.

The Tri-County Substance Abuse Center is state funded through the State Office of Substance Abuse.

Tennis Players Need Money

When parents of the Charlevoix High School's tennis team heard that there would be no team this season because of lack of funds, they decided to do something about it.

According to Mr. Gunnar Lundteigen, the "something" turned out to be a $600 fund raising drive sponsored by the newly formed Charlevoix Tennis Boosters.

Tickets at $1.00 each will be sold by any member of the tennis team and a drawing will be held on May 12 at the Charlevoix City Courts.

First prize is a gift certificate for $150 and the second prize is a gift certificate for $100 for a merchandise order redeemable at Portside Spurts of Charlevoix.

Three substantial donations have already been received from the Belvedere Resort, the Chicagu Club and the Charlevoix Tennis Club before the official kick-off on April 1.

"Now that Charlevoix has four beautiful public courts, this is no time to drop our tennis team," says Hans Wiemer. Mrs. Ted Lass agrees. "Our team has a good chance of coming in first in the region. We have some outstanding youngsters coming along and they should be encouraged."

The parents are confident of their success in this campaign. Matches have already been scheduled by Coach Chuck Wright with neighboring schools.

Parents of the team have promised to provide transportation for all games away from home.

The following people are candidates for the 1975 tennis team. Paul Berg, Steve Berlage, Mark Cockfield, Dan Engstrom, John Greene, Bruce Grey, Sandy Hufford, Mark Hosmer; Audrey Kleiber, Rick Landen, Ted Lass, Erik Landteigen, Mark Malpeli, Camille Malpeli, Tom McNamara, Jim Marshall, Brian Osterberg, Bob Sandahl, Eric Slone, Larry Smith, Dave Taylor, Sue Winchester, Lisa Wiener.

Michigan Needs New Mental Health Code

A new state mental health code, designed in part to protect the rights of mentally ill patients, no doubt was well intentioned. But it has created sufficient problems for the courts, the public and other agencies to require a legislative second look.

Protecting the rights of the mentally ill in case of involuntary commitment has been a delicate, even vexing problem assigned to the probate courts.

Under the old law a friend or relative upon petition to a probate court, could have a mentally disturbed person committed for 48 hours providing the person was examined by two doctors. The court could then order up to 30 days hospitalization beyond that if doctors recommended it, and extensions beyond that upon further medical determination.

The new code creates an expanded and complicated system of hearings (three in all) even before the patient can begin treatment. At the last hearing a doctor must testify, a prosecutor must be present and there must be an attorney representing the patient unless the patient waives that right.

At the end of the hearings the court may then find hospitalization is necessary and order such treatment for 60 days, at the end of which time another hearing and testimony of a doctor is needed to determine if an extension is necessary. If the patient is held, hearings are required on his or her condition every six months.

A critical problem in the new law is a provision which requires that in order for a mentally disturbed person to be involuntarily committed the person must be demonstrably dangerous to himself or herself, or others, or shown to be not capable of attending to the basic needs of food, clothing and shelter.

The first part of that rule unfortunately creates a situation where the person must become dangerous before he or she can be brought under mandatory treatment. Early treatment, on the other hand, can frequently head off serious deterioration of the patient's condition and resulting long hospitalization.

The expanded hearing system delays early treatment and increases costs for family, relatives, the courts and other agencies such as the prosecutor's office.

We agree with Ingraham Probate Judge Robert Drake's suggestion that the extensive additional hearings could be made optional for the patient, rather than mandatory. He said this has been done in some other states.

It also appears that a better definition of what constitutes a treatable mental illness is needed in the law as it applies to involuntary commitments. It should not be limited to the question of a person reaching a dangerous stage or inability to perform basic life functions.

Calhoun County Probate Judge Wendell L. Schoder points out that there are many cases where mentally disturbed persons need help and treatment even though not dangerous and that it is now extremely difficult to help them through immediate hospitalization. He said that in the past many have been treated and out of the hospital within three weeks.

It is sad that this new law, designed to protect the rights of the mentally ill patient, also serves to deny treatment to some mentally ill patients - not because anyone doubts their illness but because their illness does not fit within a rather arbitrary category.

Other states have managed to write laws that comply with the standards of patients rights without denying help to deserving patients who, because of their very illness, are unwilling to seek help voluntarily.

It may sound like Big Brother - forcing treatment on an unwilling mental patient, but the deliberate probate court processes and the substantial advances in treating mental illness argue that denial of such treatment is a disservice to the public which, in the final analysis, the law is supposed to serve.

If other states can find solutions to these problems, so can Miehigan.

The probate judges, who must deal directly with the problem day after day, can be expected to offer amendments to ease the crunch of the new code.

With their help, the problem merits speedy attention by the Legislature. Patients' rights, of course, must be protected, and we believe the probate courts have performed with that fact in mind.

Until provisions of the new law are corrected, there are too many patients and families suffering unnecessarily.

A Bicentennial Thought

Dear Sir:

To celebrate an anniversary, such as our national Bi-centennial, is to affirm one's past, and this is good for we have much in our past to celebrate. However, I am pleased that the motto for our local observance looks not only back into history but also forward into the future.

What bothers me about what I have read and heard to date about our proposed Bi-centennial projects is not that we are not looking ahead, but that we are doing it in terms of facilities – buildings and parks – rather than in terms of recapturing some of the basic human values upon which our nation was founded.

Our foreparents came to this land to escape oppression and to establish here a society, and later a nation, that would afford equal opportunity to all for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Such a society has not yet been realized here; in fact, although we may have been on the way to its realization at one time, we have retrogressed in recent years-and need to recapture the vision of our founders.

Our values are out of joint for, while millions of our own citizens are victims of malnutrition, not to mention the hundreds of millions elsewhere who are starving, too many of our elected officials in Lansing and Washington are using tax-payers' money to create plush offices for themselves and to vote themselves raises in salary that are out of line with the incomes of a large segment of our population.

Furthermore, the croze in our country to be entertained puts millions of dollars into the pockets of a few people who are basically selfish; only a very few, like Danny Thomas, use their wealth for the welfare of others. And lest this sounds like a tirade against the affluent, those who receive welfare funds fraudulently are no better. They are stealing public money which should be used to help the truly helpless.

My point is that our values are out of joint, and 1976 would be an excellent time for us to seek to right our economic and social injustices – to recapture the vision of a land of opportunity, not to grab what one can from the public and private till, and do it first but to use the proceeds from honest labor for the welfare of others.

My positive suggestion is that the Charlevoix City and / or County Bicentennial Commissions sponsor a series of public forums next year at which we would review our national founding principals, evaluate where we are 200 years later in achieving them, and make plans for action that will make our society and- political representatives more responsive to the needs of our citizenry.

Do Not Support Charter

Dear Editor:

While the entire USA is working and planning for the BiCentennial honoring our Past, a segment of the Charlevoix citizenry is scheming to discard a city charter that has served us well for nearly a century.

Our old-fashioned contract does have some old-fashioned words–such as 'privy', indicating a place of retirement for defecation, but inasfar as a tour of the town fails to locate any out-houses for that purpose, we must assume that pride, progress and zoning has eliminated them from the local scene.

Charlevoix is unique in that our city has operated in the BLACK to date: Many towns who have modern charters are handicapped with ink as red and a Leftist's brain-cells....So the motive behind this sudden yen for change eludes me unless it is in reality a red-herring designed to confuse the voting public.

At this point in time (as they say in Washington) with inflation rampant and the entire populace struggling to keep their heads above the muddy-money waters, it seems we should be conserving our financial strength and maintaining the status quo at least until the crisis is past and the econoniy improves.

We need higher taxes In Charlevoix like we need a hole in the head. But, if our challengers have their way it inay end up just that-a bullet-hole for those how con't make it with higher tax assessments.

For political reasons, I would like to see our present old-fashioned charter re-printed in double-size CAPITAL letters, framed, hung in City Hall lobby and draped by the stars and stripes as a suitable salute to our Past, our Present and our Future...All hail to the 1976 BiCentennial!

Patriotically yours,
Bernice (Mrs. Arthur) Wexstaff

If it Fitz

(Jim Fitzgerald is vacationing. This column was first published 12 years ago. It is repeated at the request of a reader who wondered when the romance first went out of Fitz's marriage.)

Used to be I sent my domestic problems to Ann Landers for solution. But now I save stamps by getting advice from Helen Welch, the County Press Women's Editor.

For instance, I recently celebrated a wedding anniversary. So did my wife. We celebrated together because o friend asked us both out to dinner. It's o good thing Pat was invited too, because I'd have felt bad leaving her home with only 3 children to remind her of the joys of marriage.

On such occasions I like to give Pat 3 gifts. One big, one little, and one medium.

For the big gift I stayed home from the American Legion Stag Party which the boys staged on our anniversary in n sincere attempt to cause trouble.

For the medium gift I bought Pat a new garbage disposal. It doesn't make half as much noise as the old one as it grinds bones and silverware.

The small gift had me stumped until someone walked through the office carrying a perfectly handsome plastic garbage pail he'd bought at the hardware.

I wondered aloud if maybe Pat wouldn't love a pail like that? Or would that be too much emphasis on garbage for one anniversary?

The Women's Editor commented that she couldn't see anything very romantic about garbage. I replied I had been married 6 years and spent a lot more time carrying out garbage than I did being romantic.

Helen said she'd been married a lot longer than that and if her husband ever gave her a garbage can on their anniversary she would dump him in it.

So I nsked what Mr. Welch usually gave Helen as an anniversary gift.

"One rose," she said.

Well. To this unromnntic soul one rose sounds like 11 less than a dozen. But what do I know? Not much, as our wife, Helen Welch, Ann Landers, and most any other female could tell you.

My conscience twinged. I nixed the garbage pail and sought a more stars-in-your-eyes substitute. I went out and bought a bottle of pink champagne.

"Honey," I said as I entered the house, "chill a couple of old peanut butter jars. We are going to toost our 6 years of wedding bliss with real, bubbly champagne."

I'll tell you, that girl was surprised. And ashamed. She was dressed more for accepting a garbage can. Somehow her plaid slacks and old bowling shirt didn't seem right for such a romantic remembrance.

Undaunted, I continued to play Charles Boyer. In the inovies the champagne bottle is always surrounded by ice in a bucket. So I got a bucket, but careful to remove a mophead and a bar of Fels-Neptha.

While I cooled the liquor, Mother chased the kids outside and locked both doors. Yelling brats with running feet and noses didn't mix with pink champagne.

I'd always wondered if those corks really POPPED! They do. By the time the decks were swabbed, the kids were back in the house. They were hungry. Which reminded mother she'd better get the meat loaf and potatoes out of the oven before they burned.

By this time the news had spread around the neighborhood that Old Jim brought home a romontic gift. My sister-in-law and her daughter came over to see if it could be true. The phone began ringing and a man came to the door selling magazine subscriptions.

I finally got some champagne poured and raised my glass to salute my dear wife who had her head in the oven. Eddie bumped me and I spilled the drink.

Finally I grabbed Pat, dragged her to the couch, stuck a glass in her hand and said:

"By gosh, drink this romantic stuff. It's our anniversary. You're lucky I didn't bring you home o plastic garbage pail."

"Gee," she said, "Do you mean the kind with the top that locks on? I sure would love one. The top is broke on our old one and the dogs keep getting into it."

Well. That was the end of Charles Boyer in our home. I hope the hardware gift-wraps those garbage pails for Christmas.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

There was a time not too many years ago when positions in Charlevoix city government almost went begging for lack of interest. By the filing deadline we always felt lucky to have one candidate for each vacancy.

Oh, there were a few hotly contested elections, but by and large politics was a pretty low-key business in Charlevoix.

The February primary election was more or less a formality. Whoever wanted a seot could have it, no questions asked. The April primary was an out-right waste of tax dollars, because our candidates only came with, one stripe – Republican – and election on the GOP ticket in the primary was an iron-clad guarantee of election in April.

But those days are long gone.

In the up-coming general election April 7 we not only have a bonafide Demoerat — Ivan Whitley — running against a bonafide Republican — Jeannine Wullace — for the council seat in the Second Ward, but we also have an all-Republican race for the office of mayor.

Mayor Ed Hansen, who lost the GOP nomination to First Ward Alderman Ralph McRae in February, has launched a vigorous write-in eampaign to remain in office after the April 7 election. His supporters are ringing doorbells in town and writing letters out-of-town in a pitiful attempt to discredit McRae — one of the most able public servants to hit town in many a moon.

From our vantage point, the drive to unseat McRae appears to be loundering. The people of Charlevoix aren't as gullible as Hansen's workers would like to believe. You can't just come out and call a man a liar and have anyone believe you unless you offer pretty concrete proof. And of course, the Hansen people don't have proof.

Heightening the tension is the question of charter revision which has become a personal campaign issue among candidates in the two contests.

Whitley says he has a "gut feeling" thot the city is moving "too fast" on charter revision, completely ignoring the fact that the city is now operating under a state statute (The Fourth Class Cities Act) that has changed little since it was adopted in 1895. Charlevoix automatically come under the act when the city incorporated 70 years ago. An effort to update Charlevoix City government was made in 1918, but a home-rule charter was defeated at the polls.

Today, 92 percent of Michigan's old Fourth Class Cities now have their own home-rule charters, so we don't really think Charlevoixans are plunging headlong in the strange and unknown if they elect to have a new look at charter revision after almost three-quarters of a century as a Fourth Class City.

The old law is so out-dated that Michigan no longer allows new cities to come in under the Fourth Class Cities Act. They are required to come up with something better on their own.

As evidence of Charlevoix's new political awareness, 23 candidates have filed for the nine seats on the charter commission — if the voters elect to put them to work.

Mrs. Wallace, who has been one of the most industrious members of the council during the past two years, is firmly in favor of a new look at charter revision – a stance which strongly underecores the difference between her and her opponent, Mr. Whitley. Although she believes her constituency is solidly behind her on most matters, she feels so strongly about charter revision that she has made it the central issue of her campaign, even at the risk of her political future.

Of course it would be patently unfair if the emotionalism surrounding the charter issue should dim Mrs. Wallace's achievements on the council (she pushed the community garden project through the council almost single-handedly last spring), but no one has ever accused politics of being fair.

The upcoming election also has resulted in some pretty strange political bedfellows. Although both mayoral candidates are Republicans, Mayor Hansen counts a surprising number of long-time Democrats among his campaign workers.

Which, strongely enough, may be a good omen for the charter revision. Feeling is running pretty high among charter candidates thot there is no room in city government for national party politics, since the system automatically disqunlifies too many able and conscientious would-be public servants.

Charlevoix, Michigan 49720
Dear Sir,

I wish to express my displeasure and disappointment in the judgment (or lack of judgment) shown in an article you ran on the front page of your March 19, 1975 issue of the Charlevoix Courier. The article to which I am referring is entitled "Clerk Offers Ballot Help".

I applaud your effort to inform the voting citizens of Charlevoix about the service which the City Clerk's office is providing in regards to instruction in the use of the voting machines. However, your article went beyond reporting this service, to the point of being blatantly supportive of the write-in candidate. It is one thing to mention a candidate, but citing the fact that the candidate will provide stickers for those who do not want to actually write on the ballot, is going too far.

You and your staff have a constitutional right to campaign for and support the candidates of your choice. You have a moral obligation, as journalists, to report the news fairly and accurately. You should at least have been honest and declared your support for the write-in candidate on the Editorial Page, not disguised it as a report of the news. News reporting should be neutral, unbiased and give equal exposure to all candidates. You certainly missed on those counts with this story.

Sincerely,
A Concerned Citizen

EDITOR'S NOTE: Normally we refuse to consider unsigned Letters to the Editor for publication. However, since this letter was directed towards us we are running it. We are surry the nameless letter writer felt the way he did about the story. We should mention that it was his opponent, Mr. McRae, that suggested we do some type of story regarding Hansen's decision to run as a write-in candidate. In regards to charges of biased reporting, you will notice that the story contained information about both candidates. Earlier we had done a story about Mr. McRae's victory and had never really given Mr. Hansen an opportunity to say why he decided to run on stickers. Might we also add that neither of the two candidates have received our editorial endorsement to this date of publication.

Consumers' Rebutal

Dear Sir:

Mary Sinclair's letter in your edition of March 6 was so misleading that it begs a reply. My main purpose in this reply is to provide the full story so that your readers can form their own opinions - not be given one.

First, Governor Carey of New York did not ask for a nuclear moratorium. He does not have that authroity. It rests with a number of New York State agencies and ultimately with the legislature.

Second, neither Consumers Power Company nor The Detroit Edison Company has "closed their options" to coal and oil plants. Both have such plants under construction, or ready to go into construction when financing is available.

She mainly suggested that the electrical energy problems of this State are the result of the utilities' using their capital to build unrellable, nonproductive nuclear plants. What she foiled to add is that, nationwide, nuclear plants are producing reliable energy comparable to fossil plants and ot u saving of approximately 40 percent. With the exception of our Palisades Plant, our figures in Michigan would support this information. The benefits of the saving from nuclear flow to the ratepayer in the form of lower prices. What is important to keep in mind is that to solve our energy crisis in this country, all forms of energy must be considered.

Next, the impression given in her letter regarding a recent talk by Mr. Aymond is equally misleading. I was present at that meeting and there were no "threatened blackouts without ratepayers' support of nuclear programs." What was said is that this State faces serious energy shortages soon unless the utilities are able to attract the capital needed to build the facilities to meet the energy needs of this State. Again, this construction includes coal, oil and nuclear plants, oll of which are presently deferred or cancelled. This means putting men back to work now and seeing to it that this State has the energy in the future to keep our citizens employed. That was not a threat; it is a fact.

As for her views on nuclear power in general, she is a proud and vocal opponent to nuclear power at any cost – and refuses to accept anything that is contrary to her simplistic views regarding this highly technical subject.

Yours very truly,
R.C. Youngdahl

Candidate Tells Why Running

Editor:

Since 1909 when the State of Michigan gave every city the opportunity to draw up its own charter, some 243 cities have changed to the new Home Rule charter, with Charlevoix remaining among the 20 still using the old charter.

This is not necessarily bad, but neither is it a bad idea to look into a situation where 92 percent of our cities have adopted a new charter, leaving us among the 8 percent who have not.

As candidate for one of the nine commissioner positions in the April 7 election, I understand that on YES vote for the Charter Commission simply gives permission to explore the various types of charter government throughout Michigan and to search for or originate a form of charter most suitable to the needs and desires of Charlevoix voters, and the best interests of the entire community.

This research should be conducted at minimal expense but with maximum exposure of methods and progress to the public in the way of open meetings, frequent releases to the news media, etc., so that an informed citizenry could bring its knowledge, talents, and opinions into the drafting of the new charter.

In the final analysts it will be these enlightened voters who will make their decision, at the polls, of whether to accept or reject the charter prepared and presented by the commissioners, whose only pay is the satisfaction derived from working in a worthy cause.

William Ratigan

the city loses the benefit of their participation in civic affairs.

The Charlevoix resident said Charlevoix also needs a home-rule charter.

McRae says a home-rule charter will not increase the cost of city government contrary to what many people have thought.

"Half of the charter is devoted to the business organization of the city," he said.

"The important thing about a charter is that people can make it the way they want to."

McRae said the charter issue upsets him when one considers that Charlevoix represents less than .05 percent of the cities in Michigan that don't have a home-rule charter.

The city councilman said there is a need for a civic group to get behind the charter and explain it to the public.

As far as charges about poor assessing of city property, McRae said he is not aware of the situation and would investigate it once in office.

"What I have heard is hearsay, I'm concerned about the assessing office," he said.

In general, McRae said he is interested seeing more people become involved with the city.

"I want to give the council direction on things to work on," he said.

"I think we should come up with ideas."

McRae said he isn't interested in making any personal attacks and if one doesn't like his platform then they shouldn't vote for him.

Those interested in more information about city charters may pick up information at the Courier office.

Ed Hansen

is as new as the last ordinance added to it.

"I know from observation that in Boyne City, a charter fight, and it has always been a fight, resulted in five years of upset, argument and resignation to the point where they did not have a quorum to appoint a successor for the last man that resigned," he said.

Hansen says the City of Charlevoix assessment role is as equitably spread among properties, in fact perhaps more than ever before.

"There is substantial indication that the County of Charlevoix in its entirety has a total assessed valuation higher than surrounding counties," he said. "It is not equal."

"The City being part of the county, therefore is not equalized with let us say Petoskey."

Hansen said he is particularly concerned about public decision making.

"I'm concerned about city government and that the general public will come out for an issue and make a judgement of issue and / or candidates without really finding out enough about them to make a good decision from their own exploration," he said.

Financially, Hansen says the city is better off than any other city in the State of Michigan.

"This is not just accidental," he adds.

"The cash balance of the City of Charlevoix due to some extent of the last two years of prudent, careful, firm decisions have resulted in the saving against other years of operation that the relative cost has been kept real low, in fact, the lowest in history."

League Leases Ball Park

The City Council Monday night agreed to lease to Little League for $1 a year an 11.49 acre parcel east of Mt. McSauba-rd. in Charlevoix Township for use as a ballfield. The lease agreement will last for 10 years.

Doug Wilks and Gny Smith, representing Little League, said diamonds would be laid out on the property with lights and a public address system.

The estimated 246 youngsters will play baseball on the new playground this summer.

Only objection to the lease came from Jack Uhrick who lives in the neighborhood. He said he was afraid the ball field would create traffic and noise problems.

Meadow Brook Theatre Visits North

The Meadow Brook Theatre will come to East Jordan, April 1, with Philip King's madcap farce-comedy "See How They Run," and will offer one performance at East Jordan High School Gym at 8 p.m. on April 1.

The play will be presented in East Jordan under the sponsorship of Portside Arts Fair and Twin Valley Schools.

Jumping from one comically-complicated crisis to another at a break neck pace, "See How They Run" is an apt title for the boisterous track meet of activity that takes place on stage.

Key figures in the comedy's merry mix-ups are a pair of old friends, an English actor and actress who once trouped the country in a Noel Coward play. He is now a Lance Corporal and she is the pert wife of a country vicar. They meet accidentally and since the vicar is away for the evening they decide to have an innocent reunion by seeing an amateur production of their old play in the next village. The neighboring village is off-limits to the Lance Corporal so the wife decides that he should wear the vicar's clerical garb to avoid detection.

The couple learn upon their return to the vicarage that her uncle, a sedate Bishop, has arrived for a few day's visit. The frenzied fun reaches hilarious heights as five men in clergymen's garb (including as escaped prisoner) present a problem of who is who and which is which.

The Meadow Brook Theatre is a fully-professional producing theatre located on the campus of Oakland University in Rochester. It produces a season of eight plays each of which runs for four weeks. The season opens in October and continues through the following May. Its sister performing arts organization, the Meadow Brook Music Festival, opens its outdoor season on the campus in mid-June and performs through August. Although the Meadow Brook Music Festival is the summer home of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, popular artists, jazz, folk, dance and opera are also integrated into a typical summer's program.

The Meadow Brook Theatre has performed to one million people since its inaugural season in 1967. Thanks to a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, Meadow Brook's production of "see how they run" may now be enjoyed by Michiganders throughout the state.

Tickets go on sale on March 16 and are available from Northwestern State Bank in East Jordan and Boyne City at $2.50 per ticket. "See How They Run" will be performed at the East Jordan High School Gym. For information on the Meadow Brook Theatre's "See How They Run," a family entertainment, call or write Mr. Bret Riley, at East Jordan, MI 49727, phone 536-2393.

"THE CHARTER QUESTION"

Vote YES on the Charter Revision.....

When you vote yes you are not creating a new charter now. You are simply allowing the study for a new charter. It will no doubt lead to a new "Home Rule Charter" proposal. But do not forget this future proposed charter must be eventually approved by the voters of Charlevoix.

Right now 99 plus percent of all people living in Michigan cities now enjoy their own written Home Rule Charters. Less than ¾ of 1 percent of Michigan city persons (Charlevoix included) still remain under the 1895 State written 4th class city charter. Is not this fact getting home to the people of Charlevoix. I wonder what other reason the citizens of our town require. To put it more plainly, 5,625,265 people of Michigan have home rule charters and only 41,250 people (Charlevoix included) have the 1895 charter.

The cost of the Charter revision could cost $2000 or less. It could save the city many thousands of dollars in the future. Those people spreading false rumors of fantastic cost for the revision are simply using a scare tactic to prevent a orderly improvement of our city government. Two thousand dollars is a small price to pay for a change that may last a hundred years or more.

The few people against the Charter revision are certainly not concerned about the best interests of our city. It is just unbelievable that we have some people unwilling to let Charlevoix judge for it's self, to have a charter of their own making. Most of our voters were un-aware that they could have such an opportunity. Can you imagine Traverse City trying to make it under a Charter like ours. They would laugh you all the way back to Charlevoix. The most frustrating realization is that we are considering a charter revision now. It should have been done years ago.

VOTE.....YES.....on the Charter Revision and vote for the nine charter commissioners too.

They receive No pay. Would you do as much for Charlevoix??????????

Swanson Upsets Several Teams

By CHUCK WRIGHT

The big story in the Jimmy Bogart tournament is Swanson's K & D.

Swanson's bulldozed their way to two stunning upsets over the pre-tournament favorites, the Town House and Freedman Artcraft, and now have become the team to beat in the double elimination tournament. They are the only undefeated team.

Bruce Meggison's 25 foot jumper with four seconds to play broke a 59-59 deadlock and gave Swanson's their 61-59 victory over city league champs Town House.

The game was a see saw affair from the beginning. After Swanson's took a 21-15 first quarter lead, Town House blitzed them 18-7 in the second. Swanson's immediately scored eight straight points at the beginning of the second half to take a narrow lead.

Meggison paced the scoring with 17 while rugged Kevin Swanson, intimidating as usual on the boards, chipped in 13. Doug Winnel added 10 more with his patented off balance jump shots. For Town House, Joe Beaudoin had 15, Dave Strawbridge 14, and Spook Coleman 12.

The battle against Freedman's was not quite as thrilling as Swanson's won 69-64. After falling behind early, Swanson's came back to take the lead late in the first half. During the second quarter, Swanson's sank 13 of 15 foul shots.

Bernie Ward kept Freedman's in the game in the third quarter as he went 7 for 7 from the foul line. Ward was an incredible 12 for 12 during the game.

Despite Ward's accuracy, Swanson's began pulling away in the second half. Dave Swanson led the assault with 6 third quarter points and at least eight key rebounds. The lead was built up to 12 points before Freedman's made their last bid.

Roger and Denny Crain led a brief Freedman flurry that closed the gap to three points with a minute remaining. After bringing the ball down and working it around patiently for thirty seconds, Randy DeYoung hit on a forced ten footer from the baseline. That put the game out of reach.

Bruce Meggison led Swanson's with 17. Dave Swanson and DeYoung both hit for 14. Ward led all scorers with 22. Roger Crain added 18 and Denny Crain 14.

Swanson's position in the driver's seat is not really that surprising. Two weeks ago (Courier, March 11), Swanson's was touted as a possible favorite in the tournament.

In other Bogart Tournament action, Bob's Sunoco eliminated the Town House 71-63. Hud Drenth found his scoring touch tu pour in 28 points. Ike Boss contributed 18 and Ron Boss 16. Dave Strawbridge was high man for the Town House with 16. Joe Beaudoin added 13 while Dan McKenzie and Spook Coleman had 12 each.

Girls Track Set

With their 1975 track season scheduled to open Monday, April 21, the Charlevoix girls track team is busy with conditioning drills and fundamentals in preparation for the event.

Mrs. Marie Osterberg, track coach, said that 55 candidates for the team have signed up for the spring sport and are working with weights and running in order to be in shape for practice on the track when weather permits. Among the candidates are approximately 40 freshmen who are expected to give the team depth.

Among the returnees from last season are Cheryl Pence who will again do the high jump and shot put; Teri Hufford, the mile; Barb Meadows, mid-distances; Donna Jones and Gail Powell, the 440 yd. run; Amy Potter, a distance runner; Terri Novotny, 220 and relay; Kay Currey, hurdles, the 440 and the long jump; Jodi Alger, the relays and dashes; Ginny Eby, the hurdles, long jump and relay and Denise Boss, the 880.

Mrs. Osterberg said the candidates are showing a great deal of enthusiasm and hard work and should shape up into a strong team.

"I Didn't Promise You A Rose Garden"

To all the voters of Charlevoix.....

I have tried to conduct a clean and honest campaign. I will continue to do so..... I have endeavored to stand strictly on my platform and if elected will do exactly what I promised..... I would like to repeat and repeat, emphasize and emphasize that I am my own man, 100% independent, no one tells me what to do-- including my wife..... I am expecting no favors nor am I giving favors to anyone.

Frankly to me at this time voting (YES) on the Charter Revision is more important than electing the next mayor. You should assume some responsibility for Charlevoix's future and contribute some input toward good government. You owe it to the next few generations to VOTE YES on the Charter Revision.

Sincerely Ralph McRae

Contests for Mayor and Council

Charlevoix Prepares for City Elections

By FRAN MARTIN

Weather and absentee ballots are expected to play major roles in Charlevoix's general election next Monday.

Political contenders are hoping for good weather to bring out a large vote in an election that is anticipated to be close in several races.

Some 309 absentee ballots, the largest on record, are also expected to play a decisive role in who will become Charlevoix's next mayor.

Candidates for the top ballot spot of mayor are Ralph A. McRae who won the nomination in the Primary Election by a 440-396 margin and incumbent office-holder, Edward P. Hansen, who is a write-in candidate.

In the only other contest, which is confined to the second ward, Jeannine Wallace, incumbent Republican council woman, is being opposed by F. Ivan Whitley, a candidate on the Democratic ticket.

Voters throughout the city will also be asked to cast their ballots on two other issues, namely, the City Charter Revision Proposal and the City Charter Commission candidates.

The first proposal is on the ballot in simple concise language asking "Shall there be a General Revision of the Charter of the City of Charlevoix."

A "Yes' vote will allow the Charter Commission to draw up a charter to meet the needs of the City of Charlevoix for your approval at a later date.

The second issue on which all city residents will be asked to vote is for nine persons from among 23 candidates to whom the job of drawing up a charter will be delegated.

Offier candidates who are unopposed on the Republican ballot are: Ida A. Heise, city clerk; Annabelle Cunningham, city treasurer; Raymond V. Wood, first ward alderman and George Plumm, third ward alderman.

Polls at the City Hall will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. Monday, April 7.

The deadline for voting by absentee ballot is 2 p.m. Saturday, April 5. In order to do this, a registered voter must ask for an application form, fill it out and return it to the office of the City Clerk in order to receive a ballot. The ballot must then be returned to the office of the City Clerk via mail or in person by April 7.

The office of the City Clerk will be open until 2 p.m. Saturday for the convenience of those wishing to avail themselves of this service.

Will Mrs. Wallace Be Re-elected?

Jeannine Wallace, who is now serving the Second Ward as Alderwoman, would like to put her experience in that position to work for at least another year.

That is one of the reasons the Republican is running for re-election, she says, "and, also, I care what happens to Charlevoix.

"As a Charlevoix business woman I have been made aware of the problems of people in the community, and because of this awareness, hopefully I can help solve some of them."

Mrs. Wallace sees the repairing of our city streets as an immediate need. "Then we must embark upon a program of keeping them in repair. Another immediate need is compliance with state and federal regulations for separation of storm and sanitary sewers.

"One of my long-term projects is to keep Charlevoix "Charlevoix the Beautiful". I am interested in a tree-planting program and a bourdwalk along the channel. Our parks need up-grading, too. I want everyone to be able to enjoy a beautiful city," the Councilwoman continues.

About the merger of the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township Mrs. Wallace says, "I think that in the long run it would be advantageous to merge with the Township because it would provide for more economical services. After all, we are really one community."

Mrs. Wallace feels it would be advisable to have a Charter Commission look into the question of charter revision. "I think there are a lot of well qualified people running for the Charter Commission who would do a good job of studying the subject. It should be remembered that a "yes" vote on the charter proposition only means that the subject should be studied," she says.

It is obvious there are some assessing discrepancies in the city, according to Mrs. Wallace. "We need a full-time qualified assessor such as we had at one time who could work on these problems and eliminate some of the glaring discrepancies we now have," she believes.

"The question of zoning is also a concern to the candidate. "We have adopted multiple housing zoning for the city, but our neighborhoods are still vulnerable. There is too much R-2 zoning in single-family neighborhoods. They should be protected by upgrading zoning."

As far as city government in Charlevoix goes, Mrs. Wallace is concerned about the lack of communication between the people of Charlevoix and the City Council. She says, "In my two years in office I have tried to respond to complaints and requests made by people in my ward, and I hope that as a city official I can continue to make people aware that I care and am interested in their problems."

MRS. WALLACE

Jeannine Wallace owner of the Shop of the Gulls, resides at 301 Clinton Street. She and her husband, Larry, who is an insurance agent, have two children. Daughter Maurine "Murphy" attends Alma College and daughter Rebecca is a first-grader. Mrs. Wallace attended Grand Rapids Junior College and Michigan State University.

Or Will Ivan Whitley Be Elected?

IVAN WHITLEY

Ivan Whitley, Democrat, is running for City Council from the Second Ward because, "From attending council meetings, which I have done regularly, I feel that the people of the Second Ward are not getting the representation that they deserve. I am not saying that Mrs. Wallace has not done her part for the city as a whole, but it's the Second Ward that needs representation."

Whitley adds, "My qualifications for Alderman are my strong interests in city government, which is why I have attended Council meetings for five years, and almost every one of them in the past year. I was born and raised in the Second Ward and feel that I know the problems of the ward.

"From going door to door in the Second Ward and from looking around the city as a whole, I find that a street program is our immediate need. I also think the appointment of Robert Wexstaff as a permanent city administrator should be made soon. If the council does not see fit to support Wexstaff, I will be willing to support another qualified candidate."

About long-range objectives Whitley says, "The public walks to beaches, docks, parks and other public areas all need attention. The Ferry Avenue beach dock especially needs repairs."

About the present city government he says, "I feel that heads of departments should have more jurisdiction over the men in their departments, and more part in decision-making in their departments."

Whitley says he has seen the feasibility study being prepared by the Regional Planning Commission and is "impressed by the way they are handling the merger question. There is undoubtedly much to be gained by a merger of Charlevoix and the Township of Charlevoix."

On the charter question, Whitley feels that "our present charter may be old, but it is tried, tested and serving us well. A city that is operating in the black can't have too bad a governing body. Compare our city to any other of its size and it would rank high by any standards. I am also against splitting up the ward system by an at-large election. The charter would create more government, with more cost. In this time of inflation we don't need to rush into this. One more year will not make any significant difference."

Charlevoix needs more R-1 zoning to restrict multiple family dwellings, the candidate says.

Whitley was born in Charlevoix's Second Ward. He is employed as a carpet installer at Hess Furniture Company and resides at 222 Sherman Street. Mr. and Mrs. Whitley have four boys.

A graduate of Charlevoix High School, Whitley spent three years in the United States Army as a paratrooper.

Charter Commission Candidates

Vote Monday April 7th

Recently the Courier queried candidates for the Charter Commission, who will be elected on April 7. There are 23 candidates for the nine-person Commission. Below is the information received from those responding to the questionnaire.

JAY OLIVER, 408 West Lincoln Street, is a member of the nursing staff at Charlevoix Area Hospitol. He belongs to the Greensky Hill Indian Mission and the Michigan Historical Society. Oliver is running for the Charter Commission because he "was approached by one of the civic leaders of Charlevoix who stated that there should be at least one delegate from the Indian Community."

CHARLES A. DUERR, 209 East Dixon Street, is a field representative and director of research for the United Way of Michigan. He says, "I think it's time that our charter be reviewed by a citizens' commission. If it becomes apparent that a new charter is needed, one should be drafted and submitted to the voters. If the present one is still serviceable, it will be in the public interest to have established that fact....I feel I can approach this problem and take part in discussions...free of any bias or political influence."

FRANK G. HOFFMAN, 223 Sherman Street, is an attorney. He states his reasons for running as, "(1) Local control - home rule, by means of a charter, as approved by the community is the best possible way to maintain local control of city government. (2) Economic growth - future economic growth of Charlevoix ... can best be utilized and directed through home rule."

DONALD D. LUEDKE, 800 State Street, is a charter boat operator and school bus driver. A veteran of 27 years with the Coast Guard, he is executive director of the Big Brothers/Sisters of Charlevoix County, public education officer of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, president of the Legion of Mary, and member of the Charlevoix County Council of Social Agencies. Luedke seeks the Commission post because of "the problems we have observed in the past concerning the duties and responsibilities of city administrators; the lack of council response to community concerns; the apparent confusion over municipal services (which) indicate a need for better organization of the rules under which the city is operated."

HOWARD D. HORTON, 311 West Hurlbut Street, is a chemist in the cement division of Medusa Corporation. He is president of the AFL-CIO Top of Michigan Central Labor Council and member of the American Legion and Christ Episcopal Church and a board member of the Community Chest. He is running for the Charter Commission because, "I believe that our city should have a document that represents our needs and the attitudes of today, but is flexible enough to allow for future conditions. Each city today is unique with its own special problems, and yet it also must be ready to adapt to state and federal programs. Therefore, I feel that Charlevoix should not be handicapped with fixed regulatory laws which may be argued as to their meaning and application. In my judgment, a City Charter would resolve such problems."

DIANE ROSENDAHL, 110 Chicago Avenue, is a homemaker. She is a member of the Order of Eastern Star and the Michigan Democratic party. For six years she has served on the Election Board. In answering why she is running for the Charter Commission Mrs. Rosendahl says, "Our present charter was drawn up by the State Legislature in 1895, and needless to say grown quite a bit within the past 80 years. We are one of 20 cities left in the State of Michigan that is still running their city government on that original charter. Our citizens want and need modern government. I personally believe that it is about time we do something about it and only with a new charter can we accomplish that goal."

LARRY LEVENGOOD, 205 Prospect Street, is employed by the Environmental Health Division of the District Health Department. He is running for the Charter Commission "to express interest in the Charter Commission and to support the development of a new charter for the City of Charlevoix.

WILLIAM RATIGAN, 223 Park Street, has been on the faculty of Charlevoix High School Schools since 1959 and a senior extension lecturer of Michigan State University since 1963. Dr. Ratigan writes, "Since 1909 when the State of Michigan gave every city the opportunity to draw up its own charter, some 243 cities have changed to the new Home Rule charter, with Charlevoix remaining among the 20 still using the old charter. This is not necessarily bad, but neither is it a bad idea to look into a situation where 92 percent of our cities have adopted a new charter, leaving us among the eight percent who have not. As candidate for one of the nine commissioner positions in the April 7 election, I understand that a YES vote for the Charter Commission simply gives permission to explore the various types of charter government throughout Michigan and to search for or originate a form of charter most suitable to the needs and desires of Charlevoix voters, and the best interests of the entire community."

LAWRENCE R. FEINDT, 1103 Grant Street, is a registered land surveyor and treasurer of the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Co. He is a member of the Michigan Society of Registered Land Surveyors and the American Congress on Surveying and Mapping. Feindt says, "I have had the unusual opportunity of being raised along with the development of our business, which embraces land surveying and land title abstracting. This has given me constant personal contact with multifarious forms of government....This association, in conjunction with the knowledge I procured in obtaining my degree in Civil Engineering from the University of Michigan.... provides me with a versatile background to draw upon in making the paramount decisions which would be necessary after the completion of the study by the Charter Commission. It is logical that we, as a city, take an extended look at the antiquated charter established by the State Legislature under the 4th Class City Act of 1895. We must discover to what degree it can successfully cope with our present-day mode of living."

RONALD L. MOORE, 504 Meadow Lane, is a school psychologist employed by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. He is a member of the First Congregational Church, which he serves as head of the Board of Deacons, and also a member of several educational and psychological associations. Moore writes, "I feel that we should examine our present charter to access its strengths and weaknesses, and modify and re-write if necessary the charter to meet our needs. I feel, for example, that job descriptions and responsibilities need to be more specific. I feel that while I have no experience in city government, I am unbiased and openminded, willing to listen to all viewpoints and do what is best for our city. I feel that our city needs a good, comprehensive long range plan, and that vested interested should be minimized."

DR. WALTER F. HOFFMAN, 103 Park Street, is a dentist and former city councilman. He belongs to the American Legion and

The second worship service of the Christian Reformed Church will be held at 7:30 p.m. during the summer months beginning on Easter Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Kooyer and daughter Alicia Ann of Grand Rapids were weekend visitors with his folks, Mr. and Mrs. John Kooyer, and brother, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Kooyer and daughter.

Mrs. Dessie Farrell returned Tuesday, after spending two months in Airzona and Florida. In Florida she visted her sister, Rose Bearss, in Ellenton.

To welcome Dessie Farrell home a family dinner was held at her son's Chester Farrel and family's home. Also present were her son, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Farrell of Norwood and his daughters and family, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sokoloski and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Louiselle and 3 children and Mr. and Mrs. John Louek.

March of Dimes Gives $1,000 to Hospital

The Charlevoix Area Hospital is $1,000 nearer to paying for a fetal monitor, thanks to a check presented to the hospital last week from area March of Dimes funds.

Two weeks ago the Woman's Guild of the hospital contributed $2,000 toward the purchase. Total cost of the monitor will be approximately $6,000.

A fetal monitor is designed to allow the doctor to check the heart beat of the unborn baby during labor and thus detect anything unusual.

Mrs. Dorothy Porter, publicity chairman for the March of Dimes, says that their contribution for the fetal monitor is particularly significant because the main purpose of the March of Dimes is to help prevent birth defects and save the lives of babies.

To add to the fetal monitor funds, hospital personnel will hold a bake sale at the hospital next Saturday, April 5

March Has Successful Drive

Mrs. Janet Ready, Charlevoix County March of Dimes Chairman, reported that the campaign this year was a success in spite of economic and financial pressures on county residents.

The organization collected $5,373.25 compared to last year's $5,265.31.

The main source of funds was from the Mothers' March where $1559.31 was collected from Charlevoix; $1,049.71 from Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Springwater Beach, and Walloon Lake; and $681.70 from East Jordan.

Mailers brought $760.50; cannisters, $102.90; coffee day, $110.00, and blanket tosses at sports events, $86.91. The Beaver Island residents contributed $248.85 (which is more than $1.00 per capita) and the elementary schools gave the following: Charlevoix and St. Mary's, $155.83; Boyne City, $96.46; and East Jordan, $132.97.

In the Business and Industry category, $125.00 came from Charlevoix and $15.00 from Boyne City. The Rotary Club of East Jordan contributed $219.86 from their pancake supper and the Boyne City Rotary gave $28.25. This gives a grand total of $5373.25 as compared to $5,265.31 collected last year.

Mrs. Ready said sixty percent of the funds collected will go to the National Headquarters for research and development with the remaindcr staying in Charlevoix County for polio patients who need assistance, birth defect babies, genetic counseling, and prenatal classes.

Any Charlevoix County resident is encouraged to apply for assistance from March of Dimes funds by contacting Mrs. Ready at 547-9724.

She said the organization will also be contributing $1,000 toward the purchase of a fetal monitor for the Charlevoix Area Hospital following a recent decision by the March of Dimes Board of Directors.

In recent years, Mrs. Ready said the March of Dimes campaign has emphasized prevention of birth defects and that this machine would contribute toward saving infant lives in the Charlevoix area.

Health Department Plans P.B.B. Talk

Dr. John Isbister, Chief of the Bureau of Community Health, Michigan Department of Health, will hold a meeting today (Wednesday) in Bellaire to discuss the effect of consumption of poly-brominated bi-phenyl (P.B.B.) on humans.

The meeting is scheduled for 1:30 in the Bellaire County Court House in Bellaire. Dr. Isbister is interested in talking with farmers whose herds have been poisoned with P.B.B. and persons known to have ingested large amounts of P.B.B. contaminated foods.

P.B.B. is a fire retardant which was mistakingly taken for a food supplement and added to some animal feeds distributed throughout the area. Animals which have been given the feed lose weight, develop skin ulcers, often become deformed, and many eventually die. Production by milk cows also is noticeably reduced. Newborn aninals may be deformed or still-born.

To date it has been impossible to make any long-term, in-depth studies of the effect of P.B.B. on humans.

Michigan AP STATION BREAK

The Michigan Associated Press Broadcasters Association

WVOY: STATION OF THE MONTH

One of Michigan's newest radio stations, WVOY signed on just last July. It operates daytime with five kilowatts on 1270.

WVOY News Director Bob White says the goal of the station is "to bring together experienced journalists with a major market sound to northwestern Michigan." White is assisted in this effort by newsman John Yaroch.

Calling its :55 newscasts the "News Connection," WVOY uses fast paced delivery of short stories with plenty of actualities.

"We try to cover the local news in five counties — Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet, Grand Traverse and Otsego," says White.

Three times a day, the sports portion of the newscasts is replaced by a rundown of stock market activity compiled by a local broker.

"WVOY believes the listener should get all the news he needs — news that affects his life and the lives of those around him — presented crisply and creatively to avoid tune-out," says White.

WVOY's General Manager is Terry Edger, whose office looks out on picturesque Charlevoix harbor.

WVOY News Director Bob White prepares a newscast while staffer John Yaroch looks on.

When Are We Going to See Spring in Charlevoix the Beautiful?

Who Knows.

National Collection of Fine Arts Wants to Locate Old Paintings

If you have an original painting done by an American artist before 1914, the National Collection of Fine Arts, a part of the Smithsonian Institution, wants to know about it.

The National Collection is inventorying the pictures as part of the Bicentennial celebration. There are no rules for what the project will accept in the way of painting information, except for the 1914 cut-off date.

The treasure hunt is turning up some lost masterpieces, such as Frederic Remington Indian battle and a Charles M. Russell buffalo chase. Works of many good artists who did not make a name for themselves in their day are now being recognized. The Michigan painter, Horatio Shaw, is typical, according to a New York Times article.

"Nobody had heard of him, but when we got 30 photographs of his work we showed them around and everybody smiled with pleasure to see them...In fact, as a direct result of the inventory, the National Collection has brought a sizeable sampling of Shaw's works. to its own gallery, where it is on exhibit through March 16 – although the object of the Inventory is not to bring actual works to Washington, only the information about them," the arcticle quotes a spokesman from the National Collection.

The inventory welcomes help from any kind of local group. Report forms are available from the Bicentennial Inventory of American Paintings, National Collection of Fine Arts, Washington, D. C., 20560.

Tax Jitters

General property taxes in the state of Michigan yielded the astronomical sum of $2,420,402,561 for the year 1973-1974, according to a report recently released by the Citizens Research Council of Michigan.

Broken down, the taxes are levied as follows:

County	$ 294,461,217
township	53,656,573
City	515,281,172
Village	13,811,760
School	1,543,161,839

The Citizens Research Council explains that the tax base is State equalized value, or 50 percent of true cash value. The rate varies by local unit, but certain statewide constitutional and statutory restrictions exist.

The report states, "The rate may not exceed 15 mills ($15 per $1,000) except 18 mills in counties in which allocation among jurisdictions is permanently fixed by voters."

Excluded from these limitations are: (1) Debt service taxes for all debts of all local units; (2) Extra-voted millage rates up to 50 mills for not more than 20 years; (3) Taxes imposed by those units having separate tax limitations provided by charter or general law (cities, villages, charter townships, charter counties, and charter authorities, including community college districts).

General property taxes are assessed by the township or city and collected by the township, city or village treasurer. Delinquent taxes are collected by the county treasurer.

Charlevoix Cancer Crusade Underway

The Charlevoix County chapter of the American Cancer Society opened its 1975 drive last Wednesday with a coffee at the Community Reformed Church.

Goal for the drive is $11,750, according to Mrs. Harvey Varuum of Boyne City, president of the local chapter. This represents a $650 increase over last year's target.

About $4,650 of the money collected will remain in Charlevoix County to provide services, dressings and other material for needy cancer patients. The remainder will go the American Cancer Society for continued research into the cause and cure of malignancies.

At the kick-off coffee, Larry Moore, area director of the American Cancer Society was guest speaker. A film on leukemia titled "Michael and Me" was also shown

It's Not Early to Think Spring

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

It is not too early to think Spring, or at least to begin preparing for it, by planting seeds indoors, suggests Ed Rehman, County Extension Director.

Rehman advises that tomatoes, cabbages, brocolli, green peppers, cauliflower, brussel sprouts and even some flowers can be begun indoors now, so they'll be ready to transplant around Memorial Day.

"The best soil for germinating indoors is one part peat to one part good garden soil, which should be sterilized to kill soil-borne diseases and prevent "damping off," (when young plants rot at ground level)," Redman says.

"Damping off, can go through a flat like wild fire.

"To sterilize soil, put it in a shallow baking pan with one or two cups water, cover with aluminum foil and bake as you would a medium sized potato," Redman prescribes.

Before planting, the soil will have to be re-watered.

Plant in anything, from flats to old flower pots, he says. Plant seeds an inch apart, then water. Warmth, sun and moisture are the necessities. Some people like to cover the germinating seed flats with plastic kitchen wrap, which helps, Redman agrees, but once the plants are up, it must be removed to allow air to circulate.

Either thin or transplant seedlings an inch apart after they get their true leaves, he adds.

"And if you want to get corn way ahead of your neighbor," Redman suggests, "Try planting some as early as April first. As soon as you can work the ground at all. Corn does a lot of growling below the ground, so surface freezing won't matter. And, if you lose some, it isn't a great loss."

Local Courts Control County Cash Flow

The din and the tumult arising in 83 towns across Michigan are coming from the courthouse square in every county in the state.

Or if the clamor is not yet rising, it will as soon as the Michigan Association of Counties and other local government groups spread the alarm.

A recent decision by the Michigan Supreme Court takes spending control for salaries of court employees away from county boards of commissioners and hands it to the judges instead.

In other words, in the circuit court in every county, the judge can decide how much court employees should be paid and just send the bill to the commissioners: "Here it is fellas. Pay it."

The issue was struck in Livingston County where Circuit Judge Paul Mahinske ordered implementation of a contract negotiated between judges and a court employees' union, despite objections of the commissioners. The contract called for more money than the commissioners had appropriated for court salaries.

Judge Mahinske is not to be unduly faulted (or credited if you insist), in the matter; he was just doing what the state court hierarchy wanted,a test case, and Livingston County simply presented the handiest target at the moment.

The Livingston commissioners claimed, among other things, that court enforcement of the control violated the doctrine of separation of powers, since commissioners were the legislative body and had the power to appropriate money.

The commissioners were responsible for raising money for county operation so should have the right to say how it should be spent, they argued.

However, the Supreme Court administrator approved the Mahinske contract as "reasonable and necessary," and - not unexpectedly - the state Supreme Court has now agreed in formal manner that the process is fit and proper.

The vote was 5-2 on the state Supreme Court, with the majority reserving for the court the sole discretion of what is "reasonable and necessary" in the way of court employee contracts.

The minority opinion reasoned unsuccessfully that "courts do not possess inherent power to appropriate money or require expenditures for whatever needs the judge, the court administrator and this court, on review, determine is reasonable. Inherent power exists only for true emergencies." However, this view did not prevail.

This decision presents a lamentable direction for local government structures.

The courts, in effect, are set over and above any other section of local government. The circuit judge - and, you can be assured, the district judge and even the probate judge in future application of the same principle - is now legally determined to know what is best, with the only review coming from other judges up the line.

The legislative branch of local government - in this case, the county board of commissioners - now will have the responsibility to pay the bills, without discretion, once the judge determines what should be paid.

Barry McGuire, executive director of the Michigan Association of Counties, already is calling for a consitutional amendment to thwart the Supreme Court decision.

"The judges want to call the shots on everything," McGuire laments. "This gives them an open door to force the county commissions to give them more money, even if they haven't appropriated it or don't have it."

McGuire has promised a petition drive if necessary to collect the 265,700 signatures needed to put the question on the ballot. Most county government structures undoubtedly would bend their efforts in a petition drive.

But the legislature will be asked to place the question before the people; the state lawmakers may just listen. After all, if the Supreme Court can make this doctrine stick on the circuit court level, why not apply it to state courts, too, and then where is the power of the legislature over spending by the courts? (And I'll refrain from snide comment about the recent flap about luxury autos for state appeals court judges.)

Courts are powerful; there's no doubt about that. It seems to me this latest turn of events - removing court spending from any review by an elected legislative body - is bad medicine.

The supreme court minority called the decision "a rueful precedent."

That it is.

Consumers Blasts Sinclair

Dear Sir:

Your readers must by now be aware of the hit-and-run tactics being used by many anti-nuclear critics to attack the credibility of local utility companies and their managements. The strategy for this desperate national campaign was apparently formulated at the annual conventions of nuclear critics last fall called, "Critical Mass-74." Locally, this campaign is being carried out by Mary Sinclair whose latest letter to the editor was published recently by half a dozen newspapers across the State, including yours.

Last week Mrs. Sinclair charged that actual data did not support the nationally quoted 40 per cent savings in the cost of producing electricity with nuclear power plants. She erroneously based this assumption on the fact that the average nuclear plant capacity factor, as of June of last year, was a disappointing 50 percent to 60 percent. She failed to note at least two important factors in reaching her conclusion.

First, the complex generating plants of today rarely reach their expected lifetime average capacity factor during the first few years of operation, be they coal-fired or nuclear plants. In fact, nuclear plant capacity factors were by and large the same as those of oil or coal-fired plants of comparable age during the last half of 1974.

Second, even at a 50 percent capacity factor, total nuclear power generating costs, including the cost of plant investment, are still cheaper than the cost of coal-fired generation operating at a much higher (75 percent to 80 percent) capacity factor.

Sorry, Mrs. Sinclair, but there are no hidden extraordinary costs which are not factored into these economic comparisons. Sure, we are spending large sums for safeguarding and improving the security of our plants and fuel shipments. Would you have us do otherwise? Our guard forces at our nuclear plants must be better trained and have access to more sophisticated security equipment than is required at our other plants. Total guard salaries for 1974 at the Palisades Nuclear Plant were $134,000 (not $250,000,000 as Mrs. Sinclair's letter stated in one newspaper) compared to a total of $71,000 for our Karn-Weadock oil and coal plants. These added costs are included in making economic comparisons.

Mrs. Sinclair's letter pointed out that the cost of shipping a load of nuclear fuel to and from the Palisades Plant has increased from $4,000 to $9,000 per round trip. What she doesn't point out is that shipping coal to one of our coal-fired plants for the same amount of energy that the one $9,000 shipment of nuclear fuel contains would cost the Company and its customers $450,000.

What about the possibility of a uranium exporting cartel similar to OPEC? Even if that should happen, we don't think it could be as effective with uranium ore as OPEC was with oil. Even if a cartel could increase the cost of imported uranium ore by 300 percent as OPEC did with oil prices, the truth is that this would increase the cost of nuclear plant fuel by only approximately 40 percent. The reason for this is that over 70 percent of the cost of nuclear fuel goes into enrichment services, waste disposal, and fuel fabrication costs. Most of this work will be done in this country at competitive prices not subject to cartel action.

Mrs. Sinclair's letter stated that no real solution for safe disposal of high-level radioactive waste exists at the present time. That depends on her meaning of the words "real solution." The truth, once again, is that of the several completely viable chpices that exist today, the federal government has chosen not to select one solution that would block out any better future options that may result from some of the exciting technological advances which are now appearing on the horizon. We believe they have chosen wisely. One of the most promising of these possible new methods was the recent discovery that the long-lived portion of radioactive wastes, which are of most concern to everyone since they require several thousand years to decay, can actually be changed by a process called nuclear transmutation into compounds which decay in a matter of months. Exotic reactors developed by NASA for space propulsion have made these discoveries possible. An advanced prototype reactor of the type needed to convert these wastes into easily disposed of materials is currently under development by the Energy Research and Development Administration.

If you have read this letter through at this point, you are to be congratulated. Many people would not have bothered to read such a lengthy response and on this our critics depend. It is a relatively easy matter to raise a host of doubts in your readers' minds about nuclear power by cleverly raising over and over the same simplistic questions in a repetitive series of short letters to the editor.

Simplistic answers are not adequate for simplistic questions about a complex subject like nuclear power. Consequently, replies to these charges often must be lengthy and involved. Unfortunately, many readers will read the short questioning letter and not read the detailed replies. This could mislead them to support our critics' main charge that there are a lot of unanswered questions about nuclear power. And that's not so.

Yours very truley,
R.C. Youngdahl

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

Let's set the record straight:

Mayor Hansen has not called Mayor-Nominee Ralph McRae a liar, as some readers might have implied from last week's Clockwise. We did say that some of the mayor's supporters are attempting to discredit McRae — and more name-calling is going on than we've ever seen in a Charlevoix election. But it's not by the candidates. It's their too-eager workers.

Hansen claims McRae accused him of using "lying" figures in an advertisement three days before the primary election. The ad was in response to one of Hansen's ads showing that Charlevoix milliage is holding a fairly even keel despite rising costs. The ad gave millage rates for the past few years, the amount of money drawn from the electric fund to operate the city, how much general operating revenue was needed, and other pertinent information. The thrust of the ad, so far as I can figure out, was to show that the mayor has managed to keep millage down, and has stopped milking the electric fund.

What the ad didn't mention was that our property valuations have skyrocketed. Of course your millage rate would stay low if your property valuations climb.

McRae ran an ad a couple of days later showing how taxes on four pieces of property have risen in the past four years. Only he neglected to say whether the figures quoted were total tax bills or just city taxes.

And so it goes.

A week from today it will be all over and life in Charlevoix can return to normal.

IF YOU ever get a chance to hear Dr. Harry Custer talk about recent developments in cancer research, don't miss it. The on-going work, thanks to your Cancer Crusade dollars, is exciting and the big break-through may come before we know it. Dr. Custer is equally enthusiastic about the new equipment at Charlevoix Area Hospital for cancer detection. The hospital now has a mamograph to detect breast cancer years before symptoms are evident. The hospital in March also performed its first needle biopsy on a lung cancer.

When a Cancer Crusader calls on your home this month, remember it is your hard-earned dollars that are winning the war against cancer, just as your hard-earned dimes helped Dr. Jonas Salk develop a vaccine against polio. It now appears a vaccine against some forms of cancer is a distinct possibility....

WE HAVE had snowbanks at Easter before but have we ever had an Easter weekend so downright wintery as the one just ended? Snowmobile suits and overshoes were bigh fashion in the Easter parade Sunday as icy northeast and northwest wind brought us one storm after another.

But winter implies spring, doesn't it? The Clocks' crocuses under the front window have put in an appearance twice this year – once in January and once in mid-March. With the latest onslaught, they have retreated again and we're wondering if they'll have enough nerve to try it a third time. They didn't actually bloom, mind you, but they did have their heads well out of the ground.

THE NEXT time you're downtown, stop by The Market to see what Ken Peterson of Petoskey has done to the old Brown Motors Building. You won't believe it.

The garage area is now a pleasant arcade built around a central mall. Office space is located on the mezzanine under the skylight. The overall effect is similar to the posh shopping centers in the metropolitan areas, only on a smaller scale.

Petoskey Floral opened its Charlevoix branch in the arcade over the weekend and I imagine the other spaces will be snapped up as the good word spreads.

Resident Opposes Charter

EDITOR'S NOTE: Last week we printed the following letter. However, due to a typographical error the word "patriotic" in the last paragraph read "political". We are reprinting the entire letter so that Mrs. Wexstaff's words appear as she wrote them.

Dear Editor:

While the entire USA is working and planning for the BiCentennial honoring our Past, a segment of the Charlevoix citizenry is scheming to discard a city charter that has served us well for nearly a century.

Our old-fashioned contract does have some old-fashionedwords-such as 'privy', indicating a place of retirement for defecation, but insafar as a tour of the town fails to locate any out-houses for that purpose, we must assume that pride, progress and zoning has eliminated them from the local scene.

Charlevoix is unique in that our city has operated in the BLACK to date: Many towns who have modern charters are handicapped with ink as red and a Leftist's brain-cells...So the motive behind this sudden yen for change eludes me unless it is in reality a red-herring designed to confuse the voting public.

At this point in time (as they say in Washington) with inflation rampant and the entire populace struggling to keep their heads above the muddy-money waters, it seems we should be conserving our financial strength and maintaining the status quo at least until the crisis is past and the economy improves.

We need higher taxes in Charlevoix like we need a hole in the head. But, if our challengers have their way it may end up just that—a bullet-hole for those who can't make it with higher tax assessments.

For patriotic reasons, I would like to see our present old-fashioned charter re-printed in double-size CAPITAL letters, framed, hung in City Hall lobby and draped by the stars and stripes as a suitable salute to our Past, our Present and our Future...All hail to the 1976 BiCentennial!

Patriotically yours,
Bernice (Mrs. Arthur) Wexstaff

Play Deserves Recongition

To the Editor:

On March 14 and 15, the residents of the Charlevoix area were treated to a lively and spirited presentation of "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown". A presentation of the Charlevoix High School Debate and Forensics Club, "Charlie Brown" was the culmination of months of work by a number of students, parents and Mrs. Connie Ford, their advisor.

We find it somewhat disheartening that you did not include even a mention of the performances in your paper. Young people are involved in many activities while in high school,may we suggest an effort be made to provide recognition for the efforts of our youth. A great deal has been done in the past, but we do believe coverage of the diversity of participation might develop a broader community knowledge of what kids can do.

Rangers Back Charter

To the Editor:

Our Founding Fathers opened the constitution with "We the people." They realized that the time was ready for the people of the United States to renew their spirit of community and to update the Articles of Confederation into a more streamlined document better suited to the demanding needs of their time. Rather than be satisfied with a less perfect solution, they designed a constitution which was "right" for the people they represented.

The officials of the City of Charlevoix face many of the concerns they considered. Any student of government can only marvel at the abilities of the council members as they struggle to overcome so many of the disadvantages inherent in the outdated Fourth Class Cities Act, which was never intended to be anything more than it was – a blueprint of small town government to initially follow.

In commemoration of the 1976 Bicentennial, I hope we will see a commitment to "independence" for the City of Charlevoix in the form of a new charter that is not "second-hand" but just "right" for us. The people of Charlevoix have the talent and the civil spirit to follow in the footsteps of our forefathers.

Sincerely,
Pat Ranger

Dear Editor:

Webster defines progress as o "movement forward", a "journeying forward", "gradual betterment".

I am curious to know why the people of this city are not interested in moving forward. Why is Charlevoix one of the few cities in the State of Michigan still using on antiquated charter that was adopted 80 years ago?

These questions I asked of myself and decided I would try to find the reason. in reading a copy of the type of charter this city has, I find it is nice to know the hitching posts shall be placed a certain distance from buildings, outdoor privies must be cleaned often, etc. It sounds like Charlevoix is a little behind the times and I believe it is time more people looked into the meaning of progress.

After investigating the situation, I am convinced it is time the citizens of this city elected a commission to investigate the possibility of having a modern Home Rule charter. This will be at small expense to the taxpayers of this city. The people on the charter commission receive no pay.

Every single city within 150 miles of Charlevoix has modernized its city government. Is it wrong to want to improve our local government?

If a charter change comes about it could not be ready for a year, and then the voters of Charlevoix would have to approve it.

Stanley Hammond

Supports Charter

Dear Editor:

People in Charlevoix will soon be voting on studying the present charter and coming up with any improvements that may seem necessary.

The fact that we are a 4th Class city doesn't meau much to me, but I do think if we need improvements, this is a way to find out.

The charter candidates are a good group of citizens and I think they will come up with what is best for the city.

Ray Wood.

DANGER: Watch Out for Gas Leaks

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

More dangerous than natural gas itself, are the waste products of its combustion, Richard Seguin, Area Manager for Michigan Consolidated Gas warns.

Not only is leaking natural gas immediately detectable, because of its distinctive odor, but as the vapor is lighter than air, it is unlikely that enough could accumulate undetected to create explosive conditions.

Pilot light problems, or improper lighting of appliances, may cause enough gas to accumulate, in a closed oven, for instance, to create a small explosion if a match is lighted; but far more dangerous is improper venting of heaters.

Carbon monoxide, a lethal by-product of combustion, is odorless. Another by-product is moisture.

Therefore, natural gas furnaces and hot water heaters must be vented out through a chimney. If the chimney has been used previously for other fuels: wood, coal, oil, etc., it could be blocked by soot, Seguin admonishes.

Charles Taylor of Charlevoix credits his wife Nancy's sensitive sinuses with detecting that their chimney was blocked.

The Taylor's chimney was so clogged with a "coffee-ground like soot," according to Taylor, "that the furnace was not venting at all."

Taylor, thinking back, said, "We should have recognized danger signs.

"There was unusual condensation on a window. Our african Violets and Tubrus Begonias were flourishing, unnaturally. But it was Nancy's sensing changes in humidity, a dryness just before the furnace would kick-on, that made us suspect something was wrong with our furnace."

Within minutes of having called the gas company's office, help was at the Taylor's home.

Taylor explained, "We bought an old home. The chimney had been used for coal or wood heat and perhaps even cooking, before it was converted to gas.

"It was completely deteriorated and plugged from the flaking."

As a result carbon monoxide and humidity were forced back down the chimney. The flowers loved it.

Reflecting, Taylor said, "we had other symptoms, especially some logginess when we were in the house. We found it hard to get out of bed in the morning, but the minute we were out doors we felt great. That was the carbon monoxide."

Seguin, at the gas company, urged consumers to have chimneys checked and replaced if necessary, if a system has been converted from another type of fuel.

Natural gas leakages or explosions are much less likley hazards, Seguin explained.

A chemical, to insure that the gas can be smelled, is added before gas is piped to homes. Natural gas alone does not have an odor, but with the addition of the chemical called "El-Captain" it is unmistakable.

Therefore, if the gas should leak, it would be immediately noticeable, as opposed to carbon monoxide, which is odorless.

The gas company mantains an emergency dispatch system to handle gas emergencies; during working hours, Monday through Friday in Petoskey at 347-8701; and at all times through the telephone operator at Enterprise 7665. Through radio communications the company can have assistance to any home within a few minutes, Seguin said.

"If a leak is noticed call the company, open windows, turn off electric switches, and leave the premises," Seguin emphasized.

There's no danger from breathing the gas, it is non-toxic, Seguin stressed. And, he added, because natural gas is lighter than air, it rises and it would take days of leaking before it would cause a fire.

Nevertheless, Seguin said, call for help immediately if there's any reason to suspect gas leaks.

Jim Lyons, a salesman with Michigan Consolidated Gas, added that people must not try to use gas appliances for things other than they were intended for. As an example, he cautioned against using an oven to heat a room.

Seguin said that because natural gas is relatively new to this area, there have been very few problems. Generally people have new appliances, and before gas is hooked up to a home, all appliances are checked by the company.

The gas company published a safety tips booklet for consumers, which in addition to warnings Seguin mentioned, emphasizes maintaining appliances in good repair and keeping gas openings, as on a range clean.

If it Fitz — Singing in the Shower

(Jim Fitzgerald is still vacationing. This column is repeated from 12 years ago for readers who say they miss reading about the Red-Haired Monster.)

There's new excitement at my house. The bathroom door has no knob. On either side.

When you're inside, you can never be sure when you'll get out. If ever.

When you're outside, you can never be sure when you'll get in. If ever.

We have only the one bathroom for 5 of us. You'd be excited, too.

It made entertaining over the holidays awkward indeed. It is bad enough when a member of the family can't get in or out. But it's positively humiliating to guide a guest to the bathroom and caution him not to shut the door behind him.

My dad visited us Christmas and became so disgusted with the situation he grabbed my wife's screwdriver and said he was going to fix the blasted door.

The first thing he had to do, of course, was find the door knobs. They were originally removed, naturally, by Eddie the Red-Haired Monster, When Pat house cleans she usually finds the knobs and sticks them loosely into the door. But Eddie just as quickly removes them again and rolls them under the couch or behind the furnace or some other lovely spot.

After the first few days I quit yelling about this knob stealing because it's uctually better when the knobs are not in the door. They don't work anyway, but their presence can be misleading.

Seeing the knobs, an occupant who should know better can forget and slam the door behind him. Then, when it is time to leave, he grabs the knob, it comes off in his hand, and he falls into the bathtub. My back is still sore.

When this happens, all the occupant can do is scream for help. If one else is home, he can just sit and wait. Last week I lost 3 pounds waiting. I know because, to help pass the time, I weighed myself every 5 minutes.

Help is necessary because the door must be pushed open from the outside. Unless the poor, trapped soul has fingernails long enough to get a grip on the bottom of the door and pull. I began biting my nails when I got married and have a tough time gripping a grape.

Anyway, to get back to my unhappy father, he is a graduate engineer, and he attacked the door knob problem with great confidence. But he couldn't fix it. No one can fix it.

These are fancy knobs. One fits into the other and they are supposed to lock together. But they don't. I have gazed at them for hours and I don't know why they don't. There is no evidence of a loose or missing screw. There are no broken ends. Everything seems to be in pince. But the lousy knobs won't work.

I'd feel like a fool calling a carpenter to fix a door knob. I'm still blushing about the last time I hired the TV repairman. All he did was plug in the aerial and shake his head sadly. He certainly hated to charge me for doing so little. But he did.

I usually hide in the bedroom when repairmen come to the house. I've instructed my wife to tell them she is a widow. Nothing makes me feel more useless than to stand by with my thumb in my ear while some bird tightens a screw and, in 2 minutes, proves how smart he is and how dumb I am.

So I'll be damned if I'll call a carpenter for one lousy door knob. I am going to wait until I have a bigger job for him. A splintered bathroom door should justify a carpenter and it is bound to be splintered some time when I tire of weighing myself.

In the meantime, there'll be considerable singing from behind our not-quite-closed bathroom door.

Ironton: The Past

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Ross Alexander, the Charlevoix Courier Ironton correspondent is offering the second of a series on the history of Ironton.

The long-time Ironton resident has been working for the Charlevoix Courier since the early thirties.

By Mrs. Ross Alexander

After Louis Reiman started the Boys Camp he requested that the Church be moved from its original location among the cottages that were to be used by his camp boys. The Church had been built in 1881 by the Charlevoix Manufacturing Company for $1220 and 55 cents.

Several locations were suggested and talked about but the corner where it now stands was chosen and given by Louis Reiman and it was moved for 500 dollars in May 1926. Nearly everyone in the community worked to dig the basement and build the stone wall and help move it for active community use. In the beginning we were a Mission Church of the Charlevoix Congregational Church and Rev. Mattson was the first pastor. A group called the Ladies Aid was organized and they all worked and had bazaars during the summers with their popular and famous chicken dinners that were well patronized by the summer resort people and friends and it has many memories for many who attended, worked and contributed to its success and today we are no longer a mission church and we support our own pastor.

In 1879 the first schoolhouse was built on what was then known as Allens corners now where Ralph Richardsons have their new home. But in 1882 a new two story school was built on the present location to take care of the growing population for the work of the furnace. But the two lower rooms were the only ones used, having four grades in each room. The two upper rooms were used by the Marcotones and Glennor Lodges. At that time the teachers wages were 100 dollars a year with seven months of school, four in the winter and three in the summer and in 1910 there were sixty three pupils.

After several years the eighth grade was sent to Charlevoix and but one room was used. The bell that was there is now in the front of the new school, was also the Alarm Bell for the Iron Furnace and it also rang loud and clear for the only train that came into Ironton in the eighties.

The old Grange Hall that was next to the Alexander home was built and used as a Methodist Church during the Furnace days and many Crusaders held meetings there. It was sold to the Farmers Organization known as the Grange and they were active many years but later united with the Rock Elm Grange and the building was sold and torn down and the lot is now owned by Ross and Hilda Alexander.

Library notes

On the dust jacket of the new book Black Sunday by Thomas Harris, there is a warning: "Do not begin this novel unless you are prepared to finish it in one sitting." It has a timely, topical plot concerning an Arab terrorist group which is determined to blow up the Super Bowl. It could happen! And as the reader becomes more involved in the suspense, he will actually believe it did happen.

Called the story of Mrs. Robert Kennedy is told by Lester David with compassion and insight. The author makes no attempt to glamorize her. He paints her as she was during her shelter-skelter childhood and as she is today. Sadly, there are no pictures, but this new book is surely one of the finest biographies that has been published in a long long time.

Wide-Eyed in Babylon is a delightful autobiography by Ray Milland. A favorite actor to millions of several generations, he is also a natural-born writer, and it's a fascinating story he has to tell from his beginnings in rural Wales, his experience as a sailor, his brief career in the British theater and movies, and his arrival in America where he became one of America's great film stars. Most entertaining of all is his hilarious account of his entry into the Household Calvary in England. He is, incidentally, an expert horseman and rifle shot. For the best in entertainment and a pocketful of memories, don't miss Wide-Eyed in Babylon.

We might be prejudiced, but we think Ernest Gann is one of the top storytellers on the market today. If you have read one of his books, you've made an effort to read them all. We'd be hard put to point out the very best of his many novels, but Band of Brothers is definitely at the top of the list. At least we thought so until we read his brand new, just-out novel, Flying Circus. As everyone knows Ernest Gann is a veteran pilot. He began his love affair with flying back in 1935 when he began barnstorming in wood and fabric bi-planes. Later, as an airline pilot he flew all over the world. You don't have to be a flying buff to enjoy this fascinating treasury of the history and literature of flight. There are 17 beautiful paintings included in the book.

And, of course, we couldn't round up our review of new books without mentioning a new gothic novel for the ladies. The Witch from the Sea was written by Phillppa Carr who, in case you didn't know, is just another name for that versatile and tireless author, Virginia Holt. This suspense story is set against a background during the reign of Elizabeth I when, one dark and stormy Hallowe'en night, the sea cast up a beautiful and very pregnant stranger on the shores near Castle Pailing. From that tempting cloe, the reader will simply have to find out what happens all by herself.

Pd. Pol. Adv. by Citizens Committee for Charter Revision

1895

The Michigan State Legislature in 1895 created Act No. 215 making it mandatory that every city adopt the Fourth Class Cities Charter, the same that Charlevoix uses today. At that time Michigan was 75 percent rural and 25 percent urban.

1905

Charlevoix was incorporated as a city and adopted the Fourth Class Cities Charter, the only charter available, but it was written by the state. No local input was allowed.

1909

State lawmakers created the Home Rule Act giving every city the option or right to draft its own charter. Since then 92 percent of all cities have done so. Two hundred and forty-three cities have written their own charters. Charlevoix has not and still rctains the 1895 charter.

1910

If Charlcvoix had waited until 1910 to incorporate, the city would have had to draft its own Home Rule charter. No newly incorporated city was allowed to use the Fourth Class Cities charter after 1909.

1918

Some concerned people of Charlcvoix attempted to have the city adopt a Home Rule charter. It was approved by the then Gov. Sleeper. However, it was not approved by the local citizens — losing by some 20 votes. Many parts of that charter could still be used today.

1975

Next Monday, April 7, Charlevoix again will have a chance to vote on charter revision — a chance that does not often come. Please remember you are not actually voting on a charter itself, but rather on a study which will lead to the drafting of a Home Rule charter. Scores of people will be questioned and many charters from other cities will be used to show the way. The nine elected charter commissioners will work without pay. There will be some expense for secretarial work, postage, telephone calls, and the cost of outside expert advice on Home Rule charters. It is hoped these expenses will not exceed $2,000. The new charter should result in the savings of thousands of dollars later. We have modernized our homes, schools, hospitals and businesses over the years. Why not modernize our government?

19--?

The charter commission will submit a proposed Home Rule charter to the voters for approval. Under Home Rule, Charlevoix will still have representative government, only it will be more responsive to the wishes of the people because the charter will be ours and ours alone. It may be changed by a vote of the people in areas which prove to be inadequate. We will no longer be limited by the narrow provisions of an antiquated state law which are virtually impossible for us to change. The options open to us are endless. Let us make the most of them. Five million, 625 thousand city residents live under Home Rule charters in Michigan. Forty-two thousand do not, including the people of Charlcvoix.

Wojan Aluminium Takes Tourney Competition

By CHUCK WRIGHT

Wojan Aluminum won the B division of the Jimmy Bogart tournament last week with an easy 55-38 decision over Andy's Tire World.

The game was a sloppy affair with repeated turnovers and missed foul shots. The two teams shot a horrendous 17 for 49 from the foul line.

After a close first half, Wojan's broke the game open in the third quarter. Playing tough defense, Wojan's held Andy's to only four third quarter points. Meanwhile Wojan's managed to score 13, five by season-long leader Don Ward and four by Don Smith.

Leading 42-25 going into the fourth quarter, Wojan's coasted the rest of the way. Ward led all scorers with 21 while Kevin Johnechek scored 14 for Andy's.

In the semi-finals, Wojan's powered their way past Muma's 53-38. Using superior height and ball handling, Wojan's had a comfortable 26-12 lead at halftime. Muma's simply was not able to penetrate the tight zone defense that Wojan's used.

Bill Joy scored all 10 of his points during the decisive second quarter spurt in which Wojan's outscored Muma's 19-9.

Wojan's did not let up in the third period. Actually it was all Don Smith. Single-handedly, Smith outscored Muma's 14-8 as he scored all of Wojan's third quarter points.

Smith led all scorers with 18. Don Ward added 17 and Joy 10.

For Muma's, consistent Butch Klooster scored 17 and Bill Gengle chipped in 12.

Andy's got into the final with a narrow 48-44 win over First State Bank. Leading by only one point going into the fourth quarter, Andy's got 7 key points from Larry Lughbel. First State Bank's patient offense was not quite enough to offset the long jump shots of Kevin Johnechek.

Johnechek led all scorers with 20. For the Bankers, Larry Roth collected 11 points while Dale Burge contributed 10.

In the A division of the Jimmy Bogart tournament, it is down to a two team battle. Freedman Artcraft beat Bob's Sunoco 65-39 to earn the right to meet Swanson's K & D. Freedman's has one loss in the double elimination tournament and has to defeat unbeaten Swansons twice.

The Freedman-Bob's clash was an excellent ballgame. Freedman's led by as many as 16 points in the first half, but Bob's narrowed the gap to three before falling back. Both teams were crisp on offense, using great teamwork to get in close for their scores.

Roger Crain led Freedman's with 16 while Denny Crain and super-sub Rick Donaldson each had 12. For Bob's, Hud Drenth and Ike Boss each had 15, Harold DeYoung 11 and Ron Boss 10.

Bob's had beaten Village Milkhouse earlier in the week 72-49. After a close first quarter Bob's ran away with the game. Drenth, Ike Boss and DeYoung all had six points during the second quarter rout.

DeYoung led Bob's attack with 22. Drenth had 20 and Boss 14. Gerry Sandahl had 13 for the Milkhouse.

Harold DeYoung's 22 points was the high game of the week.

Wrestlers Hold Banquet

For the second year, Phil Christ, senior four-year letterman, was named by his team-mates as the most valuable wrestler. Terry Moi, co-captain and runner-up to Christ, was honored as the most determined wrestler as well as for his academic ability. He also is a senior.

Senior Jim Sladek and freshman Mike Kiteiy were named the most improved wrestlers. Junior Terry Drew was named the sparkplug of the team and, for the second year, was given the 'hot dog' award. Senior co-captain Pat DeYoung was given the 'bonehead' award with Christ a close runner-up. Rob Hilton was elected the legman of the team and Mark Byard and Mike Snizik the 'funny men' of the team.

Honored as the top pair in each of the four classes were Mike Kitely and Ron Hilton, freshmen; Gary Probert and Mike Snizik, Sophomores; Tim DeYoung and Drew, juniors and Moi and Christ, seniors.

During the program that followed, the mat maids presented assistant coach, Ozga, with a Polish mug made especially for him.

Mrs. Probert was presented with a dozen roses by the team for sharing her husband with them so many weekends.

The event was climaxed by the presentation of a piece of shipwreck furniture, a coffee table, from the team. Rob and Ron Hilton had made the coffee table.

Matmen Plan Assembly

The Charlevoix Middle School wrestlers will conclude their activities for the year during a take-down tournament during a student assembly scheduled for 2:20 p.m. Friday.

The two-day event will begin after school on Thursday and end at the assembly Friday.

Boys in the fifth through the eighth grades including some from St. Mary's school will compete in five divisions per grade utilizing a combination of free-style and collegiate wrestling. In the tournament, each competitor will try for a take down and have 15 seconds to pin or start again from a standing position.

In recent weeks the boys have been training under Coach Norm Probert assisted by Jerry Pihl and high school wrestlers, Bob Sandahl, Don Trost, Craig Golovich and Gary Probert.

The tourney will be open to the public on Friday, April 4.

Air Force Gets Local Star

Jed Bowman, son of a former Charlevoix resident, James Bowman, is making a name for himself on the hockey rink according to Falconews, U.S.Air Force Academy publication.

A member of the Academy's Aces youth hockey team, Jed is the leading scorer in the program, accounting for 62 goals in 20 games for an average of just over three per game.

This has been his fifth season in the Youth Hockey program. He boasts a career total of 179 with two games remaining.

His scoring has increased from four the first season to over 60 goals this year. He was the high scorer in this year's Air Force Academy Invitational Hockey Tournament with a total of 10 goals, six of them in one game. He was the recipient of the 110 per cent Award in 1971-72 and the Most Valuable Squirt the same season. His coach, Larry Cronk, calls him one of the finest young hockey players to come out of the program.

Two older brothers, former Academy Youth Hockey players, are members of the Air Academy High hockey team at the present time.

With three years left in the program before high school, Jed is expected to develop greatly before going into the high school ranks.

His father, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. E.B.Bowman, is a graduate of the Charlevoix high school and the University of Michigan where he lettered in football. He enlisted in the U.S.Air Force, served on the U.S.Air Force Academy coaching staff and, after completing his enlistment, remained as a member of the staff.

He, his wife, and three sons reside at Colorado Springs.

Charlevoix Pep Band Season Ends Another Year

By Jim Marshall

The end of basketball season marks, obviously an end of Pep Band, which so effielently brews spirit throughout the student body during our successful pep meetings and our highly keyed-up games, where the fans scream so loud that old men need to turn down their hearing aids...

And as the crowds leave the bleachers for the last time and the echo of Sweet Georgia Brown no longer rings through the corridors, you begin to sense the need for a different type of band...Jazz Band, where the director no longer uses his concert baton which he so effortlessly swings during compositions by Bach or Sousa...

The definition of Jazz Band might be: Pleasurable withdrawal conducted by the changing of style and tempo of music, thus allowing the performing musicians the privilege of staying awake during their performances.

Jazz Band is open to all high school students and also to the public. The group rehearses every Monday night with performances scheduled helter-skelter.

Each year the group enters competition at the Annual Boyne City Jazz Festival, which is open to all of the schools in Northern Michigan. Only six schools were present at last year's event in which Charlevoix placed in the top three.

Again, Mr. Gary Stutzman is the directer of this group as he has been since he began his teaching career in Charlevoix. Stutzman will soon take over as the new directer of the high school band program succeeding Mr. C.A. Odmark, who has been department head for more than 28 years, and is considered the "Arthur Fiedler" of Charlevoix. Mr. Odmark is responsible for a reputation of respect and admiration noticed throughout the state of Michigan, for the bands of Charlevoix.

Our thanks to you, "Odie"!

Tarnished Rings Showing Up

By Jim Berlage

Mr. Hernie Wilson of Josten's Inc. reports that due to chemical reactions, detergents, soaps, hair rinses, etc., the 6 karat gold rings which many CHS sophomores purchased as class or school rings, will tarnish. However the tarnish can be removed with a rouge polishing cloth available at any jeweler. This problem of tarnishing has affected students in the Michigan area, more than in the southern states because of the mineral content of the water here.

The problems arose, it is believed, because the rings were lab-tested but not field-tested. The error is costing Josten's $150,000.

But don't give up! For those students who did purchase a 6 karat ring (six parts gold and 18 parts alloy), you have two alternatives to follow, for your full satisfaction. Josten's will make you a new ring with the Federal 10 karat gold stamp inside. The cost will be an additional $10 for boys and $7 for girls.

If you do not wish to pay additional money for a new ring, consider a sterling silver ring. For this purchase you will get money back. Rebates would be for girls: $13 on 6 karat yellow and $16 on 6 karat white. For boys, rebates would be: $17 on 6 karat yellow and $20 on 6 karat white. Remember however, a sterling silver ring is of a softer metal-and can tarnish somewhat and is more easily damaged.

Fifty Girls Out for Track

By GAYLE BOSS

Those maroon sweat suits with the pig tails bobbing out the back are returning to the gym and streets of Charlevoix. Girls' track has begun.

Coach Osterberg reports the team met for the first time Monday, March 10, with about 50 girls coming out. Returning veterans are: Cheryl Pence and Beth Egler, seniors; Linda Smith, Barb Meadows and Denise Boss, Juniors; and Kay Currey, Terri Novotny, Jodi Alger, Amy Potter, Ginny Eby, Donna Jones, Teri Hufford and Gail Powell, sophomores. Mrs. O. expects that number to be cut down quite a bit after the first few weeks. As she describes it, "Track is a sport where you excel through self-sacrifice and work--not all the girls will last."

In addition to the regular training program, this year Mr. Pius Presnell will be working with the girls on u weight maehine program which is expected to aid the team in leg muscle developement and stamina.

New events have been added to Girls' track this year. They are u two mile run, mile relay, and an 880 relay, while the 80 yeard hurdles have been changed to a 110 yard distance.

The girls jog out to their first meet on April 21, at Grayling.

Girls Become Conference Champs

By Kim Rosenerants

The CHS Girls' Volleyball team had a successful season in the eyes of their coach, Mrs. Marie Osterberg.

The last meet wound up the season with Charlevoix defeating Cheboygan and Rogers City but losing to Gaylord. Their final standings are 17 wins and four losses.

The seniors from the four schools were recognized at the meet, as it was their last game.

From Charlevoix: Lori Kaeslin, Lee Steelman, Cheryl Pence, Beth Egler, and Glenda Reedy are the seniors who are leaving. A farewell is extended to each and everyone from Mrs. Osterberg and the rest of the team.

The team will miss the agressiveness of Steelman, Pence, Egler, and Reedy, but every member contributed in their ability and skill to make the team a good team.

With Kay Currey, Holly Garten, Carol Streeter, Judy Elzinga, Barb White, Julie Wimmer, Heidi Dove, Ginny Eby, Teri Hufford and Sandy Dyer all returning next year, Mrs. Osterberg feels it will be another successful season.

The coach even had a good few words for the other teams. She feels that Petoskey and Boyne City showed high degrees of skill in their playing ability. (Even though the competition was great throughout the league, Charlevoix's No. 1!)

Boys Start Rayder Track Season

By JUDY WERTMAN

As Charlevoix's conference winning track team returns, it will again be coached by Gary Stutzman with Dave Moyer assisting him.

Starting the season out right, there are forty-four boys going out. They are: George Kruskie, Bob Shores, Nate Klooster, Tom Fowler, Kerry Speer, Ken Paul, Frank Muma, Terry Left, Jim Sladek, Ed Russell, Matt Doan, Bob Alger, Darrell Clark, Joe Kaufman, Dan Greene and Guy Carter, Kevin Martin, Wally Drenth, Lee Begrow, Steve Michael, Randy Empey, Bud Klooster, Ed Bourke, Kevin Speer, Ed Namin, Scott Boss, Jim Elzinga, Mike Way, Chuck Towsley, Rob Stebe and Stevc Schuch. Greg Loper, Barry Potter, Joe Left, Greg Krueger, Steve Hufford, Bob Tillen, Jim Sundberg, Chuck Faust, Brian Williams, Mike Streeter, Jim Berlage, John Cinnamon, and Dan Boss, with Greg Grubaugh as athletic trainer.

In asking Mr. Stutzman where he feels competition lies this year, he stated, "With Gaylord and Petoskey," (in which I feel will be no trouble for the Rayders! Good luck, Rayders!)

Council Discusses Book Drive

By Nancy Podskalny

On March 12, 1975 the Charlevoix High School Student Council meeting was called to order. The previous minutes were approved and the meeting began.

The Council first discussed matters concerning the Book Drive. It will take place during the week of April 13-19.

The Council has also been busy planning a dance for April 18. The money that is earned will be divided between the four classes and the Student Council. The Student Council however does not expect to profit from the dance as much as the other classes.

The meeting was then adjourned after the discussion of these topics.

Lifesaving Offered

The Charlevoix Recreation Department will offer a Junior and Senior Lifesaving course beginning April 8 at 4:30 at The Lodge pool in Charlevoix.

The course will meet once a week from 4:30 to 6:30 for nine weeks. All interested persons must meet American Red Cross standards to receive a certificate.

A registration fee of $18.00 must be paid no later than April 7. Those interested in the course should send the registration fee plus name and address to the Charlevoix Recreation office. Checks and money orders must be made out to the City of Charlevoix. Send them to:

Charlevoix Language Club Makes Plans

By Laurie Pidek

The Spanish club of CHS recently dined to a feast of great Spanish and Mexican food at the Grey Gables Inn. They are hoping to make a canoe trip, and they are also thinking of money-making projects.

The French club has been bloomin' with ideas for fund raising projects (by stealing them from the Spanish club), and lots of fun. The French clubs of Charlevoix High School and Boyne City High School met at Mr. Gunnar Luntiegen's home in Charlevoix. While eating all the munchies, ideas for making money were discussed and combined in order to possibly go to Europe next year.

FOR MAYOR
RALPH McRAE

I think you will be glad to know that this is absolutely my last political advertisement. I am also glad. I have a Platform.....please read it.

1. A 1975 "Home Rule Charter" to replace the present 1895 4th Class Cities Charter. Many options are available for improving our city government.
2. A government subsidized type of Senior Citizens Housing Center.
3. A qualified, experienced and professional City Manager. We are a Corporation worth 65 million dollars, that needs to be run like business enterprise.
4. A Director of public Works to be responsible for electric, water, streets, sidewalks, sewers, sewage plant, parks, marine and docks, city building maintenance and motor pool. Last year's budget provided money for this position.
5. Immediate priorities and 5 year planning projects.
6. Quick adoption of Zoning Ordinances now under study and consequently forming of a Zoning Board of qualified citizens.
7. Maintain taxes and utility rates at present or lower levels. (In the last four years city taxes have increased 18 percent annually).
8. Remove the Recreation Department from the Parks Department, with separate budgets. The townships should contribute their share of recreational costs.
9. Encourage and urge people to be more active and more involved in municipal affairs. Improve the public image of Charlevoix by having a more responsive and responsible city government.

I have a clear-cut obligation to improve our city government in every way possible. Also I do not intent to conform if it is against my principles. In other words I will not be afraid to rock the boat now and then.

Thank you:
Ralph McRae
for Mayor

Delbert Terrill Admitted to Michigan Bar

Capt. Delbert R. Terrill, Jr., who is stationed in Washington, D.C., with the U.S. Air Force, was admitted to the Michigan Bar recently after having successfully completed the Michigan Bar Examination. He received his Juris Doctorate from Georgetown University Law Center in 1974.

Capt. Terrill was sworn in as a member of the Michigan Bar by Judge Blair Moody, Jr., in the Michigan Circuit Court of Appeals in Detroit.

Terrill, who plans to continue in the U.S. Air Force for the present, was named to the legal staff of the Presidential Clemency Board in Feb. 1975. His own experiences include serving as a tax consultant with two nationally known tax services and doing legal research in a Food & Drug Administration case dealing with the certification source of a new animal drug from Sept. 1974-Nov. 1974. In June 1972 he had preferred charges against Gen. John D. LaValle for illegal bombing raids; helped expose the dual bombing practices, the flight pay and medical retirement disability abuses and, from Aug. 1970 until Apr. 1972, was involved with the Concerned Officers Movement serving as National Coordinator / Corresponding Secretary.

DELBERT R. TERRILL, Captain, U.S. Air Force, is shown here with Judge Blair Moody, Jr., of the Michigan Circuit Court of Appeals after being admitted to the Michigan Bar in Detroit recently.

His other Air Force experiences include serving as project officer for the United Givers Fund, a campaign for which he did the accounting and held sole responsibility for funds donated by Air Force personnel in the Washington, D.C., area amounting to more than $1.0 million. He also wrote an extensive report and analysis of the campaign and areas of improvement, August 1970-November 1970; administrator for the Air Reservist magazine with a monthly circulation of 350,000 per month, January 1971-July 1974 and Executive Support Squadron Section Commander for the 1100th Logistics Squadron, August 1974-August 1975.

While at Georgetown University, Terrill, who was promoted to the rank of Captain in December 1973, was a member of the Student Bar Association and delegate in the fall of 1971 and the spring of 1972, and Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity. He also worked with the school's Clinical Legal Program practicing before the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

A 1970 graduate of the U.S. Air Force Academy, he has a B.S. degree (History) after receiving a primary Congressional appointment. As a student he had a cumulative grade point of 3.34 placing him in the top 20 percent of his class and was on the Dean's List for eight semesters and the Commandant's and Superintendent's Lists for three semesters.

Prior to entering the Academy, he spent a year at the U.S.A.F. Academy Preparatory School, Class of 1966. He was a Commander's Merit List graduate, a member of the football team, a starter on the basketball team and a member of the choir. He is a 1965 graduate of the Charlevoix High School where he was among the top 10 in his class; a member of the National Honor Society and lettered for three years in football, basketball and track.

He received his first commission, Second Lieutenant, upon graduation from the Air Force Academy and became a First Lieutenant in December 1971.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert R. Terrill, he is married to the former M. Catherine Fiscini of Hornell, N.Y., and College Park, Md. They live at Chelverly, Md.

It's Time to Get Those Maple Syrup Buckets Out

By ELEANOR RATIGAN

People traveling abroad often ask what they could take with them to friends or relatives as a special, unusual gift. The prompt answer is maple syrup, because the United States and Canada are the only countries in the world who produce the product.

In the spring, only in America can buckets be found on maple trees.

Although all maples yield sweet sap, only the sugar maple and black maple are used commercially. The black maple is considered superior to all others.

The Indians were making sugar from the sap of maple trees when the first explorers arrived and, although the methods have improved regarding the sapping and boiling process, the general process is the same. It is interesting to know that, for many years, maple sugar was the only sweetening used in the northern part of the United States and even in Kentucky and Virginia.

The quantity of sap a tree yields depends upon the size of its crown. Old and experienced syrup makers believe that trees in a forest produce more sap than those grown in a grove--probably because the rich litter of humus on the forest floor contributes to the vitality of the trees more than the grass carpet of a grove. The Indians collected about two gallons of sap every 24 hours in birch-bark pails and baskets, but the flow really depends upon the temperature.

In the spring, when nights are warm and the tree needs its sap for the growth of buds, the flow slows down and the sap becomes dark and bitter, but when the days are warm, the sun is bright and the nights are cold, then the sweet sap flows freely through the trunk and branches.

The earlier runs of sap are the sweetest. Makers have lost half or more of their crops many seasons by not being prepared for the first runs. At this prime time, it may take only 30 gallons of sap boiled down to make one gallon of table syrup. At the end of the season, it may take 50 gallons of syrup because of the loss of sugar content.

When the white man finally learned to make maple syrup, the last runs of sap were converted into sugar for beer making, and some of the sap was boiled just thick enough to run into vinegar.

For making beer, the men boiled princess pine, wintergreen and strawberries with hemlock boughs and sassparilla, and when the mixture had been strained and sweetened with maple sugar, the women made hop yeast and mixed with it. A few hours later it would begin to ferment and, a day or two after that, it was ready for use. It was considered a good spring tonic, and most settlers drank the healthful beer.

Because of our concern over the conservation of trees, there has been a large controversy raging over whether or not maple trees should be tapped at all or how often they should be tapped. The Department of Agriculture tells us that tapping only one place on a tree prolongs the life of the tree. Large first-growth trees may be tapped in two and even three places without injury, but the holes should never be placed close together in order to collect the sap in one bucket. A tree is usually tapped when it is thirty-five or forty years old and has a girth of about ten inches. More holes are drilled with each additional five inches of diameter. There are records of trees which carried five buckets, and when one ancient old soldier was chopped down, there were scars of early taphole--proof that the tree had experienced syrupmaking for over a century!

We cnn find few packaged products today which don't include additives and preservatives which we can't pronounce, can't spell and don't understand. Like honey, maple syrup is one of the few remaining pure, natural foods. It has become a luxury unfortunately, because the process of getting the sweet sap from the tree to the table is a long and expensive one.

How nice it would be if we could still find the beautiful little birchbark boxes, called Mococks, which the Indians hand-fashioned to hold maple sugar candy. Although they taught the white man how to make maple syrup, the Indians no longer take part in the manufacture of it. We should be grateful to Hiawatha for teaching them how to use the sap and make syrup from the maple tree, and each spring, in the early days, the Indians held festivals each year honoring the magnificent tree which provided for them so well.

Without maple syrup, how would those of us in the North Country be able to make pecan rolls or maple fudge or maple ice cream or pralines or maple cake frosting? Worst of all, what would we pour over our breakfast pancakes?

60th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Hull of Norwood observed their sixtieth wedding anniversary recently at a family dinner hosted by their children at the Holiday Inn. They later returned to the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hamilton for wedding cake and a social evening.

The following day the couple was honored at a reception at the United Methodist church following the morning worship service. The second event was a surprise to the couple who have always resided in Norwood township since their marriage in Charlevoix March 24, 1915. They were presented with a mum plant and other gifts and cards.

Hull and the former Nina Holecheek were married at the parsonage of the Methodist church where they were honored Sunday. Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Civatil who now make their home here after residing in Flint for many years. Mrs. Hull recalls that she and Hull and their attendants walked from his parents home on the south side to the parsonage for the quiet wedding.

Except for two years in Pontiac during World War II, the couple has always resided here. Hull is a carpenter by trade and though retired is very active. Mrs. Hull headed the housekeeping department at the Beach Hotel here for 17 years and was in the dietary department at the Charlevoix Area Hospital for four years prior to retiring. The hotel, loented on West Dixon ave., has since been razed.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hull are members of the United Methodist church. She also is a member of its Women's Society for Christian Service.

Hull was born in Clare county Feb. 2, 1890, and came to Norwood township as a child. Mrs. Hull was born in Norwood township Nov. 24, 1896.

The couple have a son, Bud J. of Pontiac and two daughters, Mrs. Lester (Dorothy) English of Pontiac and Mrs. Robert (Roberta) Hamilton of Charlevoix. They also have eight grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Famous People in History

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

Robert Louis Stevenson was born in Edinburgh, Scotland in 1850. In his childhood and through most of his life, Stevenson was frail and suffered from poor health. As a young man, he studied to be a civil engineer but later turned to literary studies. He sailed to America, then went by train to San Francisco to find the woman he married a year later. When he returned to Scotland, he wrote some of his most famous stories: Treasure Island, A Child's Garden of Verses, Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, Kidnapped, and The Black Arrow. He returned to America in 1887. In 1888, Stevenson set sail from San Francisco for a pleasure cruise in the South Pacific. After visiting many islands, he decided to settle in Samoa. The Samoans called him chief and "Teller of tales". Except for one trip to Australia, Stevenson never again left Samoa. He continued writing until his death in 1894. He was buried on Samoa.

Mayor Hansen Apparently Wins Election

By FRAN MARTIN

Although the vote at the polls was not a decisive one, incumbent mayor, Edward P. Hansen, will likely be returned to office when the Charlevoix county board of canvassers meets Tuesday.

According to the tally of machine and absentee ballots, Ralph A. McRae, who had won the nomination by 44 votes in the primary election, received 623 votes to 618 for Hansen. However, there are 18 questionable ballots which, election officials say, were intended for Hansen. If these are awarded to him by the Board of Canvassers, then Hansen will have been returned to office by a margin of 636 to 623, or 13 votes.

In the second contest on the ballot, Democrat F. Ivan Whitley ousted incumbent Mrs. Jeannine Wallace by a decisive margin of 323 to 169.

According to the figures made available Monday night, McRae received 485 votes on the machines and 138 A.V.B.'s while Hansen received 415 on the machines and 203 A.V.B.'s.

A further breakdown of the results shows McRae received 193 in the first ward; 139 in the second and 153 in the third on the machines and 58, 37 and 43, A.V.B.'s respectively, in the three wards.

Hansen, on the other hand, had 81 in the first ward, 166 in the second ward and 168 in the third ward on the machines and 35, 88 and 60 A.V.B.'s, respectively, in the three wards.

There are four undecided votes in the first ward, eight in the second and six in the third ward.

Commenting on the election late Monday, Hansen said he feels that he has been returned to office by a 13 vote margin. "There's no doubt that the votes were meant for me. I know there were others who meant to vote for me but beeame confused by the machines. I was against the machines in the beginning. I knew that winning would be a hard job because of the machines. From the information given to me, I have won".

Hansen added that "the Board of Canvassers has no choice but to give to me the votes that are rightly mine."

McRae would only say that "I will make no comment at this time." However, he added that things did not look bright for him according to the information given him.

The one bright spot for McRae was the approval of the revision of the charter which he was pushing. This was approved by a 521-454 margin.

Hansen's success as a write-in candidate marks the second time in the past 25 years that this has been accomplished.

Other officers who were returned to office without opposition and the votes each received follows: City Clerk, Ida A. Heise, 747 votes; City treasurer, Annabelle Cunningham, 764; First ward alderman, Raymond V. Wood, 307, and George Plumm, third ward alderman, 345.

A total of 1,409 of the city's 2,236 registered voters or 63 percent turned out in Monday's election.

Township Residents Back Levy

Charlevoix township residents went to the polls in light numbers in a special election Monday to give their approval to a 2.0 mill tax levy for five years Mrs. Arthur Cunningham, township clerk, reported Monday.

The millage issue, which will allow approximately $40,000 for the budget this year, was approved by a vote of 159 to 40 votes with two spoiled ballots. The 201 ballots cast represents approximately 44 percent of the township's registered voters.

The 2.0 mills is the renewal of a tax levy that expired in 1974 and which had been defeated in two earlier elections. On Aug. 6, the issue was defeated by a four vote 176-172 margin and on Nov. 5 by a vote of 169-153.

Mrs. Rose Bergmann, township treasurer, said following the successful vote that the township can now carry out its plans to extend water lines to Pine Point, proceed with engineering for a proposed sewer line and several other projects that were dependent on the passing of the millage.

City Councilmen Reject Animal Shelter Request

Charlevoix County Commissioners are expected to decide next week whether or not they will go along with Charlevoix's objection to construct an animal shelter on county jail property.

County Commissioner Ralph Richardson said the board would have to make the determination after the Charlevoix Board of Appeals rejected the county's request for a use variance within city limits Monday.

City council, which also serves as the Board of Appeals, turned down the request after hearing some 15 residents object to the proposed location on property between Grant and Garfield.

Richardson, a member of the county board's sheriff's committee, told counci and some 35 residents that the sheriff's department property had been selected beeause of low operational cost potential.

The county has been operating a shelter in Boyne City, but has received numerous complaints over the condition of the operation from citizens and health officials.

Under the proposed shelter, it was anticipated that persons assigned to watching the jail could also watch the dog shelter on a 24-hour basis, instead of the occasional visits to the shelter by a deputy traveling to Boyne City.

The shelter, which is expected to cost under $20,000, would be designed to handle dogs and resemble the steel storage building already on jail property.

"We have tried to design this building big enough so we aren't crowded," Richardson told council.

He emphasized the building was designed so it wouldn't retain odor and would be insulated for sound.

However, counedman-elect Ivan Whitley presented council with a petition signed by some 38-property owners from the area objecting to the project because they say it would detract from the neighborhood and reduce property values.

Whitley said he along with County Commissioner Oscar

Resignation Dies

Charlevoix City Council took no action on an earlier offer from Acting City Administrator Robert Wexstaff to resign Monday night.

In a letter to council last week, Wexstaff offered his resignation to avoid becoming a political football in Charlevoix's race for mayor.

Wexstaff said last week that his serving as city administrator was having too much political impact on the city election and that he wanted to put everything to rest so that people could deal with the real problems at hand.

The 52-year-old Charlevoix resident first became city assessor in 1973, and stepped up to the administrator's post a year later following the resignation of Thomas Hanna.

Charlevoix's Grant Applications Look Grim

Three federal grant applications for improvement projects in Charlevoix apparently are standing on thin ice.

Charlevoix County Planner William Mercer said he doubts grants for a senior citizen housing project, park development or parking improvement will be approved.

However, Charlevoix City officials say they have officially only heard that funding for senior citizen housing does not look good.

Mayor Ed Hansen said that in all the conferences he has attended regarding Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HUD) funding, most of the money is going toward eliminating plight in urban areas.

"But, I'm not aware to date there is any stigma on our grant," he said.

"I'm not aware that it has been turned down."

While Hansen said it looked like HUD's first priority is for projects to eliminate blight in urban areas, he said it does

Ellsworth Celebrates 'Artie and Ed Parisot Day'

By FRAN MARTIN

Saturday has been proclaimed "Artie and Ed Parisot Day" in Ellsworth and residents of the entire area will attend a special benefit concert at the Ellsworth high school at 8 p.m. Saturday in recognition of the courage of the young couple.

Who are Artie and Ed Parisot?

Artie is the former Artis Drenth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Drenth and a 1968 graduate of the Ellsworth high school and Ed, a native of the Detroit area, is her husband whom she married last October.

So what makes this story so different? The fact that Ed is a paraplegic as the result of an automobile accident in Ellsworth in the summer of 1973 only a few weeks after the couple had met.

It all started that summer when Ed, after two years at Wayne State University, came north to work at a summer job and met Artie shortly after arriving. She lived in Ellsworth with her parents and worked at the Charlevoix County State Bank in Charlevoix.

That fateful night in July 1973, a friend stopped at Artie's house and asked the couple to join them for a ride. He'd had over-size tires installed on the rear wheels and wanted to show them off. Artie and Ed joined them and were still in sight of Artie's house when the headlights, which had not been adjusted to compensate for the new angle of the car, failed to pick up a curve and the vehicle struck a tree.

When they were pulled from the wreckage, the driver and his friend had comparatively minor injuries, Artie was hurt but would recover but Ed was paralyzed from the rib cage down as the result of a partially severed spinal cord.

For several weeks his life hung in the balance at the Charlevoix Area Hospital but later he improved enough to be transferred to a hospital nearer his home where he could receive special therapy.

As soon as she had recovered from her injuries, Artie transferred to a bank near the hospital and Ed's parents home where she could see him daily. When he was able to go to his parents home, Artie assisted his mother with his care and, as one might expect, love blossomed.

A little more than a year later, in October 1974, the couple was married in a quiet ceremony performed by the Rev. Ronald VanderWerff, former pastor of Atwood Reformed church.

They knew it would not be easy, they had examined all the aspects of such a marriage and decided that they could make it...together and with God's blessing.

For Artie this meant giving up her job, finding an apartment that would meet their needs while Ed attended classes at Wayne State University in order to obtain a degree in Business Administration and, hopefully, become self-supporting. It means not only caring for him (he has to be brought to a standing position every 45 minutes and turned equally as often while in bed), but being his chauffeur, his hands for operating a tape recorder in class and later transcribing the notes for his benefit and the myriad of other chores that are her responsibility as nurse and wife.

Ed's former employer, Penn Central, is one of only a few employers who do not deduct Social Security from employees payehecks. If it weren't for a policy he took out on himself, he would receive no benefits. As it now stands he will collect $300 a month for four years. His medical bills were more than $160,000 but 80 percent are now paid. Ed, at the age of 65 years, can collect $22,000 from the railroad company's retirement plan. But the need is for money now.

At present the couple lives in Wayne State University housing which is paid in part by Michigan Vocational Rehabilitation leaving the Parisots with $115 on which to support themselves.

Clothing, laundry, special equipment necessary for Ed's well being, even parking the car in the parking structure nibbles away at the small amount remaining. But with only two years to go before Ed gets his degree and a job, they are making every sacrifice. Sometimes, they agree, it's only their faith that carries them through the bad times.

Right now their greatest need is a van, a specially equipped van for lifting Ed in and out of the vehicle, for lifting Ed is getting to be too much for Artie.

It is to give the young couple a 'Leg up' toward obtaining the much-needed van that the Gospel Concert is being given Saturday night.

Mrs. Robert Drenth who is heading the committee that has resulted in the concert said so many people have volunteered their talents that it was decided to present the Gospel Concert.

The Couples Club of the Christian Reformed church is offering a nursery service and selling refreshments during the concert at the Ellsworth high school.

Tickets are on sale nt the Village Milk House in Charlevoix, Puff's and the Youth for Christ headquarters in Petoskey, John Best Insurance in East Jordan and at various sites in Ellsworth.

As Mrs. Drenth sums it all up...."it's a community effort to show Artie and Ed that we care."

UNDER THE watchful eyes of his wife, Artie, the former Artis Drenth of Ellsworth, Ed Parisot is learning to write again with the help of writing aid that fits on his hand.

Grandparents Day

Wednesday, April 16, has been proclaimed Grandparents Day at the Charlevoix Elementary School, according to Ralph Raymer, principal of the building that houses the kindergarten through the fifth grade.

"Grandparents seem to be the forgotten people in today's schools, yet they are prouder than anyone of the children's accomplishments. That is why we have planned a special day for them," Ralph Raymer, Elementary school principal, said in extending the invitation not only to grandparents but great-grandparents and uncles and aunts.

Grandparents Day will feature a walk through and/or a visitation to the various rooms.

It will be held from 9:30 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Wednesday, April 16.

Designers North Offers Art Area

Artists interested in displaying their work will be able to take advantage of a new program being started by Designers North of Charlevoix.

Cheryl Georgi says her studio is making some changes in the building on Bridge Street in downtown Charlevoix so local art can be shown year round.

"The natural ecological beauty of Northwestern Michigan is indisputable and has been an attractive lure to many people of various talents," she said.

She said many of them have left metropolitan areas and are moving to the more natural environment in this area.

"Artists, being of a somewhat more sensitive nature, discovered the beauty of Northwestern Michigan earlier than many, and cultonies have been flourishing in this area for many years," she continued.

However, Mrs. Georgi said the problem has been that most people haven't known who the artists were or how to contact them to see their wurk, except at the Charlevoix Art Fair.

She said hopefully the changes being made in her studio will now make it possible to display local art on a year round basis for local residents and tourists to enjoy.

"There will be many different medias of art, including original screen prints, watercolors, oils, acrylics, sculpture, pottery, weaving and photography," she said.

Local artists interested in displaying their wurk may contact Designers North in Charlevoix at 547-2224 or 547-6855.

Insulate yourself against summer heat and winter cold. It's easy, inexpensive–and saves Natural Gas.

Our Natural Gas is your lowest cost fuel. But the less you use, the more you save. That's why thousands of homeowners have taken advantage of the low-cost home ceiling insulation program we introduced in 1973, under the direction of the Michigan Public Service Commission.

And no wonder. It's easy. Inexpensive. And a wise investment. It can reduce the amount of Natural Gas used for heating by up to 17%. Help our nation conserve its vital natural resources, too.

Back by popular demand. Fact is, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company's home insulation program has proved so popular, we've decided to announce it again this spring. Because spring is a great time to insulate. Contractors aren't so busy, or if you decide to do the job yourself, your attic will be more comfortable to work in. Not too hot. Not too cold. When you're through, your house will be cooler this summer and ready for winter.

The heart of the program is ceiling insulation. Ceiling insulation represents the most significant opportunity for homeowners to hold down heating costs and conserve Natural Gas. Many homeowners can achieve fuel savings up to 17% by having six inches of insulation in their attic. Naturally, results for your home may vary due to architectural differences and heating habits.

First, you can install the ceiling insulation yourself. It's a simple, do-it-yourself project–and economical, too. Many homeowners can wrap up the project for less than $100. To assist you, we've even prepared a helpful booklet that shows just how to do the job. It's available at any Michigan Consolidated Gas Company office and from many insulation dealers.

Secondly, you can call a contractor and, arrange to have the work done. Or call us. We'll have one of our participating subcontractors install it for you. The cost? Many houses with up to 1,000 sq. ft. of ceiling area can be insulated for less than $250.

A payment plan to suit every customer. You can pay cash. Or, pay 20% down at the time the contract is signed. Then, simply have the remaining cost included in your Gas bill. Pay it off on your next three Gas bills with no interest or carrying charges.

Finally, you can pay for the job over an extended period. Interest is only 1% monthly on the unpaid balance. (ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF 12%.)

Why not take advantage of this money-saving program now. You'll be helping your pocketbook. And helping America conserve its vital natural resources. Contact us for details. And if you're a do-it-yourselfer, ask for our free booklet.

Human Effects of PBB Unknown Says Michigan Health Expert

BELLAIRE–What effect does polybrominated biphenyl (PBB) have on humans?

Apparently, no one knows what effect the fire retardant chemical accidently substituted for animal feed in 1973 has when consumed by humans.

In fact, health officials can only suggest at this point that those who might have been exposed to tainted milk, meat or eggs check with their local physicians.

Dr. John L. Isbister, chief of Michigan Department of Health's Bureau of Public Health, presented the oblivious picture last week in the Antrim County Courthouse.

The expert had come to discuss the PBB situation with individuals concerned over their exposure to the chemical.

However, Dr. Isbister was unable to provide very many answers.

"There is no history anywhere in the world of humans being exposed to PBB by ingestion," he said during his briefing of how the fire retardant was first accidentally mixed in cattle feed and eventually found in humans.

After learning about the mix-up in 1974, he said the Health Department took blood tests from 211 individuals on the first farms contaminated because of PBB and found they had varying levels in their blood.

After further field work, he said the health department has just finished with a computer program that will help them determine whether there is an adverse effect from ingesting PBB and what PBB levels, if any, have an effect on humans.

The computer work is expected to include over 6,000 farmers who live on exposed farms, have eaten products directly off those farms, and those not exposed.

Dr. Isbister said the study, which will begin after July 1, should help the health department determine the effects on humans and if there is any relationship to birth defects.

In the meantime, he said results of a preliminary investigation should be completed by May.

He added that the department is now accepting blood and fat tissue for laboratory analysis from physicians in private practice.

Dr. Isbister echoed earlier public statements that there is no evidence showing a pattern between those families most exposed to the chemical PBB and actual illness.

Reports in two Michigan newspapers about the possibility that humans have become ill as a result of contaminated feed were discounted by state officials.

In a report prepared by a special task force and released by Gov. William Milliken, state officials criticized some press coverage of the contamination problem by the Detruit News and Grand Rapids Press. It focused on a single News story and a 12-part series by the Press.

The News, the report said, "grossly misrepresented" comments from a researcher about possible birth defects from the tainted feed.

The Press, meanwhile, the report said, among other things reported erroneously that tainted milk has been sold; said aninals have died from PBB poisoning while no deaths have been recorded; and tied liver damage in 17 Mecosta County people to PBB "only by conjecture."

However, a spokesman for the Grand Rapids Press said the purpose of the series was not to come to conclusions in the PBB crisis, but to bring out all the facts in a confusing and threatening situation.
